JOHNSTOWN VISITED BY ANOTHER AWFUL CALAMITY; TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MINERS MAY BE DEAD

Yesterday's Mine Disaster

Johnstown's second disaster, while it in nowise compares with that awful calamity of 1889, is one of the worst horrors that has visited Western Pennsylvania in recent years. Its extent, so far as loss of life is concerned, cannot even be estimated. Fire damp has prevented the progress of the rescuers and the 250 entombed miners may be fighting for a breath of air to prolong their lives—may be, and in all probability are, dead.

The scenes about the two entrances of the mine were pitiable in the extreme. Wives and mothers fell fainting at the thought of the awful fate that had befallen their loved ones, while little children gathered about, adding their cries to those of their elders, but little realizing the awful calamity that had befallen them.

The work of rescue is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible, but it may be days and possibly weeks before the victims are found, dead or alive.

(Special to the Gazette.)

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 11.—At 20 minutes past noon yesterday, an explosion occurred in the "Klondike" section of the Rolling Mill mine owned by the Cambria Steel Company, entombing probably 250 men. At an early hour this morning four men had been taken out alive and one dead while the bodies of 67 others have been found. At least 125 are dead. The presence of afterdamp is impeding the work of the rescuing party, and it is not likely that they will reach the victims until morning, perhaps not then. Two miners who came out of mine at Mill creek opening estimate about 300 of the 550 men at work in the Cambria drift got out at that opening. They think the other 250 are still there. The part whence the refugees escaped is not the section of the mine where the disaster occurred. A current of air has been started through the mine but it is not known whether it reaches the entombed men. At the opening across the river from the point, the Cambria Iron Company police, with several assistants, stood guard, permitting no one to enter the mine, from which noxious gases were coming. It was nearly 4 o'clock when all hope of sending rescue parties from the Westmont opening was abandoned. Mine Foreman Harry Rogers, his assistant, William Blanch, and Fire Bosses John Whitney, John Retallick and John Thomas, were overcome by the gases and it is feared they perished in an heroic attempt to rescue the miners.

Johnstown's First Horror

The connection of Johnstown with a story of disaster recalls the greatest catastrophe that ever occurred in the United States. This was the Johnstown flood, late in the afternoon of Friday, May 31, 1889. Long continued rain caused the bursting of a sportsmen's club's dam on the South Fork branch of the Conemaugh river. A huge volume of water rushed down the deep and narrow gorge upon the city, eight miles below, and overwhelmed it with a wave more than 20 feet high. Before this wave came most of the city streets were already flooded. The wave bore on its front and surface all sorts of debris. Hundreds of houses were crushed like cardboards and in a few moments the larger part of Johnstown was a waste of ruins. The loss of life exceeded 3,000. More than 800 bodies were buried without identification. The property loss surpassed $10,000,000.

SCORES FOUND DEAD BY THE EXPEDITION

By JAMES B. SANSOM,

JOHNSTOWN, July 11.—(2 A. M.)—At 1:30 o'clock the dead discovered in the fated Rolling Mill mine numbered 67 and more were being found at every step of the rescuers. The bodies will be brought out by the lower drift, a roundabout route, at 4 o'clock.

Johnstown, Pa., July 10.—Penned in by the deadly firedamp and thousands of tons of fallen slate and coal, 250 miners are struggling for life in the great Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Iron and Steel Company near Johnstown. The mine openings are surrounded by weeping women and sobbing children, while deep down in the earth scores of men are crawling slowly beneath the cloud of deadly gas in a groping search for what they fear to find—bodies of comrades who have fallen victims to the noxious fumes.

The extent of the loss of life will not be known for days yet. The workings are over seven miles from the Westmount or the Mill creek opening. Almost in the middle of this is the Klondike section. It is here that the fearful explosion of gas occurred at 11:30 this morning, and it is blocked at both ends by huge masses of fallen slate.

At 11:20 the first four victims were brought to the surface from the Klondike section. They were William Robertson, who was unconscious when found; John Retallic, alive and in fairly good shape, and two unknown Slavs, both alive but unconscious. Dr. John B. Lowman, who came up with the men, said he passed 25 dead bodies, some of them in sitting postures.

Fire Adds to the Horror.

Out of the 600 men in the mine not more than 300 are known to have escaped, and these came pouring from the Mill creek drift immediately after the explosion. The rescuing parties first attempted to enter from the Westmount opening, directly across Stony creek from Johnstown, but the immense volumes of firedamp drove them back, after several had been overcome by gases and dragged out by companions. Inside the mine fire is adding to the horrors of the explosion and smoke is slowly coming from the entrances. The rescuing parties have abandoned all attempts to use the Westmount drift and are now working into the mine from the Mill creek shaft, at the other end.

At midnight the first rescuing party returned to the Mill creek shaft after penetrating over two miles into the workings. The party devoted its efforts to saving the living and carried them large supplies of oxygen. It is being supplied now to about 30 unconscious men and the physicians hope to save many of them.

The number of dead is variously estimated by members of the rescue party at from 100 to 190, and 125 is considered a conservative figure.

Physicians to the Rescue.

As soon as the news of the disaster reached Johnstown ambulances and surgeons were dispatched to the Westmont opening; but after several attempts to enter had failed they went to Mill creek. The physicians who have been working in the mine since nightfall are Drs. J. S. Taylor, C. E. Hannan, J. B. Woodruff, J. B. Lowman and G. W. Wagoner. At the Mill creek opening are Drs. E. E. Longwell, Emlyn Jones and W. B. Lowman.

Chief Mining Engineer Marshall G. Moore and his assistant, Al. G. Prosser, were the first to enter the mine after the explosion. They went in at the main entrance and began to work their way to the other end. Both were supplied with safety lamps. The progress was slow because of the gases.

When they reached the telephone in the mine, a mile or so from the entrance, Mr. Prosser telephoned the mine officers to have the main entrance closed at once because of the danger from the black damp. While he was at the telephone the gases became so oppressive he was forced to leave the instrument and proceed.

Upon emerging from the mine at the Mill creek end both Mr. Moore and Mr. Prosser were almost overcome. They staggered and looked white and sick. Both were forced to lie on the ground for a time before they could do anything. After they had passed through the mine, Mr. Prosser said, in answer to the questions of a Gazette correspondent:

No Chance to Notice.

"I can't say anything as to the condition of things in the mine, except that they are very bad. I had all I could do to get out alive, and had I gone 100 yards further I would be there now, instead of outside. I had no time to notice things in the mine. How many are dead I cannot estimate. We can only wait and see."

As soon as Mr. Moore and Mr. Prosser could, they organized a rescuing party to enter the mine from the Mill creek end. The party consisted of about 18 men and was headed by Mr. Moore.

One of the first men to come out from a region nearest the section where the explosion occurred was Tom Foster, assistant foreman of the mine. With him was the youngest fire boss employed in the mine. Both had a thrilling experience. They emerged into the free air at 1:20 o'clock in the afternoon, two hours after the explosion. They immediately notified Charles B. Price, general manager for the company. He ordered Engineer Hershburger to turn all the steam in his engines to use on the monster fan, the largest used at any mine in the United States.

By this time men from the other sections were coming at Mill creek. They had been warned of the explosion. None of them knew of it until told by the brave men who were nearest and who had escaped death.

Pale Faces Under Coal Smut.

They came out in twos, threes and fours and larger groups. None could tell anything about the explosion. Through the coal smut on their faces showed the blanched skin underneath. They knew that perhaps 200 of their fellow-workmen had perished in the mine. How large the number of dead would be they did not know. They were sorrowing for the dead, but thankful to be alive and unhurt.

With 200,000 cubic feet of fresh air going into the mine every minute Mr. Moore and his party started on their mission of rescue. They returned at 5 p. m. Engineer Moore said he had reached the fifth west section of the south main heading, the one next to that where the explosion occurred.

"The sixth west section is practically blown to pieces," said Mr. Moore. "We could not get to that section because of the after-damp. All the brattices in the section, roof and doors are down. The men who were there when the explosion occurred could hardly escape. The explosion was caused by firedamp."

Superintendent of Mines George T. Robinson also was down in the mine. The men from the Conemaugh slope were asked for and came. Others from that mine and all in the vicinity offered their services. At a moment like this there was no hesitation. The officials exhorted the men to be careful.

Driven Back by the Damp.

Two men who escaped unhurt—Richard Bennett and John Meyers—went back two miles to see what assistance could be rendered, but the frightful damp drove them back, and they fell prostrate, but finally, after a desperate struggle, they reached the outside. Drs. Lowman and Wagoner immediately gave the heroic men assistance, and after working with them half an hour restored them to normal condition. Mine Foreman Harry Rodgers, his assistant, William Blanch, and Fire Bosses John Whitney, John Retallick and John Thomas were overcome by the gases, and it is feared they perished in a heroic attempt to rescue the fated miners.

The 15-year-old son of Harry Rodgers, when he heard that his father had been overcome with after-damp, started down toward the Klondike to help rescue him if possible, and he had no sooner entered the drift than the deadly gas almost overcame the lad and he had to be carried back. His tongue protruded its whole length from his mouth, and men had to force his jaws apart with a stick to prevent lockjaw.

Young Rodgers, who is employed in the mine, was among those who escaped through the Mill creek shaft. He was assisted to the Windber street car line by several miners and brought to his home.

Work of the Second Expedition.

The second rescue party returned to Mill creek drift at 6 p. m. It was composed of the five doctors already named, Chief Engineer of Mines Marshal Moore, his assistant, A. G. Prosser, H. H. Norris, superintendent of the Merchants Coal Company, a volunteer; Foreman John Daniels and 25 miners. Their progress was slow. After they had been in the mine half an hour they began to come across the bodies of fallen miners. Wherever a spark of life remained a surgeon with an oxygen tank would begin to work with the victim. This party's progress, though slow, was much faster than the first, as the great volume of air being pumped into the Mill creek drift was driving the deadly gases before it. The party returned at 11:25, reporting from 25 to 30 dead, as far as they had gone, with as many more victims whose lives are hanging in the balance.

The plan adopted was the only one by which the mine could be cleared of the after-damp; yet it moved but slowly, with the tremendous pressure behind it. After the fan had been started so rapidly no one could approach the main entrance to the mine above the river so strong was the after-damp coming from it. The escape of Assistant Foreman Foster and Fire Boss Powell was marvelous. Mr. Foster warmly praised the bravery of the fire boss. They floundered together in the darkness, working out headings in their efforts to save their lives. At times they were waist deep in water. They were sick and weak from the gas.

Fate of Foreman Rodgers Unknown.

Whether Harry Rodgers, the foreman of the mine, is dead is not known. He and Foster were together in a section close to the sixth when the firedamp exploded. The doors of the section were blown down. Both leaped to them to put them up. They inhaled the poisons, and Rodgers staggered.

"Come on!" said Foster, "let's try to get out. You are giving way."

Rodgers became half angry at Foster's words. He could hardly stand then. In the darkness the two became separated and Foster does not know whether his chief is alive or dead.

Soon afterward Foster met Powell, the fire boss. Both did what they could to warn the other miners. Together Foster and Powell fought their way to safety. They found John Whitney, another fire boss, almost unconscious. He could make a sound with his lips, but could not talk. The two brave men dragged Whitney 150 yards or so to a place of safety, where they were forced to leave him. Both were nearly overcome and had to go on to save themselves. If Whitney regained consciousness and recognized where he was he will come out alive; if not, he is dead long before this is written. The chances were against him.

Description of the Mine.

The mine in which the disaster occurred is one of the largest coal mines in the United States, according to the statement of officials last night. From the entrance in the hill, across the river from the point to the one at Mill creek, is a distance of three and three-quarter miles. The Klondike section, in which the explosion occurred, is about two miles from the Mill creek entrance. It lies just under the Eighth ward. The distance from the Mill street entrance is much farther than from the main entrance. The mine is divided into a large number of headings, levels and sections.

The sections run off to the left and right of the headings and are known as rights and lefts by the miners. The official names for these sections are such a section east or such a section west, from such and such a heading.

The men who escaped yesterday afternoon are familiar with the mine. They have spent years in it, and are as much at home with its ramifications as with the streets of Johnstown. Otherwise they never could have reached the surface. The lights were out and there was no way for them to find their way to the top had they not known the mine perfectly. The mine has been in operation 20 years, and this is the first serious accident.

LIKE A FLASH NEWS SPREAD THROUGH CITY

Into Every Home Rumors at First Told of Death of Every Man.

LOVED ONES FLY TO THE OPENING

By NELSON KINGSLAND,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 10.—After 13 years of business and hard work in the endeavor to erase all traces of the ravages of the flood of May 31, 1889, Johnstown was again visited today by a disaster that will cost the lives of about 200 men.

At 1 o'clock today the people of the city were busy at their daily work, all unconscious that five miles away, 300 feet under Westmont hill, in the Klondike headings of the Cambria Steel Company's Rolling Mill mine, a terrible explosion had taken place and 250 men had been caught in a death trap by the falling walls. It was a beautiful day in Johnstown, and the streets were thronged with women busy on shopping errands, and with men carrying on business affairs. No thought of trouble or death touched any of these, when suddenly an intangible something, a rumor as sudden as it was horrifying, seemed to sweep over the city, and in a moment the news of the disaster had spread from one limit of the town to the other.

Yesterday 600 men were working in this mine beneath the surface of the earth, many of them with wives and children in the city, and all of them with friends and relatives here.

How the Rumors Grew.

At first rumor said all of the men employed in the mine had been entombed; then that but two or three fortunate ones, those who had come pale-faced to the city and told the evil tidings, were the only ones who escaped.

The main entrance to the mine is within the city limits, across the river from what is known as "the point." When the rumor spread that all were dead women and children whose husbands and fathers were somewhere, dead or alive, beneath the bright green of the hillside, rushed to "the point," some with dry eyes and set faces, some crying, some moaning, but all gazing steadfastly at that dark opening in the hillside, the only visible object that connected them with the loved ones in the dark beyond.

But already, from the opening in the hillside the noxious gases were beginning to pour from an explosion that had taken place three and one-half miles away and the police of the Cambria Steel Company refused to allow any to enter. Women with blanched faces came and entreated that they might be allowed to go in. No thought of the distance had they, no faintest reasoning as to the utter uselessness of the attempt, only a determination to do something to rescue the loved ones from death. Little children, little realizing the terrible meaning of the news, but with a child's vague consciousness that something "that might hurt father" was going on clung to the skirts of the women and added to the piteousness of the scene.

The Stampede to Mill Creek.

The men were busy trying to find some way to reach their imprisoned comrades. Again and again attempts were made to force a way through the miles of headings to the scene of the disaster.

While the crowd of weeping women and children were waiting for news from the forbidden hole on the opposite side of the stream a change had come over the streets of the city. Men and women who were united by no family ties or bonds of friendship, or even acquaintanceship, with the miners, stopped and spoke to each other in low tones of horror. Still the impression prevailed that the lives of 600 or 800 strong men had been blotted out in the depths of the mine.

Then came the cry that the only chance for rescue was at Mill creek. Livery stables were raided, every horse and vehicle in the town was procured, and then a hurried but sad exodus to the only place where tidings might be expected began. The road is narrow and winds over the hills. Upsets were many, but no attention was paid to these, the only thought being to reach the spot whence help was being sent to the men in peril.

The utter hopelessness of waiting, with no outward indication that any accident had happened the same green hillsides, the dark mouth of the tunnel; and nothing but the groups of expectant people to show that this day was not like every other day of the long year, and that the men would not come home at last, were appalling. Every now and then some woman would break out into moaning, but for the most part, after the first shock of the awful news it was a quiet, patient waiting for good news or bad.

The Cause a Mystery.

Powell Stackhouse, president of the Cambria Steel Company, was seen at the mouth of the mine at 11 o'clock tonight.

"This is an awful disaster, and came upon us unexpectedly," he said. "Only three days ago the mine was inspected and no trouble was anticipated. Gas had been discovered in drift No. 5 off the main lead, but this drift was closed. The only way we can account for the accident is that gas from drift No. 5 got into drift No. 6, where the explosion occurred, in some way, probably through tiny cracks in the rock formation. The mine has been in operation for 30 years, and we have never had any trouble here before. Everything possible will be done for the sufferers.

"No list of the dead can be given out tonight, as nearly all of the men who are imprisoned in the mine are foreigners and work by check. We do not know their names, and will have to wait until the bodies are identified at the morgue."

SOME OF THE LIVING IN BAD CONDITION

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Johnstown, Pa., July 10.—It was a terrible experience that Richard Bennett and John ("Short") Meyers had after the frightful explosion. They were in the mine where the explosion took place and at once came out.

About 2 o'clock they decided to go back into the mine and bring back a report of the situation. They went two miles inside, and on the way saw the dead body of Eddie Yamanski at the first sidetrack, about a mile this side of the explosion point.

"The damp was fearful," said Mr. Bennett to a reporter for The Gazette, half an hour after he and Meyers had returned from their trip of investigation. "We had to turn back. We could go no further. It was something awful in there, and when on our way back we thought sure we would perish."

"When Bennett and Meyers got back," said Dr. W. B. Lowman, who, with Dr. G. W. Wagoner, was standing at the opening, they fell to the ground. They were completely overcome, and for a while I feared it was all up with them. It took half an hour for them to revive. They were in very bad shape, and it is remarkable that they ever got out alive."

Frantic Rush to Escape.

William Malcolm was in the upper part of the mine when the explosion came.

"The first I knew of the trouble was when miners came running from what is known as the 'dip,' or lower section. They came running without hats or coats, and some without clothes, and in a terrible state of excitement. As near as I can remember, not more than 10 came that way, and they escaped, leaving at least 200 in the 'dip.' I came out by way of Mill creek."

David Williams was near that part of the mine known as the Klondike.

"I heard the explosion," said he, "but it did not affect me. I got out quick, but I saw many who appeared to be smothered and unable to move. How many I do not know. My father was in there with me. I saw him after the explosion. He told me to hurry home and tell mother that he was not hurt. He said he would come out from Mill street. I came out at the mine opening."

John Hewlett, at the time of the accident, was at second right, room 16, two miles back in the mines. The explosion, he said, was at right 6 about 400 yards from where he was working.

"There were six of us together, and as soon as we heard the explosion we pulled up stakes and got out as quick as possible. Richard Bennett was one of the men with me.

Couldn't See Their Hands.

"After Bennett got out he went back again. After the explosion we could not see our hands before us until we reached the main heading. It appeared to be a smoky, sticky substance, whether gas or damp, I could not tell. It was terrible, whatever it was."

John Martin, George Wallace, Patrick Muldoon and Joseph Cohegchaski came Creek opening some time ... explosion.

"All working at what is called ... three miles back," said Martin. ... were beyond the point of the explo... about [illegible] a mile. At least 150 m... were at work behind us. Thomas Wallace of ... Beaware avenue and his four buddies (assistants), were all that we saw who escaped from the point near the explosion. We did not hear the explosion, but felt the shock, and we left at once."

John Whitney was beyond the "dip" where the explosion took place.

"I was at the heading one half mile from the explosion," said he. "Several dozen were overcome by the damp or gas. I had all I could do to escape. It was terrible. After the explosion we went back to rescue the less fortunate and nearly lost our own lives. We saved Andy Cusack. I did not see my father, John C. Whitney, fire boss, who was struggling to get out. I don't think many outside of the drivers escaped."

Fears That Father Perished.

There was great excitement at the Whitney home when your correspondent was there at 4 o'clock. John had just got home, almost exhausted, and his mother and sister were frantic with grief. They were overjoyed when John came in, but alarmed for the husband and father, John C. Whitney, who had not yet arrived and who, it was feared at that hour, had perished.

Tom Foster, an assistant foreman in the "Klondike," was among the first to emerge from the Mill creek shaft. Shortly afterward Powell Griffith, a fire boss, came up. Foster was in his office when the explosion occurred. He first thought was for the safety of the men under his charge. With the help of Foreman Roberts an effort was made to replace a few of the shattered doors. All the while the firedamp was closing around them. They did not falter for an instant, but straight into the midst of danger they went. The thought, "Save the men," was paramount. Through galleries into headings, warning and helping, the two then went. Roberts fell, but Foster staggered on, whither he hardly knew. In the midst of the danger he met Powell Griffith, a fire boss. He had faced what seemed certain death in an effort to save his men.

Escaped Through a Water Level.

Forward they went, dragging a comrade into a possible place of safety here, giving a word of warning there, until human endurance could stand the strain no longer. Exhausted, they staggered into a heading, where the firedamp had not entered. There they rested for a moment and then plunged forward—whither they did not know—until finally they wandered into a water level and through it reached a place of safety. Said Tom Foster:

"How I escaped I do not know. It seems like a terrible nightmare. Hundreds of times I gave up hope, but from sheer instinct I stumbled forward until finally I reached a place of safety."

THE EFFORTS AT RESCUE

One Man Passes Entirely Through the Mine Without Touching the Affected Section—Exit Reached by Narrow, Difficult Road.

By CHARLES E. LOCKE,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 10.—At the mouth of the Mill creek shaft, where the little party of rescuers had gone down, there was gathered a crowd that filled the big yard around the office. The throbs of the engine and the rattling of the big fan, furnishing air for the party in the shaft that was trying to reach the entombed men, could be heard above the subdued talk of the crowd.

The scene was a weird one. The shaft is about a mile from the main road up a narrow valley reached by a rough road almost impassable in places.

All afternoon and evening and late into the night, in carriages and on foot, the people came out to the shaft. Many there were in the crowd whose fathers and brothers and relatives and friends were behind the barrier of coal and slate thrown down by the explosion. Others were there out of curiosity, and these, perhaps, were a large majority.

There was little to be seen at the shaft. The scant light given by the few torches and the miners' lamps was hardly sufficient to dispel the gloom or to give light to the men who were working hard to get everything in readiness for any of the men who might be brought out alive.

Priests There to Give Comfort.

At the head of the shaft was a little group of priests, to be on hand to perform the last offices for the men who were brought out living. In the group was Father Dembuski, pastor of the Polish church, whose field of labor is among the foreign miners of this district. As soon as he heard of the explosion he hurried to the mouth of the shaft and stayed there faithfully all the afternoon and a greater part of the night. Not less than 25 of the imprisoned men were his parishioners, and the priest lingered around in the hope that some of them might be among those rescued.

With him were Father Schoenberg and Father John Boyle. Father Boyle was at Loretta in retreat, when a telephone message told him about the accident, but he came at once.

It was 3:30 o'clock when the first rescue party went down the 60-foot shaft at Mill creek. In this party were the five doctors, some of the officials and a number of miners.

John Prosser, one of the inspectors, had made a trip clear through the mine, from the main slope at Johnstown to the Mill creek shaft. His trip did not take him near the Klondike section, where the explosion occurred, the route being by a different opening. It took all his strength to come to the surface, but he soon revived, and at once ordered that the capacities of the big fans be doubled, so that the rescuing party would have plenty of air.

Utilized Every Stick of Lumber.

With the aid of the strong current of fresh air the party down in the mine pressed slowly but steadily over the two and one-half miles that separated them from the Klondike. Bratticing every drift they come to, and putting in new headings where they had been destroyed, they made fair progress. Every available piece of lumber was seized and pressed into service. Later in the evening the board fence surrounding the yard was attacked in response to the appeals of those below.

The hours passed without any word being received at the mouth of the shaft as to the fate of the men in the mine. It was 10:25 when the man in the cage below signaled to be drawn up. When the cage reached the surface there were in it two men supporting a third, who was Dr. J. Swan Taylor, one of the first of the doctors to volunteer for the rescue work. Dr. Taylor was able to walk a little and was conscious, but he was nearly overcome by the effects of the noxious afterdamp and the intense nervous strain of his eight hours' work.

"They are not all dead," he said, as he stepped out of the cage. "We saw some alive."

He was taken around to the side of the engine house, where mattresses and comforts had been spread, and after half an hour he had revived sufficiently to walk to the office. He could not talk much, though, and knew little of the actual conditions inside the mine.

The First Men Recovered.

A little later on old miner who had been a member of the rescue party came up. He was nearly exhausted, but got along without assistance. He said some of the living men were being brought to the foot of the shaft. It was just an hour after Dr. Taylor had come up that the signal was given to the engine room to lower the cage, and the crowd knew that the first of the victims were to be brought out.

In the meantime a rope had been stretched to keep the crowd back, and by the side of the engine house were gathered fully a dozen doctors, who were being reinforced by others.

The first man taken out was William Robertson. He had been found lying on his face by the side of the track. His clothes were nearly torn from his body, but he was not burned at all. He was carried by four miners and laid gently on one of the comforts. The doctors examined him and said he was still living. He was wrapped up in a comfort, carried to the boiler house and laid in front of the furnaces. Oxygen was administered and every known means for reviving him was used. Gradually he came back to life, but his recovery is doubtful.

Passed 25 Dead Bodies.

Dr. J. B. Lowman, who came up with Robertson, was covered with dirt from head to foot, and in spite of the fact that he had been working for a long time, he was as active as any of the physicians who had been about ground all the time.

"There are four living among the men we have out now," he said, "but we passed 25 dead bodies to reach them. Some of the men were in sitting positions and some were lying on their faces, but we could not make any attempt to recover their bodies until we had brought the living out."

Dr. Lowman had not finished talking when the signal for lowering the cage was given, and this time Foreman Harry Rodgers was brought up. He was unconscious, and to all appearances dead, but the doctors said he was still alive. His clothes were torn and water soaked and his limbs distorted and swollen. His face presented a horrible sight. He was soon resting beside Robertson and four physicians were working with him.

Again the bell rang, and this time John Retallic was brought up. On the fourth trip a Slavish miner was brought out. At first no one knew him, but he was later identified as Valentine Sins. The four men were kept in the boiler house, and all except Robertson came around all right after a tim.

The fifth time the cage came up it carried the body of a Polish miner whose name could not be learned. It required only a glance from the doctor to tell that he was dead. The crowd fell back as the body was carried to the wagon of one of the undertakers, who was at the shaft. This was the first body recovered.

Part of the rescue party then came up and were served with coffee and sandwiches that had been furnished by the company. The party that was still in the mine were very near to the scene of the explosion, and it is expected that during the early hours of the morning many bodies will be recovered.

A relief fund for the suffering already has been started, beginning with a contribution of $500 by the Johnstown Democrat. Other contributions are already coming in.

THE ILL-FATED MINE IS FIFTY YEARS OLD

Not an Accident There Recalled by a Local Agent for a Score of Years—The Pit Described.

The mine in which the latest Johnstown horror occurred yesterday, is owned by the Cambria Steel Company. The mine was started in 1852. Like all the rest of the mines in that vicinity it is a drift, not a shaft mine. There is one main opening, from which numberless drifts branch out.

The main entry, in the course of the mine's half century of existence, has penetrated four miles under the mountains toward Mill creek. In the interior workings electric haulage is used and cable haulage in the main entry.

The company has other mines in the district, not connected by underground workings with the mine in which the accident happened. They are on the other side of the river and are the source of the company's supply of coking coal.

W. McLain, sales agent of the company, with an office in the Park building, received a telephone message from the mine about 5:30 p. m. yesterday. He was told that in the part of the mine affected by the accident, 100 men were employed. This part of the mine is called the Klondike. Mr. McLain has been connected with the company for 20 years. Fourteen of these years were spent at Johnstown. In speaking of the accident he said:

"I was much surprised when I heard of it. I do not recall an accident in the mine during the past 20 years. It is a remarkably well ventilated mine, there being ventilating openings everywhere. Marshall Moore, the company's mining engineer, is an unusually competent man, alert and active."

The officers of the company are Powell Stackhouse president, John W. Townsend vice president and W. S. Robinson secretary and treasurer. The company's headquarters are in Philadelphia. Charles S. Price, the general manager, and his assistant, Herbert M. Weaver, live in Johnstown.

JUDGE TAFT SILENT ON VATICAN REPLY

Philippine Governor Says He Will Act Only on Instructions from Washington.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ROME, July 10.—Judge Taft, governor of the Philippine islands, withholds his opinion of the vatican note of yesterday and simply says he will act upon the instructions he receives from Washington.

In vatican circles the fact is commented upon that Washington has exposed itself to the rejection of the principal one of its propositions, namely, the withdrawal of the friars, by not having, prior to undertaking an exchange of notes, initiated pour parlers through Judge Taft, which would have shown the government the impossibility of the vatican granting, pure and simple, the withdrawal of the friars from the islands.

The Washington government would then have understood the necessity of reaching the same object by asking for the withdrawal of the friars under a different form, namely, the substitution of the friars, for state reasons, by monks of other nationalities or different orders, etc.

It is believed that arrangements somewhat on these lines will ultimately be adopted and that the negotiations will be satisfactorily concluded.

Boy Drowned at Charleroi.

CHARLEROI, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—John Hosnick, aged 16, was drowned at this place today and John Diehl, a companion, had a narrow escape. Hosnick and Diehl were out in a skiff and ran into the wheel of the steamboat Sailer. The skiff was upset and both thrown into the water. Diehl clutched at the steamboat wheel and was carried around four times, escaping injury.

Husband Is Arrested.

CORRY, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—Frederick Kafferlin, husband of the woman who yesterday drank coffee containing paris green, has been arrested. The woman is recovering. Kafferlin waived examination and was held for the grand jury.

McKay was married less than three weeks ago and he and his wife were on their wedding tour to this city. Col. McKay was 71 years of age.

Preacher Used a Gun.

CARBONDALE, ILL., July 10.—A mob at Eldorado last night attacked the home of the Rev. Peter A. Green, pastor of the A. M. E. church, but when the preacher opened fire and wounded one man the party fled. Mobs recently broke up the colored normal school at Eldorado and drove the pupils out of town.

ARMORY TURNED INTO IMMENSE CHARNEL HOUSE

Made Ready to Receive the Charred Bodies of the Mine Victims.

AMBULANCES ARE READY

Procession of the Dead Will Start for the City Early This Morning, and Will Probably Be Continued All Day Long.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Johnstown, Pa., July 10.—The armory of Company H, Fifth regiment, N. G. P., will be turned into a charnel house. After a conference tonight it was announced that the dead miners would be brought to the armory tomorrow. Planks have been laid on chairs in the armory and the removal of bodies will begin early in the morning.

The ambulances of all the undertakers in the city are at Mill creek ready to begin the transfer of bodies.

Outside of the "Klondike" the mines are safe and uninjured. Within the fatal limits of that mine the havoc wrought by the explosion baffles description. Solid walls of masonry three feet through were torn down like barriers of paper. The roofs of the mine were demolished and not a door remains standing.

Miners who left the mine by way of the Mill creek entrance brought horrible stories of crawling over the dead bodies of their comrades.

Two young men who were at work in the "Klondike" when the explosion occurred escaped by way of the air shaft heading up through the Kernville hill from the mine. An abandoned house stands at the top of this air shaft. This way the young men, sick and dizzy from the nauseous afterdamp or black damp, reached safety. They told how they had walked across dead bodies to pure air and light, how many they did not know.

The Cambria Steel officials were notified at once of the explosion. It caused consternation in the offices among those who heard the awful news.

The mining officials of the Cambria company said the explosion was one of firedamp. Business in the city has been practically suspended since the first news of the disaster was received.

ASKED FOR AN ADVANCE

Engineers and Firemen in Yards of Edgar Thomson Works Are Dissatisfied.

The engineers and firemen employed on the large engines in the transportation yards of the Edgar Thomson steel works and the blast furnaces of the United States Steel Corporation at Braddock have been dissatisfied because they were not included in the raise for laborers, given about a fortnight ago.

During the absence of Thomas Morrison, general manager of the Edgar Thomson plant with his family at Spring Lake, N. J., the crews made a demand of Thomas Cosgrove, superintendent of the labor and transportation departments at the entire plant, that the engineers be given an increase from $3 per day, to $3.50, and the brakemen be raised from $2.50 to $3 per day.

Supt. Cosgrove told the committee representing the engineers and firemen, that their demands must rest until Mr. Morrison's return, as he himself had no power to increase the wages.

There are 18 large yard engines, and each carries an engineer and fireman. The increase granted during the past month by the Carnegie Steel Company, which was first paid out two weeks ago, was plainly stated to apply only to laborers making $1.50 per day, and so-called "skilled" labor up to $2 per day.

BUILDING PACKING-HOUSE

Pittsburgh Men Interested in Big Venture at Louisville—Will Spend $1,000,000.

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 10.—(Special.)—The Brainard brothers of Pittsburgh—Ira F., Walter and Frank—and others associated with them in the operation of the Central stock yards in Louisville, have decided upon the erection of a $1,000,000 packing-house adjacent to the stock yards. Ira F. and Walter Brainard are in the city to confer about plans and with them are F. E. Humphrey of Chicago and representatives of John P. Squires of Boston.

It is proposed to erect an abattoir with a capacity of 100 cattle, 1,000 to 1,500 hogs and 3,000 to 5,000 sheep and lambs daily. The plant will cover three acres.

The spring lamb business is especially looked forward to. It is claimed that Chicago packers can buy their lambs here and ship them directly east, dressed, saving from $75 to $100 on each car and from two to three days' time. Kentucky and Tennessee furnish the first lambs of the season and supply the fashionable eastern market until the western lambs come in.

BUSINESS MEN INTERFERE.

Will Try to Have Freight Handlers' Strike Settled by Arbitration. Men Are Willing.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Business men of the city took an active part in attempting to settle the strike of the freight handlers today, and at midnight, although nothing had been definitely settled, some progress had been made.

An agreement was secured from the freight handlers' union that the organization would abide by the decision of the Chicago board of arbitration, if that organization could arrange meetings with the general managers of the railroads, and secure their consent also to arbitration.

The request for arbitration has not yet been submitted to the railroads. There is grave doubt that the proposition will be favorably received by the railroads when it comes to them. Manager Hitt of the Rock Island and General Manager Barrett of the Alton said tonight that they had not been requested to arbitrate and did not see what there was to arbitrate.

May Close Religious Orders.

PARIS, July 10.—The premier, M. Combes, has instructed the prefects of all the departments to notify the religious orders who have not complied with the law of associations that unless they are dissolved within a week their establishments will be forcibly closed. Two thousand establishments are involved.

Boy's Skull Fractured.

John Sexton, aged 13, of South Eighth street and the Brownsville road, a cash boy at the Joseph Horne Company's store, is at the South Side hospital with a fractured skull. He was run over by a wagon driven by Joseph Regan of Spring street, Lower St. Clair township. The accident occurred on Carson street, near the Smithfield street bridge.

FAKE TROOPER SOON HUSTLED FROM VILLAGE

Man Wanting to See President Announced That He Was a Rough Rider.

QUIET AT OYSTER BAY

Brisk Gallop in the Country the Chief Event—Miss Ethel Falls From Her Horse—Dentist Balks the Nation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 10.—A man who is said to have served in the Rough Riders when President Roosevelt was colonel of the regiment, arrived here from New York early this afternoon. As he announced his intention of calling upon the president the secret service officers were soon on his trail. A few minutes' examination of the man by one of the officers and George Pollock, who saw service as a Rough Rider with the president, convinced them he was not what he represented himself to be. He then admitted that he had not seen service in Cuba, and that he had posed as a Rough Rider merely as a means of getting an audience with the president. The officers saw to it that he left the village on the next train.

Dr. W. C. Root, the village dentist, has refused to turn his office in the bank building over to President Roosevelt. The president's clerks will therefore continue to sweat in the two small rooms they have at present. Dr. Root, who lives elsewhere, comes to town on Wednesday to fill and extract teeth. His office occupies two-thirds and the president's quarters one-third of the second story front of the bank building.

Dr. Root said he would let the president have the room six days in the week if he wanted it and would pay a good stiff price for it, but he would have to move out on Wednesdays in order to allow the dental business full swing.

President Roosevelt passed a comparatively quiet day at Sagamore hill. After the rain of the morning the president and Mrs. Roosevelt took a brisk gallop of several miles over the fine roads.

Miss Ethel and Master Archibald Roosevelt, accompanied by a daughter of J. West Roosevelt, who resides near the president's country home, also went horseback riding during the morning. At a point not far from Sagamore hill the saddle girth on Miss Ethel's horse slipped and as the saddle turned she was precipitated to the ground. Fortunately the horse was not going at a rapid pace and Miss Ethel, quite unhurt, readily stopped the animal. Archie dismounted, readjusted the girth and the party proceeded.

ALL HYPNOTIZED BY TRACY'S NERVE

Convict Forces Man to Go to Tacoma, Borrow Money and Buy Him Revolvers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

KENT, WASH., July 10.—Harry Tracy, the Oregon convict, was at the home of E. M. Johnson, two miles southeast of this place, Wednesday night. When he left the house he was armed with a new revolver and his Winchester, and had a plentiful supply of both ammunition and provisions.

Tracy sent Johnson to Tacoma to purchase the revolver and ammunition. He threatened to exterminate Johnson's family on the least sign of treachery. He left the house after dark, taking Johnson's horse. Not only did Tracy force Johnson to buy the revolver, but he made him borrow the necessary money in Kent. Johnson went to Tacoma and secured the weapon without sounding any kind of warning to the authorities.

Johnson left Kent on the 7 o'clock train, returning at 4 o'clock. While he was absent Tracy remained in the vicinity of the house and seemed to be expecting a visit from the officers. Several times he went to the top of a small hill in the rear of the Johnson home and viewed the country.

Upon the return of Johnson from Tacoma Tracy ordered Mrs. Johnson to cook him enough provisions to last a week. She boiled two dozen eggs, fried bacon, and gave him a large supply of sugar and flour.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 10.—(Special.)—A $6 puddling rate for all bar mills in and west of Pittsburgh will be paid by the bar iron manufacturers for the next 60 days. This was decided at the bimonthly conference of manufacturers and representatives of the Amalgamated association held here today.

This is an increase of 25 cents per ton.

CARNEGIE ARMOR O. K.

Successfully Resists a Fierce Attack by Ten-Inch Guns.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10.—(Special.)—At the Indian Head government proving grounds today a 11-inch Kruppized armor plate manufactured by the Carnegie Steel Company passed an excellent test. The plate represented 320 tons of turret armor for the battleship Missouri, valued at about $160,000. It was attacked by a 10-inch gun firing 500-pound armor-piercing projectiles. The average penetration was only 2⅝ inches. The group was accepted by the government.

The next test of Carnegie armor plate will not take place until early in September.

LEAVES FATHER FOR A HUSBAND

EX-GOV. "BOB" TAYLOR'S DAUGHTER IN AN ELOPEMENT.

Groom Figured in Gambling Sensation and Young Woman Was Ordered to Break Off the Engagement, but She Refused.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

KNOXVILLE, TENN., July 10.—When Emily Taylor, the beautiful 20-year-old daughter of ex-Gov. Robert Taylor, known all over the United States as "Bob" Taylor, left her home this morning, shortly after breakfast, it was to meet the man her father had told her she should not marry. His name is George St. John and he is one of the most prominent physicians in the city.

Some time ago Dr. St. John lost several hundred dollars in a local gambling house and afterward sued the establishment. This caused a slight scandal, and Gov. Bob Taylor, then in Texas, was telegraphed for. When he arrived he immediately told his daughter that she would have to break her engagement with St. John. She refused.

Finally in desperation they agreed to meet this morning and at the appointed time she left her home. Shortly afterward St. John sent a messenger to her father for her trunk and when he asked by what right he ordered her property into his possession, St. John replied, "By the right given me by a minister."

GOVERNOR DECLINES TO CALL OUT TROOPS

Says It Is Duty of Sheriff to Attend to Police Work in Anthracite Field.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

HARRISBURG, July 10.—In reply to a request from Sheriff Gombert of Carbon county that troops be sent to Lansford and Summit Hill to preserve order, Gov. Stone this afternoon sent a telegram in which he said:

"The law under which the national guard is called out does not justify action under the circumstances and conditions which you recite. The national guard are not police officers. Those conditions are entirely within your own province, and with the aid at your hand you ought to overcome the difficulty without the use of state troops. If there is a condition of riot, mob or insurrection which the civil authorities are unable to suppress the governor will not hesitate to send troops."

WILKESBARRE, PA., July 10.—President Mitchell received a telegram tonight from Denis A. Hayes, president of the Glassbottle Blowers' Association of the United States and Canada announcing that his organization, in annual session at Atlantic City, N. J., had donated $5,000 to the striking miners.

WOOSTER, O., July 10.—(Special.)—H. J. Stilson, manager of the Postal Telegraph office in this city, and Miss Clara Elliott eloped and were married this afternoon. Miss Elliott's parents objected, it is claimed, because Stilson had just been divorced from his first wife. Stilson drove in a cab to the Elliott residence and hurried the prospective bride to the office of a magistrate. The couple went east on an afternoon train.

SOLDIERS LEAVE PITTSBURGH FOR GETTYSBURG CAMP

The Tenth, Fourteenth and Eighteenth Regiments and Battery B Get Away.

CHEERED BY THOUSANDS

Wives, Sisters, Sweethearts and Mothers Swarmed the B. & O. and Union Stations to Give the Soldiers a Farewell—Newsies Taken Along.

Amid the vociferous cheering of several thousand persons the soldiers of the Tenth, Fourteenth and Eighteenth regiments and Battery B left Pittsburgh last night for the big division encampment of the Pennsylvania National guard on Gettysburg's historic fields. About 1,800 men got away last night. It was a great getaway night and the soldiers never left Pittsburgh under more favorable circumstances.

There were many pretty, and some affecting scenes at both the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania stations, as the wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts took their farewell for at least two weeks. The stations were crowded and there appeared to be but one object—to see the soldiers leave.

The girls—yes, they were all there, looking spick and span, dressed in their Sunday best, they came down to see their dear, loving soldier sweethearts depart. They wore their newest Du Barry hats, ping-pong neckties and Paris veils. They laughed, joked, cried and sang with the soldiers, and on the whole it may be said that they really enjoyed the farewell. They said they did after it was all over.

Girls Sang With the Soldiers.

When they could think of nothing to talk about they would start up a song and the one they particularly sung was, "I Want to Be a Military Man." The boys in kakhi sang too, and enjoyed it. Then came the cry "All aboard," and there was a scramble to get into the cars before the trains started.

Fortunately there was not an accident, but there came very near being one. A tall, dark-eyed lass was shaking hands with her lover in the car at the Union station. He asked her to kiss him. She replied she could not. He asked her again. She could not resist. With his body leaning half way out the car window he grasped the young woman and lifted her up in the air. She put her foot on the car trucks as the train was moving and people held their heads in horror. They thought sure she would be killed. She got her kiss and then jumped to the street, and the crowd cheered her lustily as she went to join her friends.

If there are a dozen newsies missing from Pittsburgh today their parents need not worry in the least. They were taken along with the boys. The soldiers smuggled Young America in the car windows until the limit was reached in every train.

How They Got Away.

The Eighteenth regiment, composed of 12 companies, with about 750 men, left over the Pennsylvania at 9:30 o'clock. They were scheduled to go out half an hour earlier. Col. Frank I. Rutledge was in command. The trains left as two sections of No. 4. The cars were backed down into Liberty street, where the men boarded them.

Col. J. Conrad Kay had charge of the second section of five passenger coaches, two freight cars and one horse car. This section carried six companies.

The Fourteenth regiment, nine companies, about 560 men, left the Central armory, Market street, and marched to the Baltimore & Ohio station. They boarded 13 cars and left about 9:40 o'clock. The regiment was in command of Col. E. E. Thompson.

Battery B also went out from the Baltimore & Ohio station as a section of train No. 5. About 80 men were in the command.

Then came the First battalion of the Tenth, 200 men. Companies A, B, H and K left from Pittsburgh and the Second battalion, composed of Companies C, D, E and I, left on another section from Connellsville.

Maj. Gen. Charles Miller and his staff of Franklin also left over the Baltimore & Ohio. A private car was sent to Franklin yesterday morning for the party and also an extra horse car. In this party was Lieut. Alfred Wilson, U. S. A., from Ft. Sheridan, Chicago, who is detailed for the inspection of the guard.

Two Adjutants Have Resigned.

Colonel Frank I. Rutledge of the Eighteenth regiment yesterday morning announced the appointment of Captain James H. Bigger to succeed Captain Fred W. Eggers as regimental adjutant. Captain Bigger was formerly captain of Company B and served in the Spanish-American war.

Captain Eggers tendered his resignation to Colonel Rutledge on last Monday, after an interview of over an hour, in the course of which he stated that his reasons for resigning were simply on account of his financial difficulties which had recently compelled him to file a petition in bankruptcy, and that it was necessary for him to devote his whole time and attention to his business affairs. Colonel Rutledge urged him to reconsider his action and to continue in his position as adjutant of the regiment, in which capacity he had been so efficient for several years, but Captain Eggers insisted upon his retirement, and Colonel Rutledge reluctantly complied with his request.

Captain James H. Bigger at the close of the Spanish-American war accepted the appointment of military instructor at the Morganza reform school, which position he still holds.

Adjutant A. C. McCoy, of the Fourteenth regiment has also resigned from the Guard and his position has been temporarily filled by Lieutenant and Inspector of Rifle Practice George B. Shields, for the present encampment. Colonel Thompson said yesterday that Adjutant McCoy had resigned because of ill-health and for business reasons. He said that he was very sorry to be compelled to accept his resignation, as he was a faithful and good soldier, and had been of great service to the Guard.

The Use of Coal Mining Machines.

A. S. E. Ackerman in Engineering Magazine.

Actual figures referring to the use of coal-cutting machines in the two countries show that 311 such machines were in use in Great Britain in 1900, whereas in America there were 3,907, or about 12½ times the number, this figure corresponding approximately with the ratio of the percentages cut by machines in the two countries, namely 1½ per cent and 20 per cent. It should be pointed out, however, that as British mining is very largely on the long-wall system, the 311 machines include a large number of long-wall and heading machines, while the 3,907 machines in America include 2,350 of the pneumatic percussive type, which is, of course, a much smaller and cheaper machine. Still, in the states there were 1,509 chain breast machines and 48 long-wall machines, and the increase in the percentage of coal mining by machinery in West Virginia was from 9.27 per cent in 1899 to 15.09 per cent in 1900. The corresponding increase for Pennsylvania (considering the bituminous coal only) was 29.07 per cent to 32.65 per cent.

URGENT DEMAND FOR CONNELLSVILLE COKE

For First Time in Their History Works Were Kept Running on the Fourth of July.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., July 10.—The Courier will say tomorrow:

Coke was made at all of the plants of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and allied works of the United States Steel Corporation in the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville regions on the Fourth of July this year. It was the first time on record when all these works ran on the Fourth. That is the only day in the year the men like to be off. They wanted to be this year, especially because they had been working steadily for months and had plenty of money. With a little persuasion, however, and extra inducements the superintendents held their forces together and the Frick plants produced their usual tonnage of coke on Friday and Saturday. At nearly all the other plants in the region there was a lay-off of one day.

Coke is now being made in the Connellsville region at the rate of over 12,000,000 tons a year. May's product was considerably over 1,000,000 tons and likewise the tonnage in June, the end of the first half of the year.

With production averaging over 250,000 tons a week now and with more ovens, at present under construction, scheduled to blow in by fall, the second half of the year should reach the great total of between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 tons.

The price of what coke there is on the market is regulated by the urgency of the demand for it. If the consumers need it so badly that they are forced to buy, they pay from $3 to $4.50 a ton. This is for furnace. All such prices, however, only small lots are bought. West Virginia, main line and other outside cokes are commanding the quoted prices for Connellsville coke on long contracts. These are $2.25 for furnace, $2.50 and $2.75 for foundry. Standard Connellsville will bring not less than 50 cents to 75 cents a ton more on long contracts covering six months or a year.

The detailed report of the operation and output of the region for the week ending on Saturday, July 5, shows a total of 21,425 ovens, of which 20,668 were active and 757 were idle. The estimated production was 256,600 tons, compared with 249,164 tons the previous week. The decrease in production was caused by a lay-off on the Fourth at most of the works in the region.

Shipments from the Connellsville region last week aggregated 17,574 cars, distributed as follows: To points south, 4,063 cars; 4,063 cars; to points west of Pittsburg, 5,847 cars; to points east of Connellsville, 2,213 cars. Compared with the shipments for the previous week this is a decrease of 585 cars.

The estimated tonnage in the Lower Connellsville region last week was 34,540 tons, compared with 36,776 tons the previous week. This was made from 3,220 ovens, of which 2,963 were active and 256 were idle. Twenty ovens have been added to the Lincoln plant and seven ovens to the Sackett. Shipments were 836 cars, compared with 985 cars the previous week.

HAVE PLANTS NERVES?

Evidences of the Possession of Something Very Like Them.

From the Literary Digest.

It has been said that the only real difference between a plant and an animal is that the former can not move about. Even this does not hold universally, for some of the lower water plants swim about quite freely. But it is certain that many organs that we are accustomed to regard as distinctively animal exist, at least in a rudimentary form, in plants. This would appear to be the case with the nerves, for recent experiment seems to show that plants have a nervous system, although it is of the most primitive kind. A recent investigator, M. Nemec, has just published an account of some researches along this line, which is reviewed in the Revue Scientifique. Says the writer:

"It has long been known that certain parts of plants may be irritated by various means, and that the excitation can be transmitted across a zone that has no power of reaction, to a more or less distant point, where it produces motion. From this it is only a step to the assertion that plants have at least a rudimentary nervous system. Some believe that the propagation is accomplished by successive dehydration of the protoplasm; others think that as the protoplasm is continuous from cell to cell, it may serve in some other way as the agent of a transmission analogous to that which takes place in the nervous system.

"M. Nemec tries to throw some light on the question by experiments on the effect of wounds on the protoplasm. He proves that when roots and other organs are wounded in the course of his investigations two results follow. The first is an accumulation of protoplasm, and perhaps also a nucleus, at the cut or wounded surface, and a movement propagated with decreasing velocity from the wounded part to the healthy parts. The speed varies in different tissues. It is a curious fact that if the wave of condensation (if we may call it so for simplicity) meets a cell which is in process of division it does not affect this cell—it seems to disappear, so far as the cell is concerned, and reappears in the following cell. * * * Just after the cell content is modified (and this is the second phenomenon), it returns to its previous state. But this return is of short duration; a second modification takes place, in which the protoplasm assumes a somewhat gelatinous appearance.

"This second phenomenon is more local than the former; it is propagated less quickly and not so far as the other; and M. Nemec thinks that the first may be due to a disturbance of hydrostatic balance in the cells, while the second is rather caused by the febrile condition that is provoked by the wound. Messrs. Loeb and Mathews would say that it was a coagulation due to rupture of equilibrium of the ions."

An important fact in connection with the possibility of a rudimentary nervous system in plants is a discovery by M. Nemec that the cells are traversed by fibrils which may possibly even pass from one cell to another. These fibrils, which can be seen only by careful staining with an appropriate liquid, are seen most frequently in the excitable and mobile parts of the plant, and so they would seem to be the agents of excitation and motion. In the genus Vicia, the fibrils run along the axis of the root, and M. Nemec found that when a ring-shaped incision was made around the outside, so as not to touch them, the root kept its power of receiving and transmitting stimulation, while if the axis of the root was pierced, so as to wound the fibrils, all excitability was lost. When the point of the root was cut off, sensitiveness to gravity was also lost, since it resides only in the tip of the root; but when the tip had regrown, the sensitiveness did not reappear. In this case M. Nemec found that the continuity of the fibrils was lost; the new ones did not join the old ones, so that the tip of the root was like the end of a finger whose nerves have been severed by a cut. It would not transmit its message to the rest of the plant. The reviewer goes on to say, in conclusion:

"It may be seen that M. Nemec brings facts and arguments to support his thesis; he has opened an interesting field to exploration, and it is desirable that other investigators should follow him in it. The study of organs of transmission more rudimentary than nerves, in inferior animal organisms and in plants, will perhaps assist us to understand the working of the more complex organs that we know under the name of nerves."

GOT A STYLISH HAT CHEAP.

Philadelphia Colored Woman Got a Bargain.

From the Chicago Chronicle.

A Philadelphia woman moving in good society has been cured of a mania for attending rummage sales, but it took a heroic treatment to effect the cure. The other day she went to a sale of the description named in aid of a worthy charity in which she is interested, and came away with minus a $25 hat. It happened this way: A feature of the sale was a counter filled with untrimmed hats, advertised: "Your choice for 50 cents." Now the North Thirty-third street woman didn't want an untrimmed hat at 50 cents, but there was one that caught her fancy for reason of its odd shape, and she simply couldn't resist the temptation to try it on. So she took off the handsome hat she was wearing, placed it on the counter and picked up the untrimmed one. Then she looked around for a mirror. There was only one, and that was away at the other end of the long room. She pushed her way through the crowd, and in the meantime a fat colored woman's eyes were glued to the hat she had left behind on the pile marked: "Your choice for 50 cents." It was a golden opportunity not to be missed. Counting our 50 cents in dimes, nickels and pennies, she shoved them at the innocent young attendant, and made good her escape with the fashionable woman's hat.

QUEEN ARRIVES IN STATE

American Women Preside Over Eight Stalls and in One Contents Are Valued at Three Million Pounds. Lottery Feature Stopped by Police

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, July 10.—The coronation bazaar, which is probably the biggest affair of its kind ever held, and an organization which was chiefly due to the energy of Mrs. Cornelius Adair, Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, wife of the United States ambassador, and other prominent Americans, was opened by Queen Alexandra this afternoon. The bazaar was held under a temporary structure covering 150,000 square feet, in the botanical gardens, Regent's park. It was in aid of the hospital for sick children. Over 5,000 tickets at a guinea each were sold in advance. A bank had been established on the ground, dinners were arranged by Ritz at two guineas per meal, without wine, and altogether every facility was offered to those desiring to spend money.

One of the features of the affair was to have been the raffling of a number of motor cars, pianos and articles of jewelry. For these tickets to the value of thousands of pounds had already been sold here, on the continent and in America, but the police intervened.

The queen, in semi-state, with an escort of Life Guards and accompanied by several members of the royal family, drove to Regents park at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Her majesty was welcomed by the duke and duchess of Fife, the duke and duchess of Teck, and other notabilities. The Indian princes, the colonial premiers, almost all of the members of the diplomatic corps; many of the ministers and representatives of the nobility were assembled around a dias from which the queen declared the bazaar opened.

An inspection of the stalls, of which there were nearly 40, was then commenced. At each stall her majesty was received by the ladies who organized it. At the American court Mrs. Choate and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid accompanied the queen on her tour of inspection. The American court consisted of eight elaborate stalls.

Mrs. Arthur Paget's stall was one of the chief features of the show. Its contents were valued at £3,000,000. Many splendid jewels were lent for exhibition purposes, especially by J. Pierpont Morgan, though purchases could be made from £1,000 to £10,000. The latter price was asked for the De Beers 207 karat diamond shown at the Buffalo exhibition and for the great Southern Cross pearl.

Among the features of the bazaar is a concert hall in addition to all other sorts of amusement. Wealthy supporters of the bazaar provided motor cars to take visitors free of charge from all parts of London to this notable coronation function.

THE QUEEN'S COMPLIMENTS.

Alexandra of England Purchases Copy of Roosevelt's "The Strenuous Life."

LONDON, July 10.—(Copyright Cable.)—Queen Alexandra today at the bazar paid a compliment to President Roosevelt. After being received at the American court by Mrs. Choate and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, she carefully examined the articles they had on sale and selected a volume of President Roosevelt's latest work, saying that she anticipated much pleasure in reading it.

President Roosevelt's volume of essays and addresses entitled, "The Strenuous Life," was published in 1900.

CORONATION FATALITY.

Canadian Girl Killed While Watching Passing of the Queen.

LONDON, July 10. — Shortly after Queen Alexandra passed on her way to open the coronation bazaar, decorations across Langham palace, heavy and sodden with rain, were caught in a squall of wind and fell, dragging down a mass of coping from the top of All Soul's church. Miss Streathy, a Canadian, was killed and several persons were injured.

Miss Streathy was a daughter of Edward W. Streathy, treasurer of the National Deposit Trust Company at Montreal.

MISS GOULD'S BEANS.

Recipients Did Not Cook Them, but Kept Them as Souvenirs.

From the New York Times.

Apropos of cooking, here is the other side of a story of one of the richest women in America. Every one knows of the philanthropies of Miss Helen Gould. Her philanthropy some times takes a personal and practical turn, and upon this occasion it took the form of a talk upon cooking. It was given to a number of poor women upon the East Side. Miss Gould spoke to them of the different cuts of meat, the advantage of taking one's meat basket on one's arm and going to purchase for one's self the suitable meats and vegetables. This was all interesting, but the piece de resistance, so to speak, of the whole talk was in the dissertation upon the cooking of kidney beans and the large proportion of nutriment contained in them. Miss Gould had brought with her a quantity of beans done up in small parcels, a cupful perhaps in each parcel, and one of these was given to each woman present as material for experiments. And were the women pleased? Yes, indeed, they were delighted, and this is the part of the story which comes from the other side—from the people who know the women in their homes.

Did the beans go into the soup or make a nourishing broth for the children, or find their way to the table as a vegetable? Not a bit of it! Every woman considered these beans as precious as if they were so much gold. Had they not been presented to them by Miss Gould, who was not only the philanthropist, but one of the richest women in America? Certainly. And the beans were saved carefully as souvenirs of her, though a few of them were planted in tenement house window gardens, where they are now growing, an esthetic pleasure which Miss Gould did not consider in presenting them.

The Old Darky's Family.

From the New York Times.

It was a good natured looking old colored man, rather seedy and in need of a job, so when he came along and asked the woman who lives in the suburbs if he couldn't spade her little garden for a quarter, she let him do it. After the work was finished she said to him:

"You are from the south, aren't you?" She was a southerner, and recognized the type.

He replied that he was, and told her that he had been born a slave, and that just before the war he and all the members of his family had been sold to different owners. The woman was interested and asked:

"How many were there in your family?"

"Five," he replied. "Me, my brother, and three mules."

LAID CORNER STONE OF NEW EDIFICE

Sixth Presbyterian Congregation Held Appropriate Ceremonies at New Squirrel Hill Church.

The corner stone of the new Sixth Presbyterian church, Forbes street and Murray avenue, Squirrel hill, was laid last evening before a large number of friends and members of the congregation. The services began at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. J. Shane Nichols, pastor of the church, had the exercises in charge and officiated in the laying of the corner stone, assisted by several of the trustees of the church.

The services opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. D. D. McCloud of Barre, Canada. Attorney Robert B. Petty read the history of the church from the time of its organization in 1859 to the present time. James I. Buchanan of the East Liberty Presbyterian church and the Rev. William L. McEwan of the Third Presbyterian church made brief addresses. The Rev. Mr. Nichols spoke of the work of the congregation in the old church at Franklin and Townsend streets and of the regret in leaving it even to move to a better home.

Among the articles placed in the copper box were a copy of the Bible, copies of the daily and religious newspapers, a history of the church, a report of the proceedings of the semi-centennial of the church and of the proceedings of last night. The service closed with a benediction pronounced by the Rev. W. S. Fulton of the Point Breeze Presbyterian church.

FISH PEDDLING.

Preferences of Different Nationalities in Sea Food.

From the New York Post.

The demand for fish is so irregular that it is impossible for many fish stores to prosper. On five days of the week there is but little call for sea food, but on two the situation is reversed. Friday, the Roman Catholics use it in place of meat, and from Friday at sunset to Saturday evening the orthodox Jews prefer it to other forms of animal nutriment. To supply these two classes, gives employment to several hundred peddlers. Thursday is their busy day. They may be found from early morning till nightfall in the neighborhood of Fulton fish market. Here they purchase their stock in trade, and from here they push their little carts to their favorite corners or beats. They seem to have a partiality for fishes which are frozen solid. This partiality is explained by a Fulton market man by the reason that frozen fish costs less than fresh ones, or those which have been kept and preserved by a moderate use of ice.

The supplies depend largely upon the district where they are to be sold. The Irish like cod, the English flounder, Americans bluefish, the Germans smelts, while the Russian Jews are extremely fond of carp, more especially the variety which has the brilliantly colored scale plates. Arrived at their destinations the peddlers have but little time to wait. In many of the districts there are crowds of housewives and daughters standing on the corner waiting for them, but they do not buy at the first purchase. This is the final act and scene of a long drama of bickering and chaffering. Sometimes the buyer denounces the peddler as a cheat, turns and prances off in a high rage, but ere a minute has passed she is back again resuming the argument. Sometimes on busy days a single break like this enables other buyers to step in and purchase all of the dealer's stock. Then there is a worse row with the disappointed buyer than before.

On Hester street on Friday afternoon, it is not uncommon to see 50 push-carts laden with fish standing in long lines up and down the street. The people can always tell the condition of the market by the aspect of the wagon. In very stormy weather, when stocks drop down, and prices go up, the peddlers buy as little as possible.

WAYS OF THE WORLD.

New York Lacks Accommodations for Transient Women.

From the New York Tribune.

"It is not generally known that any unprotected woman who, through some unforeseen accident such as might easily occur in traveling or missing a train, should find herself alone in New York at night would be placed in a serious predicament," said a matron.

"It is a strange but actual fact that she would not be admitted to any hotel, although obviously a gentlewoman, and perfectly able to pay her way. That a masculine stranger should be able without any trouble to find comfortable accommodation anywhere, and a respectable woman be refused shelter, seems almost incredible, but until the much-talked-of woman's hotel becomes an actual fact it is literally true that a woman who might be obliged to stay unexpectedly over night in New York would not have a place to lay her head. If she were ill she might be taken to the hospital, and doubtless there are charitable organizations that would give her shelter, but to acquire the right to board and lodging in an ordinary way would be impossible.

"That a delicately nurtured young girl of good social position should have to face such a state of affairs if she found herself accidentally alone in New York passes belief. An incident which occurred last summer might happen to any woman similarly placed. The victim was Miss X., whose family had closed their house for the summer, and were spending the season on the coast of Maine. She herself had been visiting friends at Long Branch, and found through some mistake on reaching New York that she had missed the last connection for the night. Being a young woman of an independent turn of mind, and after wiring her people that she had been detained, she got her dinner comfortably at the railway restaurant and then hailing a cab drove to a hotel where she frequently had attended and given luncheon parties in the winter.

"To her dismay and consternation, however, she was curtly informed by the night clerk that no unaccompanied women were admitted. There were several men standing about the office, and, dreading any publicity, she hastily retreated and sat down in the parlor to consider the situation. She soon remembered to have heard before that women were not admitted to hotels in New York if they were alone, and she decided that she would not expose herself to a second refusal; but to go somewhere was a necessity. Her first thought was of their own empty house, but the keys were in the charge of a burglar-proof society, so that was impossible. All her friends were out of town. Finally, she thought of a little seamstress that the family employed, and whose address she remembered—the one person in all the whole city that a popular New York girl, with hosts of friends and belonging to a well-known wealthy family, could think of as a refuge. So once more taking a cab she drove to the dressmaker's, who received her with kindness and wonder, and gave up her own room to her for the night. 'If any one told me,' said the girl afterward in narrating her experiences, 'that in my own New York I could possibly be treated as a pariah and an outcast I would never have believed him.'"

MORGAN NOT A POKER PLAYER.

On the Contrary, the Financier Says Harsh Things About the Game.

In Harper's Weekly appears the following anecdotes:

"While idling upon the deck on an ocean steamship recently the attention of a group of voyagers, comprising several prominent Americans and two English baronets, was directed to the fact that no less than a dozen passengers were deeply engrossed in books relating to bridge whist. Whereupon the merits of that fascinating game were discussed. The most interesting point was reached when Sir Edward Colebrooke wondered whether it was quite patriotic for Americans to dislodge their famous national game. 'Meaning draw poker?' ejaculated Mr. Morgan.

"'That is not a game characteristic of the American people. It never was, it never will be. It is a bad game. It is based upon a lie. The man who has the greatest capacity for deceit wins. To become a strong player he studies to develop the most ignoble and most un-American faculty. The effect upon boys is to make them think deceit and bluff are smart and essential to success in work as well as in play. It is an insidious game and ought to be abolished. Nothing could be more foreign to American ideas. The man who labeled it our typical national game ought to be shot. I never heard it referred to by that term without wanting to shoot him.'

"The Sleeping Beauty," a cut-out booklet for children, and a beautiful picture, entitled "God Bless Papa," will be the TWO SUPPLEMENTS of next Sunday's Gazette.

WHY SAVAGES OF NEW GUINEA ARE CANNIBALS

A British Missionary Tells Some Personal Experiences.

SOME RECENT INSTANCES

Although the Country Has Been Under British Sovereignty for Thirteen Years the Horrid Is Still Frequent in Some Parts of Country.

That cannibalism is still practiced in British New Guinea after over 13 years of sovereignty is no reflection on the lieutenant governor and his magistrates, says the bishop of New Guinea. With an area of 90,000 square miles on the mainland and 300 islands in proximity, and a force of 150 Papuan police, it is wonderful that it is limited to so few districts. It is safe to prophesy that in five years' time it will be unknown within this portion of the empire.

It is just four years ago since I was first brought face to face with this gruesome practice, says a missionary in the London Express. Scene, the northeast coast, 150 miles away from any government station—a district where we Church of England missionaries were the first to live among the natives.

In front of us a native grass hut with the skull and other bones of a victim of a cannibal feast hung up as spoils of war over the door, and the "consumer" justifying his action in the limited vocabulary that we possess in common. He was a big-framed man, with nothing but a piece of cloth around his loins, a garment hammered out of the bark of the paper mulberry tree. He had a portentously big mouth, and he showed this to its full extent with a splendid sound set of teeth, and a tongue blood-red from the juice of the betel nut.

He then stroked his gullet up and down with one hand, as with the other he pointed to the remains of his vanquished foe hanging over the door of his hut. "The government say it's wrong, and the missionaries say it's wrong; but it is very good!" This was his plea for cannibalism. He knows better now, does my village friend. Twice a Sunday for three years past he has attended divine service and learned that since the God-man lived on earth a human life, humanity is sacred and cannibalism is an outrage.

White Victims.

The year 1901 was marked by a heavy roll of victims to cannibalism. Whether the number exceeded those of previous years may be questioned. Each year, at any rate, we know better what is going on. Still, the fact that there were four white victims marked last year unenviably.

In February a party of diggers were making their way inland to the Yodda gold field, over some desperate country that experience alone can help one to realize, when they were cut off by a crowd of savages. Two were killed and eaten; another, a German, got away, but died a day or two afterward of exhaustion. The remains of the unfortunate man were found, and a party of their mates went out into the district and made horrible reprisals.

In April, on Easter day, the "Queen of Seasons," James Chalmers, who for 27 years had risked dangers of missionary work among savage tribes, made his last attempt to win a wild district for civilization and the prince of peace, and the brave old Christian warrior met a similar fate with one white companion and 12 native helpers. The government had to treat the matter as they would the murder of peaceable settlers, and the expedition, being attacked by the cannibals, hammered them severely and burned their villages.

I need not describe the other instances of cannibalism that occurred last year, except to say that I have in my possession the lower jawbone of a boy of 14 or 15 who was killed and eaten not more than three miles from the coast in September last. When brought to me it had still portions of flesh adhering to it. This happened some 40 miles from our nearest mission station and caused me special regret, because I had fixed upon that very place for our next extension, and had we established ourselves there a year ago that poor lad would be living now in peace and security. Objectors to missions please take notice.

Just a Bad Habit.

But why do these cannibal feasts take place? Is it pure savagery, or is it a natural craving for animal food, which cannot be satisfied in any other way? I would offer an opinion on this subject with considerable diffidence. It is, in fact, not easy to get materials for a definite conclusion at all.

When natives are in the cannibalistic state we are not sufficiently in touch with them to know their language and discuss it thoroughly. By the time we are able to converse fluently with them they have abandoned the practice, and when this habit is once given up I know nothing that the Papuan is so soon ashamed of, and, being ashamed of, does not care to discuss.

Besides, he is not accustomed to think out the reasons for doing a thing, and probably never had a reasoned reason, or thought why he did it, till we asked him. All we can get out of the villager, in answer to the question why he eats man, is such replies as: "It's flesh," "It's very good," or "It's our custom."

I think myself the consuming of the victim slain in the raid is the natural consequence of the raid. Tribes raid one another largely to take compensation for lives killed in a previous raid. "A life for life" is New Guinean all over, and as the balance is never kept quite level there is always an account to be paid off. Apart from this obligation, I believe the New Guinea savage raids as a change from the monotony of agriculture. The people in that island are not nomadic tribes, but live a fairly settled life in villages and grow all their own vegetable food.

Child Cannibals.

The Papuan rebounds from severe agriculture, and goes on a raid. Having raided and killed, he consumes, as a natural consequence, because the "flesh is very sweet. He eats it as he would eat pig.

It is smoked on the fire and dismembered the same way. Then it is wrapped round in green leaves and tied up with line and carried home in little parcels on poles. Then the pole is balanced on the man's shoulder, and the little bundles decorate the pole on each side of the man's shoulder. The boys and girls eat it at once. Their parents put it before them, and they really do not inquire if it is pig or man. They eat it just the same. This, I suggest, is the true view of the horrid practice of cannibalism.

The idea that it is due to the natural craving for flesh meat is not borne out by my New Guinea experience, for the river district, where cannibalism is most prevalent in that land, is the area where native pig does most abound. The rivers have only to be somewhat flooded, and the pigs are driven on to the higher ground, where they are easily speared. I have heard of one part of the coast where only the arms and legs of human victims were eaten, but I have had no means of investigating this report.

As a Christian missionary I would draw what seems to me the obvious conclusion that Christian missions in such a land as British New Guinea are powerful aids to the cessation of bloodshed and cannibalism, and on humanitarian and imperial grounds, apart from any other, deserve far more general respect, not to add support, than they receive.

What They Did.

From the Baltimore American.

"We had a delightful time last week," said the city cousin, who was describing the joys of metropolitan life. "One evening we trolleyed out to a suburban home and ping-ponged until nearly midnight, and next day we automobiled to the country club and golfed until dark."

"We had a purty good time last week, too," ventured the country cousin, with a sarcastic smile. "One day we buggied over to Uncle Josiar's and us boys got out in the back lot and baseballed all afternoon, and after we had dinnered we sneaked up to the loft and lit a candle and pokered until I had ever blamed cent in the crowd."

The Course of a Channel Turned.

It was only the other day that the Pittsburgh & Western railroad bought a large tract of land with the intention of turning the river channel an entirely different direction.

It's a much easier and a far greater thing to change the channel of life. In youth one can establish the habits of thrift and economy as easily as those of the reckless, don't-care sort.

Weather—Fair. Friday, July 11.

It must be a great pleasure to shop in a store where goods are fresh with the season's newness, yet sold under clearance prices. We judge this from the great crowds that have been coming here this week.

Two Strong Attractions in the Basement.

The clearance sales in the American Wash Goods and Bedding Departments of the Basement, to which may be added the remarkable prices for which this class of goods are now being sold, lower than ever before known—have conspired to keep these large sections crowded through the week.

As a study in household economy the quotations on bedding are fine problems; as a study in personal economy, the American Wash Goods, with their very small prices are equally attractive.

BEDDING.

70c each—sold for $1—500 large size crocheted Bedspreads, hemmed ready for use. Marseilles patterns.

90c each—sold for $1.25—200 extra fine crocheted Bedspreads — double bed size—new patterns.

50c each—the sheeting alone worth 65c — 1,000 Bleached Muslin Sheets — double bed size, 81x90 inches. They are ready made, torn and ironed.

Some fine Robe Blankets—nice for bath wrappers and couch covers — reduced to almost half prices: $12.50 grades for $7.50 each; $7 grades for $4.50 each.

Extra fine wool filled Comforts, covered with best quality plain Jap. Silk—$16.50 grades $10 each; $14.50 grades $9 each.

WASH GOODS.

8½c yard — sold for 12½c — Bates' Seersucker Ginghams. The reduced price is less than they can be bought wholesale.

7½c yard—sold for 20c and 25c —10,000 yards fine Irish Dimities.

12½c yard—sold for 20c and 25c —10,000 yards fine Madras Ginghams. No off styles or colorings in the lot.

15c yard—sold for 25c—7,000 yards fine mercerized Madras —best styles and colorings. Pinks, blues, tans, greens and other popular colors.

15c yard—sold for 25c—5,000 yards Silk Pongenette. Most beautiful printings shown this season. Styles are taken from highest grade foulards.

Two Clearance Numbers in Hosiery.

25c pair, 5 pairs for $1—sold 35c pair — Children's Egyptian Black Cotton Stockings—one-one rib.

Friday Specials in the Linen Department.

A few tempting paragraphs that will make you eager to know what other clearance bargains are shown in this big department of the street floor of the annex.

7c each for hemmed Huck Towers—17x32 inches—sold for 10c.

12½c each for hemmed Huck Towels—20x40 inches — sold for 18c.

25c each for hemstitched Huck Towels with damask borders —21x43 inches—sold for $4 a dozen.

15c each for Creponette Bureau Scarfs — 18x54 inches — sold for 25c.

45c a yard for heavy cream Table Damask—64 inches—sold for 60c.

New Felt Outing Hats.

Looks a little like disparaging straw hats, this talking of felt hats so early. But women want them and will have them.

And we are not the ones to say nay.

Beautiful examples — white, castor, navy and black—broad brim, flat crown effects.

Trimmings of scarfs and wings. $5 to $18.

$1 Yard Imported Embroidered Swisses Down to Half.

Yesterday afternoon our buyer of Swisses drew a line through the $1, and said "Tomorrow (Friday) sell these for 50c yard."

St. Gall Swisses selling for 50c a yard! What have we come to?

Why, to the time of clearance, of course. What care we for loss so long as we find new owners for our summer goods.

Handsome effects — embroidered dots, rings and geometrical designs, on white and colored grounds, and also the wanted solid black.

New Neckwear for Women.

We step aside from clearance news to tell women about several lots of new things for the neck.

New Lace Collars, 50c to $6 each.

New Mull Automobile Ties, 12½c to $1.50 each.

New Mull Stocks—bishop effects—50c and $1.

...S DEPLOY ON BATTLEFIELD OF GETTYSBURG

National Guardsmen Busy Preparing Their Camp.

ABUNDANT WATER SUPPLY

Grounds Are Lighted by Electricity and Supplied With Ample Postal Facilities — Distinguished Visitors Are Expected Next Week.

By ROBERT WRAY,
Staff Correspondent.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 10.—A radiant summer sun this afternoon set upon the historic hills and valleys of Gettysburg, where spotless tents of the National guard covered the fields. To the sound of music long lines of blue and khaki deployed, as the troop trains were emptied and the soldiers moved to their camps on grounds made famous by the heroes of 1863.

Soon the streets of the town were filled with marching men. Martial airs, familiar here for two score years, were heard with rapture by those who had seen Meade's veterans.

This is a night of busy preparation and at dawn 9,000 soldiers will have sought their quarters in the city of canvas that today was erected upon the battlefield. The Napoleon gun, a cherished relic of the guard, which at many previous camps has fired the opening salute, stands in front of division headquarters, grim and black, ready to do duty as of yore.

For the first time in the history of the division the camp will be lighted by electricity. Eight arc lights in front of the division headquarters will cast their glow across the plain where 39 years ago only the dim starlight at night shone upon the field of carnage. One lamp will be placed at each brigade headquarters and two at each regimental headquarters, one being on the kitchen line and one on the color line.

Good Water Supply.

Early morning inspections of the hygienic and sanitary conditions will be made daily and reports will be sent to the brigade medical officer.

The water supply is the best that the division has enjoyed at Gettysburg. A three-inch line is run to each brigade, furnishing a supply to each regimental cook house. Each brigade has its own pipe line and should the water give out at any point, only one brigade would be affected. The pumping station is equipped with the most modern machinery and will be in operation day and night. The water is furnished from one of the most rapidly flowing mountain streams in the state and furnishes 40,000 gallons an hour.

The outlook this morning was gloomy when the details from the various organizations began the work of occupying their tents. A misty rain was falling, but despite this discomfort the men continued their task and everything was in readiness when the regiments marched to the camp at nightfall. The Fourteenth's detail was the last to arrive, but Quartermaster Livingston lost no time in getting his equipment from the cars, and before sunset headquarters canvas had been erected. Tomorrow company streets will be laid out and first sergeant tents will be put up. Upon the arrival of the regiments the company tents will be pitched and aligned. By sunset the 9,000 men composing the division of the National Guard will be comfortably housed under canvas.

Ample Postal Facilities.

The postal facilities excel those of any previous encampment. Just across the road from division headquarters a long wooden building has been erected for the postoffice and the office of the division quartermaster. It contains four rooms on one floor, which are used, besides other purposes, for a telegraph office. The postoffice is in charge of W. B. Mellhenny of Gettysburg, who has received permission from the government to establish a branch office. Three collections will be made daily and three mounted carriers will lift and distribute the mail. Twenty-one United States mail boxes will be located in the camp.

Trains run through the camp, and baggage and supplies from the quartermaster and commissary departments are expeditiously handled. Gov. Stone is expected in camp next Monday. The cavalry battalion will meet him at the station and escort him to camp. The guns of the batteries will salute upon his arrival. Troops B and H of the Second United States calvary, on the march from Fort Myer, Va., are expected on Saturday morning. The governor's troop of Harrisburg will leave that place on Saturday morning. Adjt.-Gen. Stewart says the distance is about 50 miles, and he expects the troopers to arrive late the same afternoon. Adjt.-Gen. Corbin and Secretary of War Root are expected here next Wednesday or Thursday morning. Should either come, a review will be tendered them by the division.

A rumor is rife throughout the camp tonight that Regimental Adjutant Fred Eggers had resigned and that ex-Capt. James A. Bigger, the military instructor at Morganza, had been appointed by Col. Rutlege to succeed him. Col. Rutlege has not arrived with his command and the rumor could not be verified.

A big surprise is in store for Lieut.-Col. W. F. Richardson, division quartermaster and keeper of the state arsenal. Some fine day Col. Richardson will be called out before the officers of the division and for his long and faithful service will be rewarded by a token such as never before was bestowed upon an officer of the national guard. He will meet the officers of the division at the surprise party, and the memento will be presented in the presence of all of Col. Richardson's comrades. The Gazette representative has information that Col. Richardson, after the presentation, will never lack "good time."

State to Build a Number of County Bridges; Beaver Falls Business Man Shoots Himself Dead

STATE IS TO BUILD BRIDGES

Architects Selected at Harrisburg to Prepare the Plans.

TWO PITTSBURGHERS NAMED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Architects were appointed today by the Board of public buildings and grounds, of which Gov. Stone is president, to prepare plans and specifications for the erection by the state of a large number of bridges under the act of 1895, which provides for the rebuilding of country bridges burned or carried away by flood.

The architects are Andrew J. Whitney, Rome, Bradford county; Mark D. Bowman, Mahanoy City; Hermann Laub, Pittsburgh; Oscar E. Thompson, Phoenixville; Emil Swensson, Pittsburgh.

The bridges to be replaced will be erected in Juniata, Berks, Clarion, Forest, Bradford, Clearfield, Jefferson, Lycoming, Lackawanna, Wyoming, Sullivan, Wayne, Carbon and Luzerne counties. The total cost of these bridges is estimated at $500,000.

The board has appointed George Amon of Polk superintendent of construction for the new buildings for the hospital for the feeble-minded, for which appropriations were granted by the last legislature. George W. Hall of Norristown was appointed superintendent of construction during the erection of the refrigerating plant for the state insane hospital at Norristown.

DIVORCE STORY DENIED

Gen. Miller's Attorney Says the Report Published in Philadelphia Is Incorrect.

FRANKLIN, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—Maj.-Gen. Charles Miller, N. G. P., who is alleged to have been sued for divorce by his wife, left today for Camp Meade, Gettysburg, before the copies of a Philadelphia paper containing the announcement that he had been made defendant in a divorce suit reached this city. His attorney, W. H. Forbes, gave out the following statement.

"There is absolutely no truth in the published statement. For many years Mrs. Miller has been known to the citizens of Franklin to be acting in a queer, if not in an insane, manner. Her condition has lately been growing worse, and on Tuesday last Gen. Miller, acting upon the advice of some of the most eminent experts on insanity, began proceedings to inquire into the condition of Mrs. Miller's mind. The records here show that application was made to the court for the appointment of a commissioner in lunacy and Judge Criswell appointed Edward E. Hughes, an attorney of this city. A jury of six persons has been summoned by the sheriff and the hearing will commence tomorrow."

A reporter called at the office of the prothonotary and was advised that no divorce proceedings had been instituted against Gen. Miller.

ATTORNEY BYERS TAKES TRIP WEST

Greensburg Story of Missing Bonds and Money Still Unexplained.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., July 10.—After waiting several days for someone to arrest him on a charge of detaining the bonds, money and securities to the amount of $200,000 belonging to Jacob Byers, Attorney William S. Byers, Democratic candidate for congress, packed his grip and with a party of Pittsburghers left for the far west, where it is said he will invest in mineral territory.

Mr. Byers alleged before he left that the Scottdale preacher, the Rev. Mr. Ferner, would be made to explain why he became so deeply interested in the bond matter. All search today failed to reveal the hiding place of the valuables.

It was intimated today by friends of Lawyer Byers that it is possible that someone unknown impersonated the attorney at the home of his grand-uncle, precisely as was done with a relative of the attorney at Columbus, O., five years ago. That case became famous, but the lawyer was able to clear himself of the charge.

A sensation was created in the case this evening by the confidential announcement of another lawyer that were he paid $25,000 in cash he would find the missing securities.

PREVENTED A WRECK.

Telegraph Operator Disobeyed Orders and Stopped Runaway Train.

ALTOONA, PA., July 10—Oral Seaman, a Pennsylvania railroad operator at Allegrippus, eight miles west of here, for a second time last night disobeyed instructions about running trains on different tracks and averted a wreck of many cars and loss of life.

Coductor Boughamer's coal train of 40 cars ran away on the heavy mountain grade, after leaving Gallitzin tunnel. When it reached Allegrippus it was running over 90 miles an hour. Seaman saw it coming and when it was within 15 car lengths of the switch from the No. 1 to No. 2 track, he threw the switch and the runaway ran around the Horseshoe curve and was stopped.

A slow freight had been standing ahead of the switch and all the crew gathered in the caboose on the rear of the train. The other time Seaman disobeyed orders he also averted a wreck.

BUSINESS MAN KILLS HIMSELF

W. H. Hoon, of Beaver Falls, Sends Bullet Through His Brain.

NO KNOWN CAUSE FOR DEED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER FALLS, PA., July 10.—W. H. Hoon, one of the best-known business men of this town, and an old resident, was found lifeless on the bed in his room with a revolver at his head today. Dr. McPherson and Dr. Elliott said he had been dead a couple of hours. It was evident he had committed suicide; but all are at a loss to know the cause.

The position of the body and the wounds showed that he had taken the revolver in his left hand, while lying on his back, and shot himself in the left side of the head, making a scalp wound. He had then changed the weapon to the right hand, and when it was discharged, the ball passed through the skull and came out at the forehead. He evidently died without a struggle.

No note was left nor had he spoken to anyone in a despondent vein. He was of a jovial disposition. His wife died over a year ago, and since that time he had been living with his son, Charles, and wife. They were both away today and Mr. Hoon confined himself to his room, while Mrs. Kirkwood, a neighbor, prepared dinner.

The deceased was about 60 years old. He came here 35 years ago from Zelienople and conducted a tin shop since, being very successful in business. He was a Mason and an Odd Fellow. He is survived by four children, Miss Pearl, a clerk in the postoffice at Philadelphia, Sherman, a brakeman on the Beaver Falls accommodation on the Ft. Wayne railroad; Charles M., a clerk in the First National bank of this place, and Frank, who was connected in business with his father.

Idle Money.

The savings department of the Pennsylvania Trust Company of Pittsburgh, 410 Smithfield street, offers an immediate investment for idle money at 4 per cent interest, and a capital and surplus of $800,000 assures its safety.

I was troubled with my stomach, and when I would eat anything it would almost kill me. I had to vomit everything up again and it would be as sour as vinegar, and if it did not come up it would cramp me something awful. Finally my head began to ache, and at last it got so bad I could hardly see anything, for it seemed to go around like a top. A lady came to see me one morning and advised me to try the wonderful Ripans Tabules. I got one 5-cent box, and the first one I took seemed to take effect in five minutes' time, and before she went home I was feeling pretty good.

GARLAND AS AUCTIONEER

In 20-Minute Sale at the Custom House He Disposed of Some Valuable Furs.

Furs smuggled into Pittsburgh from Canada were sold at auction yesterday in the office of M. M. Garland, surveyor of customs, at the government building. The sale was attended by the persons who had purchased the furs originally and by local dealers in fur goods.

The bidding was very tame and the sale was over in 20 minutes. The articles which Mr. Garland had for sale consisted of one fur rug, valued at $13 50; one fox skin, $10 50; one small bear rug, $27; one seal skin sacque, $395 75; one fur collar, $490 50, and one bear skin boa, $83 75.

Mr. Garland did the auctioneering. Assistant United States District Attorney D. M. Miller was one of the chief bidders for the seal skin sacque. He bid $80, but the garment went to the original owner, who offered $82. With the exception of the fur rug, which was valued at $50 and was sold at that price, all the other articles were sold for about one-half their real value. There was a little spirited bidding for the fur collar, valued at $490 50, by the original purchaser and several representatives of local fur houses. It was sold to the original buyer for $200.

The articles sold yesterday were a part of a large lot of furs and other goods smuggled across the border from Canada during the Buffalo exposition. When the goods were confiscated the officers were told by the purchasers that the Canadian dealers had told them that the goods could be taken over the border without duty being paid on them. Many articles of wearing apparel seized were later claimed by the owners and the duty and penalty tax paid.

MURDER IS THE CHARGE.

Train Dispatcher Vickers Held by Coroner to Be Criminally Responsible for Eliza Quinn's Death.

Coroner McGeary has issued a warrant for the arrest of L. E. Vickers, the train dispatcher at Sharpsburg, charging him with the responsibility for the wreck that occurred on the Pittsburgh & Western railroad on July 3, which resulted in the death of Eliza Quinn, a passenger. Deputy Coroner H. Dempsey went to Sharpsburg to place Vickers under arrest, but was unable to find him, as he was out of the city on his vacation.

It was learned yesterday by Coroner McGeary that train No. 124 left Allegheny 25 minutes before train No. 43, which crashed into it beyond Sharpsburg. Coroner McGeary says Vickers was criminally responsible for the death of Eliza Quinn because he started train No. 43 out of Sharpsburg station one and one-half minutes after No. 124 departed from that place. The warrant charges Vickers with murder.

MILITIA IN ARMY MANEUVERS.

National Guard Expected to Be Well Represented at Fort Riley.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10.—The war college board, consisting of Maj.-Gen. Young, Brig.-Gens. Carter and Bliss and Maj. Green, held its first meeting today. The session was preliminary to the organization of the college proper. The subject of autumn maneuvers for the army was referred to the board, and a circular was prepared, which has been addressed to all the governors of states by Adjt.-Gen. Corbin, in reference to the participation of the militia in the proposed maneuvers. The circular says:

The department contemplates having autumn maneuvers on the government reservation at Fort Riley, Kan., about the end of September. It is intended to bring together, if possible, not less than a division of nine regiments of infantry and as many more as can be induced to participate from the various states. The cavalry and artillery contingents will be furnished by the regular army, and not less than three regiments of cavalry.

The secretary of war regrets that the legislation known as the Dick militia bill did not reach the senate in time for action before adjournment of the last session, and the department will not be able this year to give that assistance to the militia regiments participating in the maneuvers which the secretary had hoped to extend to them. However, it is thought that the great good to come from such joint maneuvers may prove a sufficient inducement to the states, particularly those in the immediate vicinity or within easy communication of Fort Riley, Kan., to have a portion of their organized militia mobilized at that point instead of in their usual encampments.

In case no organized bodies can be designated to participate in the maneuvers, the secretary would be pleased to have an officer detailed to attend the proposed exercises, in the hope that his observation may lead to increased interest hereafter.

BYERS WON THE OPEN GOLF PLAY AT SEWICKLEY

Defeated Ormiston and Horne in Yesterday's Matches.

C. I. SHANNON ALSO VICTOR

Edgeworth Man Retired Wurzell in Morning and J. T. Moore in the Final Contest—Porter Lost Close Semi-Final to Horne.

E. M. Byers, the amateur champion of Western Pennsylvania, won the Allegheny Country club's open tournament yesterday afternoon by a score of 4 up and 2 to play in the final match with B. S. Horne, who had in the morning disposed of J. E. Porter, the favorite, by a sensational 15-foot putt on the eighteenth green.

E. M. BYERS.
Winner of the Open Golf Tournament.

Byers in his semi-final contest disposed of George Ormiston, former local champion, who last year figured in the final match with Porter. These two morning matches furnished the best golf of the day's play, which was universally slow as compared with Wednesday's fast contests. Both were close and hard-fought and only decided on the last hole, Ormiston throwing away a chance to halve the hole by missing an easy four-foot putt.

Shannon Won Second Cup.

C. I. Shannon of the Edgeworth club, Sewickley, won the consolation cup in the final match with T. J. Moore of the Westmoreland Country club, The Sewickley player, who was in his best form and strong on his short game, disposed of G. W. Wurzell of Edgewood in the morning, 3 up and 1 to play, while Moore defeated Chester McVay of Edgeworth, 6 up and 5 to play. McVay, the youngest player in the tournament, but 17 years old, has furnished one of the features by his strong play.

In the final match for the first cup neither Byers nor Horne were in form, the champion being badly off in his putting, while Horne was nervous and very weak in his approach game. His accurate green play, which defeated Porter in the morning, was not in evidence. The rather strong wind also gave Byers, the stronger driver, an advantage, and Horne had his full share of bad luck, being several times stymied by his opponent. Horne never had the advantage, though he played a plucky up-hill game.

Both Made Weak Start.

Both started poorly, Horne taking the third in 6 to Byers' 7. Byers took the fifth, Horne's approach being weak, and the sixth in 4, by a beautiful dead approach. Horne took the eighth and the champion was one up at the turn.

The start of the second nine was disheartening for Horne after he had won the ninth by a beautiful putt from a stymied position. Byers rolled his cleek shot down the hill almost dead to the hole on the "bowl" green and thus stymied Horne, though the hole was easy for him from his remarkable position.

Both got into difficulties on the eleventh and Byers again stymied Horne and was 3 up. They halved the twelfth, but Byers was 4 up with the thirteenth, in 4.

Horne's Lost Opportunity.

Horne lost a chance on the fourteenth. Byers went into the sharp ravine on his iron shot and Horne promptly followed suite from a much better position. Byers just reached the top edge of the bank with his third shot and was short of the green on his next. Horne seemed to have a chance, but his mashie shot only just jumped the bank of the creek and on his fifth, an easy approach, he was weak, only half climbing the terrace of the green. Horne's sixth shot was dead to the hole, which he halved in seven, where he had a chance for it in six. The fifteenth Horne took by a better approach putt and 3 down. He lost the sixteenth also by a weak approach, after playing well out of difficulty.

Byers drive was a beauty to the edge of the green, while Horne went into the long grass half way up the hill near the woods. He got beautifully out with a perfect mashie loft, but by a weak approach was barely on in three and took five, where a four was possible. Byers overran the hole on his putt and was dead in three, winning the match on an easy putt. The cards:

Oil Developments

Developments in the lower southwest fields yesterday were not productive of any gushers. Only a few wells were completed and all small or dry. In the new Gordon development in Wetzel and Marion counties, West Virginia, the big wells were keeping up at a good gait, except the South Penn's No. 4 on the W. N. Cunningham farm, which had slipped back to 350 barrels, or 100 barrels less than it had produced the previous day.

On the P. H. Gump farm, adjacent the Cunningham, the South Penn thought it could stimulate its test by giving it a dose of the high explosive fluid, but it failed to respond with an increased production. The Southern Oil Company & Greentee were getting ready to give their test on the W. N. Cunningham farm the same sort of treatment.

Producing 700 Barrels a Day.

On Big Knot run, Clay district, Ritchey county, the Three Joes Oil Co.'s No. 1 on the Elroy Wagner farm is holding up at 700 barrels a day. The scramble to start new work in this district goes on at a rapid pace. Derricks are springing up in every direction from the gusher and the rush of drilling work on all sides resembles activity witnessed in the early days of the development of the Whisky Run pool, located some few miles to the east of the present excitement.

South and east of this well several miles in the vicinity of Spencer, Smith & Co.'s producer on the W. S. Dye farm, there is almost as much eagerness to start new work. The prospects for a gusher are not so promising, but that makes no difference so long as the chances for paying producers seem good.

In the St. Mary's district, Pleasants county, A. J. Stewart has completed his No. 3 on the E. Griffith farm and has a show for a 10-barrel producer in the Cow Run sand.

On McKim creek, Meade district, the Carter Oil Company has drilled its No. 21 on the J. L. Poe farm into the Big Injun and has a show for a 50-barrel producer.

Phillies Get a Gasser.

In the Shingletown district, Tyler county, the Philadelphia Company has drilled its test well on the James Thompson farm into the Big Injun sand and has a good gasser in that formation.

In the Beatls Mills district, Lewis county, the South Penn has drilled its No. 5 on the Pat Mullady farm through the fifth sand and has a duster.

On the east side of the Indian Fork development in Gilmer county, the same company has drilled through the fifth sand and the well has 1,600 feet of fluid in the hole. It will probably make a 15-barrel pumper.

On the Ohio side of the lower southwest the "Yellowhammers" have an off day. More dusters than producers were completed and some of the former so small that they will soon join the majority.

In the Keener sand development on the Pearson farm in Monroe county near the Washington county line, the Fisher Oil Company has drilled in its test on the A. J. Morris farm and has a 15-barrel pumper.

In the same district the Southern Oil Company has drilled its No. 7 on the John Winland farm through the Big Injun and has a duster.

On Wolf creek, Morgan county, E. Bowman & Sons have drilled in No. 7 on the A. S. & M. B. Wagner farm and missed the duster aggregation by a very small margin. F. M. Selby & Co. drew a blank when they drilled in their test on the Nathaniel Spears farm.

Across the Hartford county line in Guernsey county, Gumbert & Co. have completed their No. 3 on the Smith farm and got nothing but a light gas pressure.

In the Scio field, Harrison county, McKay & Collins have completed their No. 5 on the O. S. Dutton farm and have a duster.

One in the Local Fields.

In the Murdockeville extension near Burgettstown, Washington county, Pa., W. C. Kennedy & Co. have drilled in their test on the Duncan heirs' farm and have a very small well.

"Haunts of Fish and Game."

This is the title of an artistic little book just issued by the Grand Trunk Publicity Department, in which the sportsman and angler, the tourist and those who are seeking for health and alert for pleasure, may find information that will guide them in the choice of a rendezvous for the gratification of their tastes or the exercise of their skill. It tells of the charms of the Diamond lake, the Ontario Highlands, the Thousand Islands and St. Lawrence river, the Rideau river and lakes and Lake St. John. An interesting account is given of the successful experiment made by the Grand Trunk and the Ontario government to replenish the waters of the northern lakes by transplanting parent bass. In all some 19,000 small mouth bass were transplanted from Lake Erie and distributed where needed. The cover of this brochure will at once strike the eye of the sportsman, for it shows the deer as it becomes the mark for the hunter's rifle.

A copy may be obtained free by applying to G. T. Bell, general passenger and ticket agent, Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, Canada.

FRIDAY, JULY 11, 1902.

FOURTEEN PAGES.

An Underground Horror.

Another of those terrible calamities that mark the history of coal mining has occurred at Johnstown. The exact loss of life cannot be known for some time, but it is certainly great. There is ineffaceable sorrow in store for many families in the end. In the meantime there is an agony of suspense that is even more terrible in its way than the assurance of bereavement. Words fail utterly to do justice to the anguish and misery brought by an explosion in a coal mine, literally in the twinkling of an eye.

Beyond the fact that fire damp—which is almost identical with natural gas—was the explosive medium, little is known about the cause of the disaster. Probably not much more may ever be learned. Whether the gas had been present in alarming quantity, or whether it came with a rush from some newly-opened pocket; whether it was ignited by lamp, by blast or by spark from a pick; these things may never be definitely determined. If they could be they might be of value in mine management. But for the present the public is more deeply interested in the awful horror of the situation, the hope that many may escape and the heroic efforts at rescue.

Off for Gettysburg.

In their new and resplendent uniforms the members of the various detachments of the state guard from this city, including the Fourteenth and Eighteenth regiments and Battery B, made a fine showing as they last night marched through the streets of the city preparatory to embarking for Gettysburg, the location of the annual encampment of the state guard. The encampment this year promises unusual interest and pleasure for the soldier boys. Gettysburg is rich in memories of war, while the physical advantages to be derived from the excellent location of the camp will add greatly to the pleasure of the troops. Pittsburgh is unanimously proud of the several detachments of the state guard that she sends to the encampment. They are soldierly men, not only in appearance and general accoutrement, but many of them have seen gallant service in defense of their flag. The Pennsylvania state guard as a whole is a splendid body of citizen soldiery, ranking in history and actual excellence of drill and equipment with any like organization in the union.

The enthusiastic goodbyes and cheers that greeted the local companies as they marched to the train last night evidenced the civic pride felt in their achievement and were an earnest of the good wishes that follow them upon their annual outing.

Pittsburgh and the Warships.

With only one battleship to build in a navy yard, and several navy yards to choose from, Secretary Moody was foreordained to displease somebody. He chose the Brooklyn navy yard and made Greater New York happy, but he has disappointed some other cities, notably Philadelphia and Boston. These two towns take it very hard. Philadelphia is quite convinced that League island possesses all the facilities for construction that any self-respecting battleship could require, and is very sorry that the order did not go its way. Boston feels that in slighting the Charlestown yard Secretary Moody has not only overlooked a good thing, but also manifested callous indifference to the interests of his own state, for Mr. Moody is a Massachusetts man.

The fact is, however, that the secretary of the navy has exercised his judgment in the government's best interests. The naval appropriation bill gave him only $175,000 with which to make good deficiencies that might be present in the yard he should choose. He has selected the place where the least money will be needed for that purpose. Pittsburgh does not need to concern herself much about the place where the navy yard battleship shall be constructed. She will content herself with furnishing much of the material that will go into the fighting machine, with the hope that some day the government of the United States will recognize the invaluable services of this city in the building of the nation's war vessels by bestowing her name upon one of the big ships. Perhaps the designation of Pittsburgh is held in reserve for some future queen of the American navy.

Fair Crop Conditions.

There is nothing in the government crop report to uphold the bull movement in corn at Chicago. That is simply a corner. The acreage in corn this year, as compared with last, has been increased one per cent west of the Mississippi river and two per cent east of that line, broadly speaking. The condition of the crop at the end of June was $7.5, as compared with 81.3 at the same time last year, and 89.2 the ten-year average. The past ten days must have wrought a material improvement, particularly in the eastern corn states, though this may be offset by floods in Iowa and Nebraska.

There is little difference in the wheat situation between last year and this, so the promise is for an abundant yield at good prices. A much heavier production would depress prices, while a much smaller crop would entail a shortage in supply. The weather has been more erratic than usual during the growing season this year, but it appears to have brought main crops along at about the average rate, after all. What may intervene between this time and September no man can tell, but it is unwise to worry about possible calamities before they are in sight.

The Endeavor Convention.

While the weather interfered slightly with some plans, the Society of Christian Endeavor completed a very successful meeting yesterday. The workers brought enthusiasm to their task and they will return home more than ever filled with the desire for good works. The teachers have disseminated ideas that will doubtless bear fruit. So much for the main objects of the convention. It is to be hoped the delegates have been pleased with this city and with their reception here. It may be hoped they will come again. Pittsburgh is always busy, but it always tries to spare a little time to entertain guests in a hospitable way. The Endeavorers have been heartily welcome and will be again.

Democracy and the Trusts.

There is a perfect din of discord from every Democratic source in the country over what that party would do to the trusts if only given a chance. Out of all the talk there has not so far emerged one sane idea as to Democratic policy anent the trust question. The economic policies of the Democratic party while in control of the national government all tended to throttle progress and bank the fires of industry in our mills and factories. With the coming of prosperity under Republican rule have come the great problems of industrial wealth. To believe for a moment that the impotent and disorganized Democracy could successfully cope with these difficulties is a folly that even the Democrats themselves are not guilty of at heart.

In the partisan clamor over the trusts that the national Democracy is stirring up there is so patently the helpless stumbling in the dark of an issueless party that the calm words of determined and logical counsel uttered by the president of the United States in his brilliant Pittsburgh speech are by comparison like a beacon light along the track of future national safety and well-being.

The Friars in the Philippines.

The vatican has handled with commendable diligence the proposition carried to Rome by Gov. Taft of the Philippine Islands. The United States took the ground that the friars must go, and the vatican agrees, but says that they shall be recalled gradually. Moreover, the note makes the satisfactory concession that the friars shall not return to the parishes they left and where their presence could provoke trouble. It is exceedingly important for the continued peace of the once-troubled districts that clergymen of other nationalities be introduced, and the more Americans there are among the new men the better the results will be.

The animosity of the Filipinos to the friars was explained in an article by Gov. Taft, published in the Outlook a few weeks ago. Under Spanish rule the friars discharged very important civil functions. In the last half century substantially all political power exercised in municipal governments became absorbed by the friars. The friar priest in each parish became the chief of police and the chief of detectives in governmental work. In consequence the deportations and capital punishments which became so common were all laid to the charge of these religious orders. It will be seen why the friars had to flee for their lives when the people rose. Fifty of them were killed and three hundred imprisoned. The friars were cruelly treated, being subjected to many indignities. Driven away from their parishes all over the archipelago, they took refuge in Manila, where the presence of the Americans protected them. Of course, it would never do to permit these friars to return to the parishes from which they were expelled. Disturbances would be inevitable if they should attempt to do so in any considerable number.

The objection of the Filipinos to the friars is purely political. The people generally are devoted Catholics, and while they would prefer priests of their own country to officiate in their parishes, they would welcome priests from America. The determination of the United States government that the friars shall not be sent back among the people who have no confidence whatever in them has no religious significance. It is a peace measure. It assures the natives of the beneficent intentions of this country. The Filipinos of the pueblos are densely ignorant. The problem must be grappled with as it presents itself. Were the natives to see the friars returning they would not stop to consider the changed political relations of the islands. They would remember only the Spanish misrule, of which the friars were the local agents.

A Lesson for Labor.

The news that Kansas and Nebraska farmers are offering three dollars per day for help in their harvest fields came east on the same wires that carried west the information that pants makers in Baltimore had struck against working 18 hours a day for eight dollars a week, and providing themselves with $75 sewing machines to do the work. The two items of news suggest the remedy for a scarcity of labor in one region and inadequacy of rewards for labor in another. Evidently there are too many pants makers in the country and farm laborers are too few. From nearer home than Kansas and Nebraska comes the cry for farm laborers. They are scarce in the counties adjacent to Pittsburgh, and the striking pants makers of Baltimore can doubtless find employment in the harvest fields of Maryland at wages much more remunerative than they can earn in the sweat shops of their city. Let them go to the labor market that is sending out a cry for help at good wages.

Gen. Lee's Views on Cuba.

It is not so much what Gen. Fitzhugh Lee has had to say about conditions in Cuba that is cause for surprise or comment as the almost unanimous disposition manifested in many quarters to put the most doleful construction possible upon his utterances. We find even the Washington Post accepting his remarks as the final word in regard to the future of the island and declaring that there remain but two stages in the affairs of Cuba—anarchy and annexation. Gen. Lee did not mean that. He meant that would be the result unless the United States fulfills its final obligation to the island—that of giving it commercial life.

Cuba has not yet had a fair start. When the United States assumed the duty of freeing the Cubans from the yoke of Spanish oppression a solemn responsibility was undertaken which was not fulfilled when the Stars and Stripes were hauled down in Havana and the government turned over to the Cubans themselves. Morally this government is still responsible for Cuba's well-being. Not until a system of reciprocity sufficiently liberal to meet the financial needs that weigh upon the young republic shall have been granted can a fair trial of self-government in Cuba be said to have begun. We have confidence that the wishes of the American people toward Cuba will bear fruit at the coming session of congress, and until then it is not fair to assume that the island's future course is a natural progress through anarchy to statehood.

When the high jinks kicked up by some of the first families at Newport are considered Pittsburgh rather congratulates herself upon being left out of that recent lining up of society published as an authoritative directory of the country's real "400."

The announcement that Don Dickinson had fathered a Joe Choate presidential boom must have given the atmosphere around Buzzard's Bay quite a chill.

When the various happenings in the political and social world are taken into consideration one can hardly blame the weather for getting so hot.

Philadelphia is hysterical over the selection of a site for a pesthouse. Hysterics have become quite a common complaint in Philadelphia.

The weather will doubtless warm up again out of respect for the members of the stove mounters' convention in session in Allegheny.

The Telluride date line made an effort to break into the Oyster Bay class earlier in the week, but failed.

The state Democracy seems to have lost its energy along with its famous Pattison rabbit foot.

Of course England can hardly expect us to go over all that envoy agony so soon again.

We trust Poet Austin will not take the August coronation as license to break loose again.

Up to the present time Solicitor Penfield has refused to do any side stepping to speak of.

The local Democracy has wisely refrained from doing any kite flying.

The Real Thing Outdone.

From Today.

The reappearance of Mr. Albert Chevalier on the boards of a London music hall gives point to the following little anecdote, which can be vouched for. It happened some years ago, when Chevalier was first singing his coster songs, and he had been appearing at the Tivoli.

He was retained there after his proper time by having to give an encore, and when he had finished he had only just time to jump hurriedly into a cab and race off to Charing Cross station on the District railway to catch the last train to Hammersmith, where he was then living. To change his clothes was out of the question, so he entered the station in his stage garb, "pearlies" and all.

This attire attracted the admiring eye of a real coster, who followed him to the booking office, and who gave a visible start of surprise when he heard what Chevalier asked for.

"What did that bloke want?" he asked the booking clerk as Chevalier disappeared.

"First, single, Hammersmith," came the prompt reply.

"Cripes," answered the coster, as he threw his money down, "then give me a bloomin' saloon to Whitechapel."

Brought Back Old Times.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Miss Helen Gould was out calling the other day."

"Well?"

"She left her card at one place where the lady of the house was out. The servant who waited on the door was once the cashier of a New York bank."

"Go on."

"He looked at the card and then at the lady."

"What did he do then?"

"Drew out a fountain pen and wrote 'Certified' across the face of the card and put his initials under it."

PROOF OF KINDNESS OF MRS. LEISHMAN

Story Told by Former Wall Street Man of Her Effort to Save Child's Life.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, July 10.

An old Wall street man, for whom the market went wrong a year or two ago, so that he has never recovered from the blow, said to me this afternoon, with a smile of genuine pleasure: "I see the sultan of Turkey has bestowed on Mrs. John G. A. Leishman the grand cordon of the Order of Chefakat. Well, she is a noble woman, and entitled to all the honors going." The old stock broker was silent for a few moments, as if drawing from the past pictures long put away. Then, as he settled himself comfortably in his chair, he went on: "It was in the summer of 1887 that I, with my wife and 7-months-old baby, Estelle, were spending the hot weather in one of the hotels at Atlantic Highlands. The Leishmans were there, with Mrs. Leishman's sister, Mrs. English, whose husband is general agent of the Berkshire Insurance Company, resident in Pittsburgh. I did not have the pleasure of meeting Jack (she called him Jack), but met Mrs. Leishman. She and my wife were quite intimate. Mrs. Leishman was nursing her baby, Jack. They lived at Sewickley, we heard; also that he was in the steel business with Andrew Carnegie. Well, I had to leave the Highlands on a trip to the Rockies, where I had a gold mine. The day I left, Thursday, Estelle was taken dangerously ill, and, in spite of all that could be done, she died on Sunday night. The doctors said there was a chance to save her if she could get mother's milk. At once Mrs. Leishman offered to nurse the baby, and she spent many hours with my wife in the fight for the little one's life. On one of the long nights they spent together, watching over the sick babe, Mrs. Leishman noticed a handsome solitaire diamond worn by my wife—her engagement ring. Mrs. Leishman had very little in the way of jewelry in those days, for it was before her husband became a multi-millionaire; and she said, in the impulsive way of a woman with one of her own sex with whom she is in sympathy: 'Oh, I have always wanted a diamond ring, but I do not see much chance of ever possessing one.' My wife told me afterward that she had the ring half off her finger, to force it on Mrs. Leishman, when she remembered that it was her engagement ring. We always vowed we would send Mrs. Leishman a diamond ring. But you know how such things are forgotten or delayed, and, although I had money enough to have sent her a dozen such rings, we neglected to do it. We went to Chicago shortly afterward. Now, I am broke, and can only just scrape up a living at my old calling of telegrapher, while the Leishmans are 'away up there.' I often wonder whether Mrs. Leishman remembers that sick room at the seashore hotel, the fight for the baby's life, and her longing for a diamond ring. She has plenty of diamonds now, but mine are all gone into the whirlpool of Wall street. Well, God bless her for a true-hearted, noble American girl."

Model New York Weather.

For once, we are grateful for New York weather. After the stifling heat of yesterday we have had a delightfully cool day and a night when it will be possible to sleep in comfort. Showers have fallen, and the weather forecaster has come near to giving us the conditions he promised, if not better.

Pilots' Dangerous Rule of the Road.

Collisions in New York harbor have been following each other rapidly enough to make the average passenger nervous. After being horrified by the smash-up between the Priscilla and Powhatan in Long Island sound yesterday, New Yorkers call to mind that a lot of boats have been running into each other lately. A few days ago the Rockaway excursion boat was rammed by another excursion steamer, and today a tug poked its nose into the paddle-box of a South Brooklyn ferryboat and tore a hole five feet square. There are many craft continually moving about in the harbor, and small pilots seem to follow the methods of truck drivers in this city, to "make the other fellow get out of the way." In every case of a water collision there is always a dispute afterward as to whether signals were given or regarded. Some of these days we shall have a terrific fatality on the rivers or in the bay, and then there will be a sudden and sweeping reform.

Different Ideas of Municipal Economy.

Mr. Dougherty, who resigned his position as commissioner of water supply, gas and electricity, yesterday, made known today why he got out. He says he was disgusted with the niggardly policy of the board of estimate. That body would not give him as much money as he thought he ought to have to conduct the department, and he discharged himself. It is worth mentioning, as giving some idea of what municipal expenses here are, that Mr. Dougherty is quoted as saying that, in his belief, the department should have from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year.

Devery May Succeed Croker.

Col. George W. Dunn, chairman of the Republican state committee, hit the nail on the head this afternoon when, in talking about Tammany Hall, he said: "The career of the Tammany committee of three is very satisfactory to the Republicans. They might have done some good work, but Devery killed them off with his characterization of them as 'Sport,' 'Two-spot' and 'Joke.' They cannot survive those names. They can never be taken seriously again. Devery is a literary genius in his way. He coins words that live. Five hundred columns of character description could not have made so plain the personalities of the men who make up the Tammany triumvirate." Incidentally, it is said that Devery enjoys the screeds on himself as well as anyone. He laughs at the stories of his bad grammar, and when he is talking to his friends often repeats, with a sly smile, the phrase which he used when he was commissioner of police, and which was first published in a spirit of ridicule, "touchin' on and appertainin' to." The "big chief" has a keen sense of humor, and, withal, is one of the shrewdest men in local politics today. There is a strong feeling here that he may be Croker's successor, in spite of the power of the crowd opposing him.

Thurston a Disciplinarian.

Policemen brought up at headquarters for trial are beginning to regard Deputy Commissioner Thurston with much the same feeling of apprehension with which they used to face "Big Chief" Devery. Thurston will not allow anyone to interfere with him in dealing out justice. He showed this today by doubling the fines of two policemen who had persuaded friends with influence to intercede for them beforehand. One man was fined four days' pay who would have got off with the loss of two days if he had been willing to let his case rest on its own merits; and another lost two days, instead of one, for the same reason. Thurston is a military man, and discipline with him is a religion.

Trouble for Tenement Owners.

There is a lot of expense ahead for owners of tenement houses in New York. The new law which requires that certain provisions for light, ventilation and water supply shall be complied with, has not been observed as closely as might be desired, and owners who have neglected the law will soon be compelled to make improvements specified. There are some 85,000 tenement houses in the city of New York. How many of these, as they stand, do not comply with the law, can be known only after a rigid inspection. At present the department has 150 inspectors working in Manhattan and Brooklyn, making detailed examinations of tenement houses, on the basis of whose work the department will proceed with the reform. How bad general tenement conditions are in New York has never been known in any great detail. It has been known that thousands of houses existed with dark and unventilated rooms; but how serious the question was has not been ascertained. The bureau of records, which is one of the features of the new tenement house department, however, will contain a complete description and history of every tenement house in New York city.

Too Much Sulphuric Fumes.

That long-suffering corporation, the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, which operates nearly all the surface lines in this city, is in more hot water. The officials have been ordered to appear before the president of the board of health on Monday afternoon, to explain why they allow sulphuric fumes to escape from their storage batteries on the cars of the Thirty-fourth street cross-town line. Sulphuric fumes are common enough in this city where traffic is heavy, but they generally come from truck drivers and cabbies.

Triangular Buildings Popular.

Flatiron skyscrapers are likely to become so common in New York after a time that they will be regarded as the only really proper thing in office buildings. Another one is to go up in the Wall street district. This, with those at Madison and Longacre squares, will make three striking edifices of the same general plan. That to be built down town will be on the triangle formed by the junction of Wall, Pearl and Beaver streets and will be 20 stories high. The reason that triangular buildings are becoming so popular with large corporations is evident at a glance. Now that so many skyscrapers are going up in New York the question of light and air forces itself on the consideration with insistence and architects are kept busy watching this element in their task. Owners of skyscrapers are protecting themselves wherever possible by buying adjoining property, so that they can make sure of all the light and air they need. They prevent other skyscrapers going up cheek-by-jowl with their own 20 and 30-story edifices, and, therefore, get the full benefit of their tremendous investments. When they build a flatiron skyscraper they are safe, however, without further purchases. A triangular piece of property is always sure of an uninterrupted flow of light into every office. In other words, every office faces a street on one side or the other. Owners of triangles are preparing to run up their prices, in view of the demand for them that has set in lately.

Aiming at a Pittsburgh Record.

There will be some interesting bicycling at the Manhattan beach track on Saturday afternoon. Champion will ride in a 20-mile race against McFarland, Stinson and De Guichard. They will be paced by a motor. Champion thinks he will easily lower the 20-mile record of 29:08 made by Howard Freeman at Pittsburgh last Monday night.

Crimmins Found Ireland Prosperous.

John D. Crimmins, the wealthy contractor and Tammany man, returned to New York today on the Teutonic. Mr. Crimmins is an important man in this city and his remarks on what he had seen abroad are printed in the papers here with due respect. He says he saw Richard Croker at a distance in London and that the "squire" looked as if in a prosperous condition. One of the observations made by Mr. Crimmins which will be interesting everywhere, was that he was surprised to see Ireland in such a prosperous condition. He added: "People over here have a wrong idea of the conditions there. The peasants' farms are the prettiest and present a better-kept appearance than any I have seen; and there is also very little hostile feeling against England." Which disposes of a great deal of buncombe at a breath."

A Fine Schedule for the Empire.

Jack McCullough, manager of the Empire theater, Pittsburgh, is busy on the Rialto here just now. He says he has a fine line of bookings for his theater for next season and expects he will be able to make his theater more popular than ever.

Prince Henry's Keyless Clock.

The keyless clock which is in course of manufacture in New York for Prince Henry will be shipped to him within a week. It is the first timepiece of its kind ever made. When Prince Henry was here in the spring he became interested in the clock and ordered one to be made, which he will present to the kaiser, his brother. The keyless clock has its base made of the richest of onyx, trimmed with finest gold decorations. The jewels in the works have been especially selected. The clock will run continuously and keep accurate time for one year without change of battery. The glass casing is an oval dome of unusual clearness, exposing the works to view on all sides. The hands of the clock are of pure gold and the dial has been artistically illuminated.

Fond of His Family.

From the New York Tribune.

The large royal families of Siam are admirably taken care of by the state, as a glance at King Chulalongkorn's cabinet will show: The minister of war, the king's only surviving full brother; the minister of public works, the king's half-brother; the minister of the interior, another half-brother; the minister of foreign affairs, another half-brother; the minister of finance, another half-brother; the minister of local government, another half-brother; director general of the privy purse, another half-brother; minister of the royal household, another half-brother; director general of hospitals, another half-brother; high commissioner for Ayuthia, another half-brother; controller general of finance, the king's son; minister of justice, another son; commander in chief, another son; deputy superintendent of the navy, another son, and director general of customs, the king's cousin.

Was Acquainted with Nature.

From the Manchester Weekly Times.

A well-known artist overheard a countryman and his wife ridiculing his picture, which represented a farm scene. He was so indignant that he at last interposed with the remark:

"That painting is valued at £100. Allow me to ask if you are familiar with works of art?"

"Not very familiar with art," replied the farmer; "but I know something about nature, young man. When you make a cow that gets up from the ground by putting her fore feet first, you do something that nature never did."

Room for Another Statue.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

A statue representing a firecracker boy has been raised in one of the Chicago parks. It shows him as he is on the glorious Fourth. Now let the old maids and old bachelors raise a fund for a statue showing the firecracker boy as he appears on the fifth.

GALLANT SOLDIER IS PREMIER PEER

Death a Happy Release for His Unfortunate Predecessor in Rank.

Lord Edmund Talbot becomes through the death of his terribly afflicted nephew, the late Lord Arundel and Surrey, next heir to his elder brother's dukedom of Norfolk, as well as to the dignities of premier peer of the realm, hereditary marshal and chief butler of England. The patronymic of the present duke is Howard, which is perhaps the most illustrious name in the entire history of Great Britain. But his brother Edmund has been forced to assume the equally historic name of Talbot, and as he will be compelled to retain the patronymic of Talbot even after succeeding to his brother's honors, it will be the first time in many centuries that there will be a duke of Norfolk who is not strictly speaking a Howard.

Lord Edmund's change of name was made in accordance with the will of the last Roman Catholic earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot. The latter dying unmarried, left a will, according to the terms of which his entire fortune was left to Lord Edmund Howard, at that time a small child. The terms of the will were contested by the third earl of Talbot, who succeeded to the earldom of Shrewsbury and to the entailed estates. Lord Edmund, however, won his case and the result of the legal proceedings was that he got all the immense unentailed estates, art treasures and money of the seventeenth earl of Shrewsbury, whereas the Protestant earl of Talbot had to content himself with the mere entailed lands and with the earldom of Shrewsbury.

Distinguished Army Career.

Lord Edmund is a much better looking man than his brother, the duke of Norfolk, is a soldier by profession and has borne himself with such gallantry as colonel of Hussars in India, in Egypt and in South Africa as to win the distinguished service order and the cross of the Order of the Bath. He has likewise sat in parliament, both for Sheffield and for Chichester, and is married to a daughter of the earl of Abingdon, by whom he has a daughter, 22 years of age, and an 18-year-old boy, who is destined in time to become the second of the Talbot dukes of Norfolk. For, like his father, he could not drop the name of Talbot without forfeiting his rights to the vast property of the seventeenth earl of Shrewsbury, the inheritance having been made conditional according to the terms of the latter's will upon the assumption of the name of Talbot as patronymic.

Like his elder brother, Lord Edmund Talbot is a nephew of the late Lord Lyons, who was British envoy at Washington throughout the civil war, and one of the warmest admirers of Abraham Lincoln, with whom he was on terms of much intimacy. Lord Lyons died a bachelor, having failed to comply with the injunction of President Lincoln, who when the ambassador came to notify him officially of the marriage of the then prince of Wales, exclaimed "Go thou, Lyons, and do likewise."

Death a Blessed Relief.

While the death of the late earl of Arundel and Surrey will be a great blow to his father, the duke, who was devotedly attached to him, yet it is a demise which can only be looked upon in the light of a happy relief. For the 22-year-old earl was blind, deaf, dumb, partially crippled and in some respects imbecile. His succession to his father's honors, and especially to the earl marshalship of the realm, which carries with it the presidency of the so-called Court of Chivalry and of Arms, and the premiership of the peerage, would have furnished to the foes of the system of an hereditary aristocracy plenty of material for scoffing at the nobility caste.

As in the case of so many children burdened with ills such as the young earl of Arundel and Surrey, he was perhaps more dear to his parents precisely by reason of his affliction. Grief at his condition contributed largely to the death of the duchess when he was about 3 years of age, and from that time forth he became an object of still greater solicitude to his father, who after exhausting in vain the greatest medical skill in the world in behalf of his only child, arrived at the conclusion that naught but a miracle on the part of Providence could restore his boy to health of mind and body. Charitable institutions as well as religious communities were endowed by him, the duke asking for nothing in return but that the inmates should pray for his son's health. He took the boy on pilgrimages to Lourdes and to other places of the same kind in the hope that the young earl might be benefited thereby. Indeed, he traveled all over Europe with him in a futile search for health, and made a point of never allowing a day to pass without spending at least an hour with his son, who though his mind was impaired in many other respects, always manifested a keen delight in his father's visits. Even when the duke was overwhelmed with the work of the postmaster generalship he never permitted a day to go by without driving out to Wimbledon, the most beautiful suburb of London, to see his boy, and this makes me believe that he will feel the death of the young earl very keenly, and that it will be to him the disappearance and loss of a cherished interest.

I have never visited Arundel or looked at its photographs without having brought before me the picture of this sorely afflicted youth, who took his title from the castle Arundel, which is a grand and stately place, but somewhat gloomy. It may be imagination, but its aspect always seemed to me to suggest that its walls encompassed affliction, of no ordinary character, and it may be remembered that for many years before his death the late Cardinal Howard, completely bereft of reason, was kept under restraint in a remote wing of the castle. Cardinal Howard's insanity was so far as I know the only instance on record of a member of the sacred college, being overtaken by lunacy, and it was precisely because no precedent existed at Rome for dealing with such a condition of affairs that the vatican gladly accepted the offer of the duke of Norfolk to take charge of his mentally afflicted kinsman who had been until the loss of his mind one of the most notable and decorative figures of the pontifical court and the archpriest and rector of St. Peter's.

Castle Never Can Be Finished.

Arundel castle enjoys one peculiarity, namely, that in spite of its great age it is never complete and never under any circumstances free from scaffolding, workmen and decorators. Hundreds of years ago one of the ancestors of the duke of Norfolk bequeathed in perpetuity a tract of land along the Thames, the revenues of which were to be devoted exclusively to the maintenance, repair and addition to Arundel castle.

This strip of land is now in the center of London, in the neighborhood of the Strand, covered with houses and yielding such vast rentals that the duke is at a loss how to devote these exclusively to the castle, which is already the most magnificent thing of the kind in Great Britain, or, indeed, in all Europe.

Arundel castle was first mentioned in the will of King Alfred the Great. King William Rufus, son of William the Conqueror, spent the Easter of the year 1079 at Arundel castle, and Empress Mathilde of Germany, daughter of the English King Henry I., made it her headquarters while asserting her claim to the British throne in opposition to Stephen. The great hall of the castle was built with money obtained from the ransom of the French prisoners taken at the battle of Cressy. Indeed, there is no castle that has a more notable history than that of Arundel, which alone of all British castles carries with it a seat in the house of lords and the earldom of Arundel. Thus the duke of Norfolk is not earl of Arundel by right of descent, but by right of ownership of Arundel castle.

PERSONALS.

"Stair & Havlin will not build a theater in Pittsburgh, as they have been contemplating. The plan has been finally abandoned," said Ben L. Heidingsfelt of Cincinnati, attorney for the theater owners mentioned. Mr. Heidingsfelt left last evening for Cincinnati after spending two days here in connection with this plan. "The reasons they will not enter Pittsburgh are two-fold: First, a suitable site could not be found in the right section of the city without the purchase of a lease with so many years to run that the price would be too high to consider. The fact is that Pittsburgh is, in one way, too prosperous to allow of our entrance. Values of real estate are too high. The second reason is that the building restrictions are too severe. A theater building in Pittsburgh must have the whole front open for entrance and exit, must be of steel construction, must be unconnected with any other building and have a wide alley on each side. I understand that Keith has also given up building in Pittsburgh. It is a good theatrical town, one of the best in the country, but an extremely difficult and costly one to break into."

Col. E. B. Fox of Louisville, Ky., who is interested in developing the coal lands of that state, passed through Pittsburgh last evening en route home after a New York business trip. He says it has been only recently that the full value of the extensive coal deposits in his state has been understood, but that already large mining operations are being carried on. The coal goes mainly into the southern market, being shipped by rail to Georgia, North and South Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama. Little of it comes into competition with Pittsburgh river coal, its market being in the interior of the river states and in those not touched by the Mississippi.

Among the foreigners registered at Pittsburgh hotels last evening were: Charles H. Hoskins of Sydney, Australia, and William H. Smith of London, Eng., at the Anderson; Patrick Hector of Dublin, Ireland, at the Henry, and J. Yamaguchi of Kobe, Japan, at the Duquesne. The last named is a Japanese naval engineer who was in this city a short time ago. His trip here is in connection with some steel for the Japanese navy being turned out by the Carnegie Steel Company.

"Recourse will have to be had to the cradle and scythe in cutting the hay and rye crops of Illinois unless the rain lets up at once," said George H. Busch of Peoria, Ill., last evening at the Union station. "Illinois has had a particularly great rainfall for several months past. It has produced a big crop, but the ground is so soft that mowers and reapers cannot be used in the fields."

Mrs. M. A. Moore of Seattle, Wash., is at the Lincoln. W. H. Cowles of Spokane, Wash., is at the Duquesne, and J. M. Keedy of San Juan, Porto Rico, is at the Monongahela.

Miss Georgia A. Nickerson, bookkeeper at the Lincoln, left yesterday to spend her vacation at her old home near Boston, Mass.

Hart McKee, who has a place on Long Island, and George Lauder, Jr., who is now in England with his bride.

St. John's Hospital Benefit.

Very festive in appearance was the vacant lot in California avenue, Allegheny, near the High Bridge, yesterday, where the Ladies' Aid society of St. John's hospital was conducting a lawn fete. The vacant property was fenced in with a string of fantastic lanterns and electric lights made still more gay the decorated booths. Almost in the center of the ground was a large tent, where refreshments were served. The sides of the tent were lined with booths, which during the evening were animated scenes of barter. The lemonade booth was indicated by its pretty white and yellow trimmings and huge boxes of lemonade and orangeade. The candy booth was done in pink and white bunting. Cake was sold beneath a roof decorated in purple and white, while the two needlework booths were prettily arranged in green. There was music during the evening and the attendance was large. The lawn fete will be continued this afternoon and evening.

The officers of the Ladies' Aid society include Mrs. L. Mohrhof, president, Mrs. C. H. Newhat and Mrs. H. J. Schulz, vice presidents; Mrs. K. Pritchard, recording secretary; Mrs. C. S. Outing of Business Women.

The annual outing of the Business Women's club will be this year at Economy. To those familiar with the story of its foundation and with the customs peculiar to this community, a visit to its home has always been of interest. This year the club members are looking forward with unusual eagerness to the date of the excursion, July 17, as they realize this is likely to be the last summer the little village may be seen in all the charm of its old-time quaintness.

Hackney—McConegly.

Mrs. Lola Blackmore Hackney and William C. McConegly were married on Wednesday evening at the residence of the Rev. J. R. Henry in Lehigh avenue, East End. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was given at the Hotel Duquesne. The bride is the daughter of the late James Blackmore, Jr., and Mrs. Rachel Blackmore. Mr. McConegly is an attorney in this city. After a short wedding trip east they will make their home at 1010 McClure avenue, Homestead.

ATLANTIC CITY.

A Chair-Pusher to Get a Fortune If He Can Prove He Has Not Married a Certain Girl.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 10.—George W. Barnes of Philadelphia, employed as a chair-pusher on the boardwalk here, has received word of a legacy of $150,000 left him by an uncle, William P. Barnes of Glasgow, Scotland, but there are peculiar conditions with which he must comply. They are contained in this clause in the will:

To my nephew, George W. Barnes, I do will and bequeath that portion of my London real estate known as the Barnes building, of which he is to take full and complete possession on his 30th birthday, which will be January 16, 1903, if on that day he can swear that he is not the lawful husband of Mary Ellen Dougherty, who was born February 14, 1871, at Dublin, Ireland. In the event of the death of the said Mary Ellen Dougherty, the said George W. Barnes shall then without further delay be given full and complete possession of the said Barnes building, together with all the moneys, rents, etc., that may have accumulated; but in the event of proof being shown on or before January 16, 1903, that the said George W. Barnes has made Mary Ellen Dougherty his lawful wife, then I do hereby will and bequeath the said George W. Barnes absolutely nothing but £500.

When Barnes was seen today he was pushing a chair, but confident that he will receive all the benefits of the legacy when he reaches the required age. He said Mary Ellen Dougherty was formerly his sweetheart and is now in New York, but he has no intention of marrying her. William P. Barnes, the uncle, disliked Mary, whom he saw while in this country last summer.

Police Raid on Slot Machines.

The police department this afternoon made a haul of two gambling slot machines. The information that these machines were in town was secretly furnished to the department, and Detective Barry, who was sent to round them up, succeeded in getting two.

Glassblowers' By-Laws.

Continuation of the report of the committee on by-laws and a speech by President Dennis A. Hayes to representatives of the apprentices' organization were the only matters before the glass blowers' convention at the morning session. The apprentices were admitted to the hall and given some fatherly advice. Thus far but few changes in the by-laws have been recommended.

A Real Count in Town.

The shore received quite a shock a few days ago when it was announced that a real, live, modern, up-to-date Russian count had put in an appearance and would be here, in company with his secretary and suite, for a fortnight at least. He wears the order of St. Nicholas. The count is quite a "good fellow" in his line, but he has persistently declined to see all newspaper men. Last evening he gave a dinner at the Rudolf in honor of some friends he met at the hotel.

Suit Against the City.

The city is to be the defendant in a suit brought by the Third national bank of Philadelphia. In this case the suit is brought to establish the precedence of the liens filed against the money now in the hands of the city as represented by the balance due M. P. Wells & Co., the contractors who built the city hall. This balance is held by the city pending the decision of the court as to the priority of several claims of the creditors. A decision in the case likely will not be reached for many months.

CHAUTAUQUA.

Star Cadwalader Tells What Social Settlement Has Done.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 10.—(Special.)—Star Cadwalader, the newly-elected director of the Cleveland public schools, who has been working such radical reforms in the financial department of his city, addressed the social settlement conference today on "The Relation of the Settlement to the Community." Mr. Cadwalader said:

"The settlement has a great influence in forming the ideas of the people with regard to the social, industrial and civil problems. Civic problems must be solved in the cities themselves, where the population is massed together. The settlement stands for social morality, and aims to make the city a place in which to grow men and women, and induce conditions where men and women can grow. It aims to create a sentiment to prevent some individual of the community from compelling other individuals to live in miserable tenement houses where nothing should live, not even brutes, let alone human beings."

As some of the philanthropies that have been the result of the settlement the speaker cited the Visiting Nurses' association, the public baths and the Consumers' league, and the Home Gardening club.

FIVE FIREMEN KILLED.

Were Caught by Falling Wall at Toronto, Ont.—Property Loss Over Half Million.

TORONTO, ONT., July 10.—Five firemen were killed in a disastrous fire which started in the old street railway stables at Front and George streets, now occupied by P. McIntosh & Sons, and spread to the wholesale hay and straw warehouse of Gadsby & McCann.

David Sec. Harry Clarke, Adam Kerr, Walter Collard and —— Russell, firemen, were working outside the McIntosh building when the brick wall, two stories high, suddenly toppled outward and buried them.

The total loss is estimated at $550,000.

Andrews Loses All Points.

DETROIT, MICH., July 10.—Judge Murphy today denied the motion made by Frank C. Andrews' attorneys to quash the information against him on the ground that it was faulty, and overruled the demurrer against the discharge of the whole July jury panel, but refused to be more specific in his reasons for discharging the jurors.

Summer Fruits for the Winter Table.

Fruit being such an important item in the economy of health, a great many means of preserving it have been resorted to, so that if we cannot have so valuable a food fresh we must have it preserved.

The chief aim is to preserve fruits by some chemical method so that they will be fit for the various culinary purposes.

Sugar overpowers the sub-acid taste so desirable in many fruits, and when a large quantity is used such fruits are used chiefly for desserts or sweetmeats.

Some fruits are better preserved by drying while this method applied to others, such as the very juicy berries, would waste their delicate juices and render the residue valueless.

Some fruits, such as pineapples, lose much of their delicate flavor by drying, while some others, such as figs and prunes are much richer and better flavored.

Fruits for preserving should be gathered in the morning in dry weather and with the morning sun upon them if possible, as they will then have the finest flavor and keep in good condition longer than when gathered under other conditions. Fruit that is over-ripe will not keep well when preserved, and when it cannot be used as soon as gathered it will soon sour, and if gathered in damp, foggy weather it will mildew. Until ready to use the fruit keep it thoroughly chilled but dry. It will keep for several days in the ice chest or refrigerator.

Some fruits, especially peaches and pears, may be preserved in a special vinegar syrup, and are delightful condiments or sweet pickles.

The utensils used in the work should be such as will not be affected by the action of the fruit acids. The kettles should be porcelain lined, the measuring cups of glass or agateware and wooden paddles or spatnies used for stirring. Wide-mouthed glass jars with glass tops are best and most convenient. And a silver spoon may be used for filling the jars, the agate kitchen spoon is rather large and apt to chip.

Preservation of fruits and vegetables in moist condition means their perfect and complete sterilization, and exclusion of air and yeast ferments which fill the air constantly.

When this is accomplished and you have selected fruit in proper condition for the especial method you wish to employ, the success is reasonably certain.

Remember that your jars and lids must be also sterilized by scalding with boiling water or a thorough baking in the oven; see that the lids and rubbers fit perfectly as is always safer to use new rubber bands each year, as the old ones will stretch) and test the jars by filling with boiling water and reject them if they have flaws or are cracked. To prevent the jars breaking while filling with the boiling hot fruit, have them heated in a pan of hot water on the stove or in the oven and set each on a damp cloth spread on the kitchen table, which should be placed conveniently near the stove and all the necessary utensils and requirements for the work arranged on it before you begin operations. Most of the real labor attached to domestic calling is cause by lack of system and thoughtfulness on the woman's part in these days of household and culinary conveniences and labor-saving devices. The housewife who is not fortunate enough to possess a preserve closet or pantry, but must keep her preserves on shelves exposed to the light should save all her paper bags when she empties her groceries, and when her fruit is perfectly cold, slip a bag over each jar, fold the edges neatly underneath and paste a label with name of preserve on the bag. A curtain of dark-colored chintz, hung over the shelves, is a still greater protection and gives a tidier appearance to your pantry. Jellies and jams need not necessarily be packed in this way, but pickles keep their color better, protected from the light when put up in glass, as they should always be.

Canned Cherries.

Use the Morello or the white cherries for canning; the latter are not so rich, require less sugar and make a pretty fruit to use for desserts. Cherries are richer if they are canned without removing the pits, but these are objectionable for various reasons, for obvious reasons; a few of the pits or kernels, however, may be allowed to each jar of fruit.

Make a syrup of one and one-half cups of sugar and a cup of water for every two pounds of the pitted cherries and juice; as soon as the syrup boils clear throw in the cherries and boil five minutes. Skim off any froth that arises. If the kernels are boiled with the fruit, allow a tablespoonful to each jar of fruit, tying them up in pieces of thin muslin so they can be removed before filling the jars with the fruit.

To retain the "whiteness" of the white cherry they should not be pitted, but selecting the finest and largest, prick each cherry once or twice with a large needle and pack them in jars. Place the jars on a rack in a large boiler, with hot water to partly cover; fill the jars up with boiling syrup, using a little less sugar than for the red cherry, and put lid on the boiler, and after the water boils hard, let it continue for five or ten minutes according to size and number of jars in the boiler. Screw down the tops before removing the jars from the water.

Canned Huckleberries.

Wash the berries well in several waters and pick over carefully. Put them in preserving kettle with just enough water to keep from burning and cook gently until soft, but not mushy; then seal up at once. Do not use sugar unless you wish to make them jam. Some add a very little salt to canned huckleberries.

Canned Currants.

Wash and stem the fruit, and to every two quarts allow a cup of water; boil very gently until soft (you cannot keep them whole), then add a cup of sugar to above quantities and simmer again until they are very hot, and then fill your jars and seal.

You will get a very much finer and milder flavored preserve if you add red raspberries to your currants. Some use the currant juice instead of water with the red raspberries. This makes a nicer preserve, as it does away with the seeds and skins of the currants.

Cherry Marmalade.

Take three pounds of sweet and one pound of sour cherries, weighed after they are pitted. To this quantity allow two pounds of sugar. Make a syrup of the sugar, the juice of the cherries (adding a little water; there is not juice enough); add a stick of cinnamon and a dozen cloves. When the syrup boils put in the sweet cherries and cook half an hour; then add the sour cherries and boil down until as thick as jelly. Remove from the fire; fill large-mouthed pint jars or jam pots and when cold cover same as jelly.

Spiced Currants.

Wash, pick over, drain and remove the stems from perfectly ripe currants. To every five pounds of currants allow three pounds of light brown sugar, one and a half tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of ground cloves and a cup and one-half of vinegar. Put into the preserving kettle and cook the currants soft. Then add sugar, vinegar and spices and cook gently for one and one-half hours, or until quite thick. Seal up same as jams.

Preserved Figs.

These are delicious and if you can get the fresh fruit put up a generous supply, for you will find so many uses for them.

Lay the fresh figs in water over night. In the morning simmer them in just water enough to cover them, until they are tender, then spread out on a platter to cool. For every pound of figs make a syrup of a pound of sugar and two-thirds of a cup of water. Boil the syrup until very clear, removing the scum. Then put in the figs and boil slowly for 10 minutes. Remove the figs from syrup, spreading them on platters and place them in the hot sun. Now take as many lemons as you have pounds of sugar and add the juice, strained, to the syrup with a few pieces of stick cinnamon and pieces of ginger. Boil the syrup until thick, then put in the figs and boil 15 minutes longer. Fill glass jars three-quarters full with the fruit and then fill level full with the hot syrup. Seal at once.

Canned Pineapple.

For making sherbets and fancy desserts pineapple should be put up in following manner. Wipe and pare the fruit, removing the eyes. Wrap the end of the pine in a cloth to protect the hands while you shred the pulp from the core with a silver fork. Weigh the pulp and juice and add half their weight in sugar. Do not add water. Cook until the pineapple is clear but not long enough to darken the color. Put in jars and seal at once.

Green Gooseberry Jam.

Select the fruit before it ripens and remove stems and blossom. Wash the fruit, and then weigh. Allow equal weight of sugar and a cup of water to every pound of sugar. Boil the syrup 15 minutes, removing the scum. Then put in the gooseberries and simmer gently until clear and thick. Try a little on a saucer and if it jellies when cold it is done. Pour it into small jars or jam pots and when cold seal it up.

INQUIRIES ANSWERED.

Mrs. H. C. P. writes: Will you kindly tell me how nut patties are made? They are a sort of sweet entree, I imagine.

Nut Patties.

Line patty pans with rather a rich paste rolled very thin. Bake in a quick oven and fill with the following custard: Beat two egg yolks with three ounces sugar and one ounce of cornstarch and stir into a pint of milk scalded in double boiler. Stir and cook until it thickens, then add a cup of nuts chopped very fine. Fill this into the pasty shells, cover with a meringue and bake in a slow oven until a light brown color.

Vermicelli Pudding with Fruit.

Mrs. J. O. R. writes: Will you give me a nice recipe for a pudding made of some one of the macaroni pastes and fresh fruit?

Break some vermicelli into small pieces and boil it in milk until tender and all the milk absorbed. Sweeten to taste; stir in a tablespoonful or more of butter and beaten eggs. Turn into a buttered dish and cover closely with buttered paper. Steam it an hour and then turn out and serve with a compote of cherries or blackberries. If preferred the cherries may be added to and steamed in the pudding, allowing half an hour longer. In this case serve with a soft boiled custard.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant certainly does go directly to the root of all Throat and Lung troubles. There is abundant evidence of this in its sixty-two years' record of cures.

HOW TO HAVE A GOOD WIND.

Hunters invariably withhold meat from their dogs, feeding them upon dry bread, cornmeal and similar foods. When asked the reason for confining hunting dogs to such a diet an experienced huntsman replied: "Meat spoils their wind and plunts their keen scent." Dr. Baetz, a German physician, practicing in Japan, observed the same thing with reference to Japanese runners. The coolies who carried him lived on rice and beans. He gave them beefsteak. After three days they refused it, declaring it made them tired. The best of all muscle feeding foods is Toasted Wheat Flakes, served with Mel-Hony, made by Battle Creek Sanitarium Food Company. Each crisp delicately browned flake represents a flattened wheat grain, thoroughly dextrinized through cooking and toasting. It contains all the muscle building qualities, is appetizing and immediately digestible.

League Games Today.

New York at Exposition park.
Philadelphia at Chicago.
Boston at Cincinnati.
Brooklyn at St. Louis.

The Pirates have been forcing the other teams of the league to step up to the trough and get a sousing with such great regularity that when they are forced to go through the sousing operation themselves it goes pretty hard. They got a double distilled dose of it yesterday when the despised Giants acted as the sousers and let them down with a score of 3 to 1.

The news that Mugsy McGraw had been engaged at a salary of $10,000 per to lead the Giants in the future seems to have had a wholesome effect on the players of that team, and the game they put up yesterday came pretty close to being the simon pure pennant article. It is a fact that the team yesterday displayed more ginger than any team that has appeared at Exposition park this season. There was not a player in the bunch who was not right up on his toes and they were up and doing from the time the first man faced the pitcher until Clarke, who was the last batter, died on a grounder at first base.

Smith Was a Whole Team.

The bright particular star of the visiting delegation was our fellow-townsman, George Smith, who lives over in Allegheny and who works as a motorman during the winter months. Smith has been one of the many managers of the New York team; in fact, it was George who was forced to make room for Mugsy McGraw, and one would have thought there would be resentment in his soul, but there wasn't. Smithy was evidently out to convince his successor that, although deposed as manager, he was still something of a ball player, and the 2,027 spectators who were over at the park yesterday will sign a letter of recommendation to that effect.

To tell the truth, there was not a great deal of necessity for New York to have had any other players than a battery and Smith yesterday. The others, to be sure, were called on occasionally to contribute a bit toward the afternoon's entertainment, but they could easily have been done away with. There was hardly a section of that large field that Smithy did not amble over at one time or another, and it was much to his very clever work that the Giants owed their victory.

Some Hair Raising Plays.

Some of the plays made by the second baseman were heart-breakers to the local players and their friends, and his one catch of a fly off Harry Smith's bat in the fifth inning prevented the champions from turning the score at that stage. In order to get the ball Second Baseman Smith had to run almost out to the position of the right fielder and do a tumbling act that would make a couche-couche dancer die from envy, but he got the ball just the same and held on to it even though he did turn a few summersaults after making the catch.

Roy Evans, the old Louisville discard, who did the pitching for the Giants, should have a fair share of the glory of yesterday's triumph, because it was his clever twirling that kept the champions from doing any great amount of hitting, and therefore could not score any runs worth speaking of. Evans was in remarkably good form, and while the balls he was serving up did not look to be hard to hit, they were. Sam Leever twirled for the Pirates and it was his second straight defeat. Leever's curves were hit harder and more timely than in any game he has pitched this season.

Where the Runs Were Scored.

The Giants were the first to do any scoring and they got a pair of runs in the third inning. Dunn, who was first up, led off with a single to center, and Wagner, the Giants' shortstop, followed with a pretty double to left. Evans went out at first on an easy grounder to Bransfield, and then our old-time friend, Sir Walter Brodie, poked a single down along the right foot line, on which Dunn and Wagner scored. Their next run was made in the eighth, when Clarke led off with a single and Jones followed with another. On Bowerman's smash Jones was out at second, but Clark went to third and scored on Smith's out at first.

The Pirates' only run was in the nature of a gift. Ritchey reached first on balls, second on Evans' wild throw in an effort to catch him at second and scored on Smith's single. After this the Pirates hit the ball hard enough, but the luck seemed to be with the other fellows. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

That Wagner boy who is playing short for the Giants has all the earmarks of a comer. He fielded in fine shape yesterday and stung the ball good and hard every time he was at bat.

Jack O'Connor tried hard to rattle Harry O'Hagan, the Giant's first baseman, and yelled for batters to knock the ball down toward first. O'Hagan refused to go into the air, and took good care of everything that came his way.

That crowd of Giants have very much of an ex-Pittsburgh appearance about them. The ex-Pittsburghers on the team are Sparks, Bowerman, O'Hagan, Smith, Yeager and Brodie, and some of them out quite a figure in yesterday's victory, particularly Brodie and Smith.

Honus Wagner was called on to exert himself in the eight inning to stop a ball that Harry Smith sent sailing down to second base. There was no one covering the base at the time, and Smith's throw looked like a foolish move. It took Honus' best effort to keep the ball from going to center field.

Walter Brodie's rush of Clarke's easy fly in the third inning was an odd affair, and the "Duke of Roanoke" felt mighty cheap over it. Brodie got under the ball in fine shape and it dropped gracefully into his hands, then dropped gracefully out again. The error cost nothing, as Clarke got no further than second base, the next two batters being unable to solve Evans' twisters.

The preliminary practice of both teams yesterday was as full of snap as it could be, and was therefore pleasing to the early spectators. The Giants fired the ball about as though engaged in a championship contest, and the Pirates caught the fever and acted in a like manner. Jack O'Connor and Jimmy Burke were out howling like wild Indians, and this served to stir the other players up.

Contrary to expectations Mugsy McGraw failed to appear in the city yesterday to take charge of the Giants. Secretary Knowles, however, received a telegram from McGraw stating he would be here today to take charge of the team. Had Mugsy been on hand yesterday he would have found it hard work to pick out the weak spots in the Giants' make-up, as all the players put up a first-class article of baseball.

Walter Brodie badly fooled Lefty Davis yesterday when he undertook to sneak an extra base under the impression that Sir Walter's throwing wing is still to the bad. It was in the seventh inning when Clarke pushed a single to left center and Davis, who was on first, tried to go all the way to third. Brodie shot the ball into Dunn and Lefty was nailed as he was sliding to the bag, the decision being a close one.

It seems queer that players whom the Pittsburgh club has tied a red ribbon to and started admit will come here with other teams and raise all kinds of trouble. A notable example of this was the work of Walter Brodie and George Smith yesterday. It was Brodie's single that gave the Giant's their first run, and it was Smith's remarkable fielding that kept the Pirates from scoring runs. Still that's one of the peculiar things about baseball.

Sam Leever and the other Pirates set up an awful howl in the first inning when Umpire Emslie failed to call a strike on Jones. Clark who was on first started to steal second, but was nailed by Ritchey and Harry Smith's fine throw. Jones, in order to help the steal, struck at the ball all right, but the umpire did not see him, and therefore refused to call a strike. The Pirates kicked hard, but the umpire refused to change his decision.

George Smith, the Allegheny boy and erstwhile manager of the Giants, certainly put up a great game of ball yesterday, and the New York victory was due more to his efforts than any other cause. He was sure death to short flies over the infield and at least one of his catches, the one of Harry Smith in the sixth inning, was a remarkable effort. Smith not only fielded finely, but he batted in fine form, getting a beautiful pair of singles.

Sam Leever seemed to have as much speed and just as good curves as ever yesterday. Still his delivery was hit more freely than in any other of his games this season. The element of luck which is in every ball game seemed to desert the champions yesterday and perched for the afternoon on the visitors' bench. The champions played good enough ball, but somehow or other things would not break right. It should be remembered, though, that the other side played mighty good ball, too.

Harry Smith, the Pirates' catcher, was struck back of the left ear with a batted ball yesterday and for a time it looked as though something serious might result. The accident happened just as the champions were taking the field for practice. Tannehill attempted to drive a fly to the outfield, but the ball carried low and struck Smith, who was walking out to the home plate. He dropped like a log on the field, and it was some minutes before he was able to get to his feet, but the effect of the blow lasted all during the game.

The rain of the early morning left the playing field in bad shape, as it was very slippery and hard to get a foothold on. This was shown in the second inning when Dunn in fielding Bransfield's bunt slipped and took a sudden seat, and in the seventh when Ritchey went to cover second and slipped so that he dropped the ball and the runner was safe. Had Ritchey been able to retain the position he was a sure double play in sight. However, the slip-up cost nothing as the Giants did not score in that inning.

PITCHER MULLIN'S TROUBLES.

Was Arrested at Ft. Wayne, but Let Out by the Justice.

FORT WAYNE, IND., July 10.—George Mullin, pitcher for the Detroit American league baseball team, was taken from his berth in a sleeping car on a Wabash train here at 5:30 this morning by Detectives Coling and Elliott of the local police and placed under arrest on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Isidor Mautner, former president of the Fort Wayne baseball club in the late Western association, prefers the charge. Mullin pitched here last year and Mautner alleges the player signed a contract for this season, accepted advance money and afterward signed with Detroit.

Justice France acquitted Mullin, holding that a civil and not criminal action must be instituted. Mullin left the city at 1:30 in a carriage to escape service on further action by Mautner.

The Game Ended in a Row.

DUNBAR, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—The game between Dunbar and Dawson yesterday afternoon for the championship of the Yough region, resulted in a row, the Dunbar team leaving the field at the end of the seventh inning, when the score was 7 to 0 in their favor. The trouble arose over the rank decisions of the umpire, who awarded the game to Dawson, 9 to 0. An agreement was made between the two teams that none except the regular players should play in the contest. Dawson disregarded this rule, playing with only four of their men, the remaining being from Layton, Smithton and Connellsville. Quinn for Dunbar, pitched an excellent game. Score:

MATINEE RACES WILL BE SPIRITED

FINE SPORT PROMISED AT BRUNOTS ISLAND MEET.

Track and Horses Are in Best Shape of the Season—Yacht Secured to Carry Spectators to Track—Program Calls for the Best of Racing.

The lovers of harness racing who will journey down to the Brunots Island track tomorrow afternoon are promised a rare treat in trotting and pacing, as the race committee has prepared a program of rare excellence, which embraces the very best horses at the track.

It can be stated that the track was never in better shape than it is at the present time. Not only is the track fast and in good condition, but the surroundings have been so much improved that the place furnishes a beautiful spot for an afternoon's outing. Owing to the weather and other conditions the matinee races did not get started until late this year, and the race committee is making an effort to make up for lost time.

The warm spell during the past week was just what the horses needed to bring them into shape, and all of them showed fast work in their trials yesterday. The track officials have secured a steam yacht to carry passengers over to the track from the foot of Ontario street, Allegheny, so that those wishing to attend the races will find every convenience provided for their comfort and pleasure. The program of events for Saturday afternoon follows:

THE IROQUOIS STAKES WON BY OLD ENGLAND

His Stable Companion, Homestead, Finished Second in the Race.

ODOM'S SPIRITED RIDING

Was on Gold Cure and Though Getting a Bad Start Shoved His Mount to the Front and Made a Very Exciting Finish.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 10.—Old England and Homestead, from the stable of Green Morris, ran one-two in the Iroquois stakes for 3-year-olds at Brighton Beach today. The two were coupled in the betting, and with Goldsmith scratched they were held at 1 to 5. The Canadian horse Gold Cure, owned by J. E. Seagram, was a good third, compelling the others to drive out to beat him.

Homestead went to the front as the barrier went up, with his stable mate second and Connecticut third. Gold Cure was off last. Rounding into the back stretch Old England was leading by half a length. Gold Cure, at the seven-eighths pole, had his nose in front and appeared to be going very handily, when suddenly Old England shot past him, closely followed by Homestead. However Odom got the Goldfinch colt going again and closing very strong, ran his mount to a head finish.

They Brought Good Prices.

T. C. McDowell today sold The Rival and Moranda to P. Ryan. The price was between $8,000 and $10,000 for the two. Summaries:

AFTER RECORDS IN MOTOR RACE

BOTH CHAMPION AND STINSON ARE IN FINE FORM.

The Hour Record Is Held by Harry Elkes and Is 41 Miles—French Rider Will Try Hard to Add Another Mile to His Effort in Breaking the Record.

Much speculation is being indulged in by local athletes as to the outcome of the race between Albert Champion and William Stinson next Monday evening at the Colosseum track. Both men are in good condition for the contest and will do their best to make new records. Champion is training hard for his race at Manhattan Beach on Saturday and is in excellent shape for the one-hour straightaway with Stinson on Monday evening.

Champion will leave Manhattan Beach as soon as possible after Saturday's race and will arrive in Pittsburgh on Sunday. He is far in the lead of all pace followers this season and says that he fully expects to break Harry Elkes' record of 41 miles in one hour. Those who have followed Champion's work during the season are confident that he will establish a new hour record at the Colosseum on Monday evening. Stinson has been doing good riding in the east and is in fine condition for the event. He is expected here Sunday evening.

Several more entries have been received for the 10-mile amateur race which will be run on Monday night. The prizes in this contest will make the race lively, as a number of local riders are determined to win honors.

THE VERNERS WERE BEATEN BY CASINOS

An Early Evening Game That Proved a Very Exciting Contest.

DIEBOLD'S CLEVER WORK

With a Man on Third and None Out, the Casino Twirler Struck Out the Next Three Batsmen—The Fielding Was Fine.

The Casinos defeated the Verners yesterday at Friendship park in a fine seven-inning contest. The chief cause of the Verners' defeat was the superb pitching of Diebold, who was splendidly assisted by McCall. In the fifth inning, with a man on third base and none out, Diebold struck out the next three batsmen. Loy pitched an excellent game, but the Casinos hit him at critical stages. Among the other features was the fine fielding of Jordan, Ashenbaugh and Berk. The Verners scored their only run on an error. Score:

THE COAL HODS' VICTORY.

The Pajama Team Went Down to Defeat.

The "Coal Hods" from Logan-Gregg Hardware Company and the "Pajamas" from the Pittsburgh Dry Goods Company got together out at Crafton last night and the Hods carted home a neat little victory. The fact that the Hodl slopes from third to first accounted for a few errors, at three times it looked bad for L. G. H. Co., when Alles got his foghorn in working order, but he took sick at the end of the third inning and six of the merry Hutton shovels covered the play. The game was full of excitement and the umpire, Waldymere, had his hands full watching the lightning base running. He umpired a good fair game and neither team has any kick coming. The score:

East Liverpool Won in Ninth.

East Liverpool defeated the Homestead Library and Athletic club in a fine contest at Homestead yesterday, which was much of a pitcher's battle. Bowman of Homestead had much the best of it, allowing the visitors but three hits, as compared to eight obtained from Malley. However luck was with the visitors. In the ninth, with a score of 1 to 1, on a base on balls by Bowman and an error by Marshall at first, who dropped a hard ball, two men scored and won the game. The score:

SCORES ANOTHER FAILURE.

Second Carnegie Plate for Battleship Missouri Tried at Indian Head.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10.—The six-inch Carnegie plate representing a group of casemate armor for the battleship Missouri, which was substituted for one which failed to pass a satisfactory test a short time ago, was tried at the Indian Head proving grounds today. This plate also failed to pass the test, and, according to the specifications, this second failure rejects the group.

However, it is understood that, at the option of the navy department, still another substitute plate can be submitted for test, and should it pass the acceptance of the entire group is a matter for the navy department to decide.

MUCH PROPERTY IS DEVASTATED BY CLOUDBURST

Raging Streams in Greene County Carry Away Many Buildings.

LIGHTNING CAUSES DEATH

Man and Boy Are Killed—Many Persons Are Injured by Electric Bolts in New Castle—Bridges and Railroad Tracks Washed Out.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Waynesburg, Pa., July 10.—Communication from this town to outside territory was opened about noon today for the first time since last night. The overflowing of Ten Mile creek and its two branches north from here has caused a terrible flood. Today over a score of houses, twice as many stables and miles of railroad track and road bed are scattered over the country, some of them five miles from their original foundations. As yet no loss of life has been reported, although many made narrow escapes.

The flood was caused by a cloudburst. The total loss is estimated at nearly $200,000. The usually quiet Ten Mile creek became as large as the Monongahela river. Eight miles of roadbed of the Waynesburg & Washington railroad were washed out between this place and Deerlick, entailing a loss of at least $25,000. Along with the track and roadbed about a dozen railroad and county bridges were carried away, and travel between this place and outside country for the next two weeks will have to be conducted on horseback and in rigs.

Buchanan bridge, a large county structure about a mile from here, was washed away. The Horne bridge, near the same place, was also washed away. The big Reese mill at Reese station was demolished. It contained a large quantity of grain, wool and wheat. The structure was owned by John P. Reese, and with its machinery was valued at $5,000.

Stores Carried Away.

At Sycamore station, four miles north of here, the store of Charles Petite was almost completely demolished and the greater part of the stock carried away. Petite's loss is $2,000. At Wart station the store owned by Thomas Scott was washed away and also that of Brook Brothers. The latter store was valued at $3,000. At Nineveh 18 stables were washed away and nearly every residence in the town flooded. Dr. W. S. Throckmorton lost a barn and two horses and his residence was damaged to the extent of $1,000.

The Cumberland Presbyterian church at Nineveh was also badly damaged. Frank Smith's store was washed away, entailing a loss of $1,500. R. B. McClumpton's store was torn apart, entailing a loss of $1,000. Another store conducted by James McKee at Nineveh was also flooded and the entire stock ruined.

The waterworks pumping station at this place was badly damaged. The Waynesburg Tin Plate Company's plant was damaged to the extent of $3,000. Farms for miles around were completely washed out and all crops ruined. Many oil derricks were struck by lightning and torn down.

Company K of the Tenth regiment, which left here today for Washington, Pa., whence they will leave for the state encampment, were compelled to travel by wagons.

Many Injured by Lightning.

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—A violent storm was experienced here last night, accompanied by unusually heavy lightning. The dwelling of William Lane on Summit street was struck and Mrs. Lane was stunned and rendered deaf. Her daughter, Daisy was struck on the foot and rendered unconscious. Lightning also struck the residence of James Cox of Dewey avenue, destroying furniture and damaging the house, the chimney coming through the roof.

The handsome new Terrace avenue school building was struck and somewhat damaged. The residence of Mrs. Esther Kissich of North Mercer street was damaged by a heavily-charged electric wire falling across the roof. This charged the metal water trough and all parts of the house were lighted with balls of fire, while the tin and copper troughs were melted off.

Among those injured was the Rev. Dr. J. Q. A. McDowell, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, who was rendered unconscious for a time. James Davis was driving along Moravia street early in the evening, when his horse was struck and instantly killed. Davis escaped without injury. The South New Castle borough school building was also struck and somewhat damaged. The dwelling of Frank Kunkle of Moravia street was struck and the roof damaged.

Man and Boy Killed.

CLAYSVILLE, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—At West Alexander last night two houses were struck by lightning and considerably damaged. They were the Central hotel and the residence of Joel Truesdell. Two persons, Miss Nellie Grim and a child of E. G. Ray, were injured by a derrick on the Miller farm blowing down. Fields are badly washed out and fences were carried away.

ALTOONA, PA., July 10.—Jacob K. Rider, aged 75, one of the best-known farmers in Center county, was killed by lightning yesterday while standing in the doorway of his barn.

TITUSVILLE, PA., July 10.—At Tillotson's Corners lightning struck the large bank barn of James Martin, killing his 15-year-old son. At Centerville the Methodist Episcopal church was partially demolished. Several barns in nearly every section were destroyed and heavy washouts on the Pennsylvania railroad have seriously crippled the train service.

WHEELING, W. VA., July 10.—The Baltimore & Ohio railroad bridge spanning Wheeling creek, on the Pittsburgh division, and leading to the station here was washed away this morning. A train of cars placed on the bridge to hold it against the booming stream went down with the wreck. All the local streams are raging torrents.

Flood Situation Improves.

OMAHA, NEB., July 10.—The flood situation in several parts of the state began to clear up today, with the ceasing of the rains. All the roads entering Omaha report improved conditions all over the state.

TWENTY MEN OUT.

Pressed Steel Car Company Will Stop Making Special Machines.

The Pressed Steel Car Company yesterday reduced its force of machinists at the Woods Run plant. Twenty men were let out. The company some time ago began the manufacture of all the machines used in the construction of the different parts of cars.

Recently it was decided to purchase the machines rather than build them, and orders will be placed with machinery companies for the special work. Some of the machines in use in the McKees Rocks and other plants will also be purchased instead of being made by the company.

BOTH ARE HELD FOR COURT TRIAL

MRS. O'MALLEY AND W. J. HEARIN ARE RELEASED ON BAIL.

Physicians of Woman's Husband Decline to Make Any Statement Regarding His Case — No New Evidence Offered Against the Couple.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—Mrs. Aline Ellis O'Malley, wife of Prof. Austin O'Malley of South Bend, Ind., and William J. Hearin of New York, were today held under $1,200 bail for trial on the charge of stealing jewelry valued at more than $1,000 from Dr. Joseph O'Malley of this city, Mrs. O'Malley's brother-in-law.

William A. Ellis of New York, Mrs. O'Malley's father, was present and furnished the security. Both were released.

At a preliminary hearing last week Mrs. O'Malley and Hearin were committed to the county prison in default of $1,200 bail. At today's hearing no new evidence was presented, but the magistrate decided that a prima facie case had been made out at the previous hearing.

Mrs. O'Malley's husband was brought to this city some weeks ago suffering from the effects of poison. He has since been a patient in St. Agnes' hospital, but the physicians decline to state the result of their diagnosis of his case. His wife, who came from South Bend with him, resided at the home of Dr. Joseph O'Malley until the night of July 1, when she was arrested as she was leaving the house to meet Hearin. The latter was taken into custody while waiting for her at a railroad station. A portion of the jewelry alleged to have been stolen, was found in Hearin's possession on the night of his arrest, besides two railroad tickets for South Bend.

CLASSIFICATION OF CRACKER CONCERNS

How Pittsburgh Establishments Are Listed by Biscuit and Cracker Manufacturers' Association.

The Biscuit and Cracker Manufacturers' Association of the United States of which H. B. Grubbs of St. Louis is president and J. W. Callahan of New York is secretary, have issued a private circular for the information and benefit of the independent bread and cracker bakers, giving so far as can be obtained a correct list of absolutely independent bakeries in the United States, the unclassified bakeries, the National Biscuit Company bakeries (the cracker trust), and manufacturers of cracker bakers' machinery independent of the trust and those controlled by the trust.

According to the circular there are a number of bakeries advertising themselves as independent that are simply blind bakeries, owned or controlled by or in some way allied with the cracker trust, and are used simply for the purpose of fighting independent bakeries. The trust bakeries are classified by the owners as "regular," or those which are openly declared as trust bakeries and sell standard goods; "modified," or those which are controlled by the trust and do not sell entirely standard goods; "agencies," which carry trust goods in stock and represent only a certain trust bakery, and "orphans," which is a term given to bakeries which it is claimed are operated by the trust for the purpose of cutting prices and disorganizing the trade of the independent bakeries.

The total number of independent bakeries mentioned in the circular is 137, and in this list are E. Maginn & Co. of Allegheny, the Ward-Mackey Company and James McClurg & Co. of Pittsburgh. Cracker bakers who claim to be independent, but from the most reliable information obtainable, are supposed to be allied to the trust, 17; Pacific coast combination, reported to be allied with the cracker trust and which does not operate east of the Rocky mountains, provided the cracker trust does not bother it west of the Rockies, 7; cracker bakeries alleged to be owned or controlled by the cracker trust, many of which have been closed down and in whole or partially dismantled, 154.

Of those 97 are listed as "regular;" 11 "modified;" 12 "agencies," and 14 "orphans." The Marvin bakery is included in the circular as a regular and Holmes-Coutts-Larrabee as an agency in Pittsburgh and the Herd bakery as a regular in Allegheny.

The circular also gives a list of 14 manufacturers of crackers, cake, biscuit and bread machinery, who are independent of the cracker trust, or at least such as will take orders and execute work for independent bakers, although it is claimed by some independent bakers that one or two of these are in some way very closely allied with the trust. This is followed by the names of nine firms in the same line of business which are presumed to be controlled by the combine. The Bakers' Machinery Company of Pittsburgh is named as being in the first named class.

...ND VOICES SANG THE LAST FAREWELL

Close of the Christian Endeavor Convention Was Inspiring.

YATES WAS RE-ELECTED

Other Officers for the Coming Year. Praise for Pittsburgh in Resolutions Adopted—Big Rally of the Juniors in the Afternoon.

Ten thousand people gathered under Tent Endeavor last night for the closing exercises of the fifteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Endeavor union. Rarely has a more impressive sight been seen at an outdoor gathering. It was a hard heart in which some responsive chord could not be found when this Christian host sang sweetly and softly, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and then again when, before parting for their various spheres of action, they bade each other Godspeed in the lines of the popular Endeavor hymn, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

REV. ALONZO J. TURKLE.
Who was one of the most interesting talkers before the convention.

One of the pleasant features of the evening was the announcement that the Rev. W. N. Yates of Philadelphia had been unanimously elected to succeed himself. President Yates conducted the closing services, during which he announced the following list of officers for the year, which was indorsed by acclamation:

List of Officers Announced.

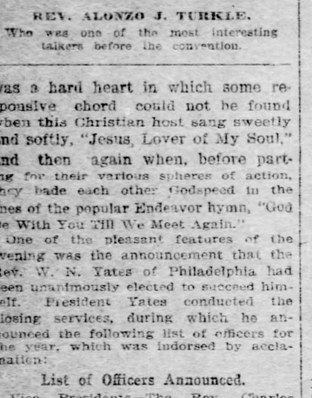
John Weidley, Lutheran, Pittsburgh; the Rev. W. A. Russell, Reformed Presbyterian, Pittsburgh; the Rev. Wayland Hoyt, Baptist, Philadelphia; the Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, Episcopal, Philadelphia; the Rev. R. C. Banner, Presbyterian, Williamsport; the Rev. Robert F. Y. Pierce, Baptist, Scranton; the Rev. A. B. Saylor, Methodist Episcopal, Lebanon; the Rev. S. G. Yahn, Church of God, Mt. Pleasant; the Rev. W. W. Williamson, Altoona; George McDonald, Presbyterian, Altoona; John H. Bollen, Pittsburgh; M. M. Cochran, Christian, Uniontown.

Secretary—M. D. Lathrop, Baptist, Carbondale.

Treasurer—J. Henry Stauff, Baptist, Pittsburgh.

Superintendents of Departments—Junior, T. J. Grant Shields, Philadelphia; missionary, Mrs. C. L. Brown, Shippensburg; citizenship, the Rev. S. W. Wedel, Manheim; evangelistic, the Rev. Charles A. Oliver, York; correspondence, Miss M. W. Rice, Exeter; intermediate, J. S. Robinson, Philadelphia.

The resolutions committee presented resolutions commending the management of the St. Louis exposition in deciding to close on Sundays, and both the city of Pittsburgh and the newspapers for the hearty reception given the Endeavorers.



JOHN H. BALLEN,
President Allegheny County Christian Endeavor Union.

A resolution was also adopted pledging the Endeavor union to the work of a final prohibition of the liquor traffic.

McCollum's Work Appreciated.

Director J. F. McCollum, whose untiring efforts gave the convention a well-trained choir, was heartily applauded by the entire gathering, which rose to show its appreciation of his work.

One of the most earnest workers of the convention was the Rev. J. W. Righter, chairman of the press committee. Mr. Righter is pastor of the Mt. Washington Methodist Protestant church, and has been working hard night and day for the past six months that Pittsburgh might reap the full benefit of such a gathering. He was assisted in this work by another Pittsburgh minister, the Rev. C. L. Thurgood pastor of the Central Christian church.

The addresses last night were delivered by the Revs. George B. Stewart and Herbert E. Foss. Mr. Foss' address was on "The Field" and Mr. Stewart's on "How to Reach It." In the course of his address Mr. Foss said:

Young People of the Present Day.

The young people's movement, more than any other, is affording us good hope of a union of force and effort.

There were always children and youth in the church, but they were non-participants in its labors, and non-combatants in its battles. Practically they were nonentities, but today millions of young men and women, the very flower of our homes, the calvalry of the church of God, the light horse of the Army of Jesus Christ, are closely allied for the conquest of all wrong and the enthronement of all right. Organization increases power and adds vastly to responsibility. Business combinations are for increase of wealth. Political alliances are for expansion of power. Our fellowship is an unselfish one.

Dr. Clark's thought when he organized the first Society of Christian Endeavor was not "what good times these young people might have if they were banded together" nor "what a magnificent sight these marching millions would present to the world," but what energies are lying dormant! "What a vast power is running to waste in the ardor and pent up energy of youth!" Those who think of the young people's society as a sort of clearing "What is this thing?" We expect the house for social joys wholly misunderstand our mission. At the heart of the motto of every young people's society is the thought of service. We live in a practical age. We are constantly asking answer to be in terms of usefulness. Freaks and fads have a limited market. But the cry of all classes worth considering is for the useful.

When the addresses had been made President Yates ordered the sides of the great tent drawn and then delivered a soul-thrilling appeal to the Endeavorers to carry on their work in God's name. It was during this service that the entire convention sang softly "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

Big Rally of the Juniors.

The afternoon of the closing day of the convention was devoted to a rally of the juniors and a most impressive sight was presented when 2,000 boys and girls marched from Schenley park to the big tent. The procession was escorted by the Third regiment Boys' brigade, each society having its banner bearer and nearly all the children carrying flowers of the rarest kind. There were 54 societies represented, as follows, the number in line for each society being indicated:

Aspinwall Presbyterian, 19; Knoxville Christian, 27; Connellsville, 4; Fourth Presbyterian, —; Knoxville Presbyterian, 13; Watson Memorial, Allegheny, 8; St. Mark's Lutheran, Allegheny, 18; Mt. Olivet, —; Wilmerding Presbyterian, 13; Fourth Methodist Protestant, 58; Tabernacle Presbyterian, 7; First Mennonite, 7; Trinity Lutheran, Allegheny, 1; Calvary Lutheran, Wilkinsburg, 24; Grace Lutheran, Allegheny, 14; Fourth Avenue Christian, 11; Sandusky Street Baptist, Allegheny, —; Morningside Presbyterian, 18; Beltzhoover mission, 19; Concord Presbyterian, 23; Melrose Avenue Presbyterian, 15; Second United Presbyterian, Allegheny, 27; Lawrence Presbyterian, 11; Mt. Washington Methodist Protestant, 9; First Pentecostal, 6; Apple Avenue mission, 5; Westminster Presbyterian, 9; St. Peter's German Lutheran, 58; Mt. Zion Lutheran, 45; Faith chapel, Spring Garden borough, 31; Knoxville Methodist Protestant, 23; Aiken Avenue Methodist Protestant, 4; Bellefield Presbyterian, 37; Second Presbyterian, Allegheny, 19; Pitcairn Presbyterian, 4; Forty-third Street Presbyterian, 16; Ebenezer Baptist, 3; Brown's Chapel, 20; Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian, 15; Bethany Lutheran, 23; Aiken Avenue Methodist Protestant, 4; Bellefield Presbyterian, 37; Second Presbyterian, Allegheny, 19; Pitcairn Presbyterian, 4; Forty-third Street Presbyterian, 16; Ebenezer Baptist, 3; Brown's Chapel, 20; Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian, 15; Bethany Lutheran, 28; Wildwood Christian, 8; Noblestown United Presbyterian, 4; Greenfield Presbyterian, 3; Hayesville Presbyterian, 7; Oakmont Presbyterian, 3; Sheraden, 23; Bristol Street Presbyterian, 7; First Presbyterian, Sheraden, 39; Clifton Presbyterian, 22; Eighteenth Street Methodist Protestant, 2; Wilkinsburg Presbyterian, 36; Avalon Presbyterian, 16.

President Yates of the State union, presided over the meeting in the tent, while the music was under the direction of Prof. E. F. Butts.

On the stage was a choir of about 200 of the elder juniors, who led in the singing.

Flowers Used in the Service.

It was the children's flowerday and the little ones were happy and "full of sunshine," which they scattered gratuitously until the big tent was filled with the rays. Even nature smiled on the occasion, for, although the day opened none too auspiciously, the big kindly sun looked down on the little ones through the thick canvas.

The prize banner for the largest percentage was awarded to the Junior society of Faith chapel, Spring Garden borough, and the banner for the largest number was captured by the society of the Fourth Methodist Protestant church. The society of Mt. Zion Lutheran church received honorable mention.

The Helen May Butler band, composed of young women, now playing in one of the trolley resorts of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, was loaned to the Endeavorers for this occasion and assisted very materially in the musical services.

One of the many pleasing incidents of the junior rally was the flower service conducted by the South Side district. Several hundred children gathered flowers of varied hue, which, after the singing of some song, they placed on the platform. These flower offerings will be presented to the various hospitals. The missionary committee under the direction of the Sheraden society made a beautiful plea for "All the World for Christ."

The Rev. Dr. Clarence Eberman, field secretary of the United Endeavor societies, made an address to the little ones.

Sensational Trial at Jerusalem Ends in Sentence of 34 Greeks.

FRANCE HAS LOST THE PROTECTORATE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

JERUSALEM, July 10.—A sensational trial here, the result of the clash between Greek and Latin monks in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, surmounting Christ's tomb, in November last, has resulted in the sentencing of 34 Greeks, including 12 priests, to terms of imprisonment ranging from a week to nine months.

The most interesting point which developed after the disturbance was the fact nor generally known that Germany and Italy, in supporting the claims of their wounded monks, obtained an irade from the sultan recognizing their right to protect their respective subjects and that thus France's claim to an exclusive protectorate over all the Catholic clergy in the east is no longer admitted.

The dispute between the Franciscans and Greeks arose on the question as to which community had the right to sweep the church. Troops had been posted in the vicinity for several days previous to the outbreak in order to prevent the anticipated collision, but they were evidently outnumbered and overpowered by the contending parties. There were several casualties on both sides.

CORONATION MAY TAKE PLACE AUG. 9

Rumors of Malignant Disease of King Edward Are Officially Denied.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, July 10.—It is said on good authority that, subject to the approval of King Edward's physicians, the coronation will take place August 9. The bulletin on King Edward's condition posted at Buckingham palace today says: "The king's condition continues to be satisfactory."

An authoritative statement regarding the health of King Edward was published in today's issue of the British Medical Journal. It says:

"In view of the fact that sinister stories continue to be manufactured and printed, it may be again stated as emphatically as possible that during the operation no trace of malignant disease was observed, that no suspicion of any kind has arisen since, and that the medical attendants are quite satisfied that his majesty's constitution is thoroughly sound."

The Journal adds: "The progress of the last week has been everything that could be desired. The wound, though still deep, is granulating well. During the last 10 days the improvement in his majesty's general health has been remarkably rapid. The king has regained his strength almost completely and is able to take restricted diet with a good appetite."

The Lancet also stigmatizes as "lies" the sensational rumors circulated, and says:

"There is not and never has been the faintest shadow or ghost of a suspicion of any malignant disease." The Lancet specifically asserts that the king is free from cancer.

VOLCANIC CLOUD APPEARS.

Population of Martinique Again Frightened by Pillar of Smoke.

FORT DE FRANCE, MARTINIQUE, July 10.—Between 8 and 9 o'clock yesterday evening a volcanic cloud, charged with electricity, appeared in the sky. The cloud was intensely black seemed constellated with luminous points and was streaked vertically and horizontally with lightning. The cloud was accompanied by loud thundering and the atmosphere was distressingly warm. The population was frightened, but remained calm.

IRISH CONSTABULARY OPENLY CHARGED WITH CREATION OF CRIME

British Administration Is Attacked in House of Commons.

PACKING OF JURIES IS ALSO ALLEGED

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, July 10.—The vote on the Irish estimates in the house of commons today furnished the Nationalists with an opportunity for a stirring attack on the British administration of Ireland and the "nefarious operations" of the Irish constabulary, which body of men, John Dillon declared, were maintained not to protect crime, but to create it.

Mr. Dillon specified instances where force was instrumental in obtaining the conviction and imprisonment of innocent persons and charged the government with winking at these malpractices in order to obtain justification for its policy of coercion.

T. P. O'Connor (Nationalist) declared that, politically speaking, the real criminal was the attorney general for Ireland, J. Atkinson, because he practiced jury-packing.

Sir Robert T. Reid (Liberal) said he considered the action of the Irish police to be dastardly. He further asserted that matters would never be remedied until self government for Ireland put an end to jury-packing.

This brought Attorney General Atkinson to his feet with a hot retort that Sir Robert, who now professed such lofty and noble sentiments, had remained for three years a member of the administration and had indulged in jury-packing to an extent "unknown to the present government."

The chief secretary for Ireland, George Wyndham, admitted that there was much truth in what Mr. Dillon had said in regard to specific cases, but the charges were not applicable to the whole police force. After further debate Mr. Dillon's motion to reduce the estimates was defeated by 195 to 102 votes.

IT NOW APPEARS THAT POWERS WAS KILLED IN A ROW

Coroner McGeary Learns of a Fight Had Over a Woman.

DISPUTE ON TROLLEY CAR

Two Men Got Off to Settle It and One of Them Was Afterward Found Dead Near Rankin—Matter to Be Thoroughly Probed.

Coroner McGeary has another murder mystery to solve. Michael Powers of Braddock, who was found lifeless on the tracks of the Pittsburgh Railways Company near Rankin early in the morning of June 15, is now supposed to have come to his death through foul means. Coroner McGeary held a partial inquest yesterday, and when he learned that Powers had several quarrels during the night previous to the morning he was found dead he adjourned the hearing until July 16.

Powers was found on the tracks by Motorman Charles Reese, with his skull fractured. Motorman Reese was unable to stop the car before it passed over Powers' legs. From the indications at that time there was every evidence that Powers had been struck by some blunt instrument. It was learned, however, that Powers had been drinking during the evening and after he was examined by a physician it was said that he had been dead some time before the car had passed over him. It was then conjectured that he had been struck by a train on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, just above the place where he was found, and hurled to the tracks below.

This surmise was at that time accepted by Coroner McGeary and the body was identified by his brother and interred. About two weeks ago it was learned that Powers had been fighting in Kennywood park and in Ward's restaurant at Braddock with some unknown person over a young woman, whose name is known to Coroner McGeary as Jessie Murphy.

This woman accompanied the men to the park on that afternoon and was with them when they had the quarrel in the restaurant. Late in the evening she left them and it was afterward learned by Powers' brother that Michael had fought with the other man while riding on car No. 490 with Conductor Douglass. Douglass put a stop to their fighting on the car and the two men then decided to settle their dispute when they got off the car.

Powers and the other man got off the car near the point where Powers' body was found. That was the last time the dead man was seen alive.

James R. Huff, who knew Powers, said Powers told him he was going to have some trouble with his companion as soon as they could get to a convenient place to settle the dispute.

The remains of Powers are to be exhumed Saturday morning. Coroner McGeary is not satisfied with the examination of the Braddock physician and intends to have his physician, Dr. Walter E. McCandless, make an examination of the body. He said last night that he felt confident Powers was killed in a quarrel by some unknown persons in an altercation over the Murphy woman.

Powers was a steam fitter and lived at No. 209 Bell avenue, Braddock.

BUSINESS MAN MISSING.

Former Pittsburgher Mysteriously Disappears from South Sharon.

SHARON, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—Friends of Henry Horr of South Sharon are worried over his disappearance. Horr was engaged in the furniture and china business at South Sharon. Last week he sold his stock to a Pittsburgh man for $1,200. Besides, he collected over $800, which he also carried on his person. The last seen of Horr was on Monday, July 7.

He formerly resided at Pittsburgh and his acquaintances there have been notified of his disappearance. Nothing is known of his whereabouts in that city. The supposition that he has been foully dealt with is discredited by the police.

WERE SPLASHED BY 40 TONS OF METAL

TERRIFYING ACCIDENT IN THE BIG HOMESTEAD PLANT.

An Electric Crane Broke While Swinging a Great Pot of Molten Steel and an Appalling Horror Was Narrowly Averted—List of the Injured.

By the breaking of a support to an electric crane in the Homestead steel works yesterday morning eight men were badly burned by the 40 tons of molten steel splashed about. Those injured were:

MICHAEL LAVIN, Pittsburgh; burned about face, neck and body; taken to Mercy hospital; may die.

JOHN SULLIVAN, Munhall; burned about the arms and head; taken to his home.

GEORGE ANDERSON, Duquesne; burned about the back and arms; taken home.

THOMAS CONBOY, Munhall; burned about the body.

H. E. STEVENS, No. 205 Fifteenth avenue, Homestead; burned about the back and legs.

ALBERT SHORTHILL, McClure street, Homestead; burned about the chest and arms.

PATRICK FALLON, Sixth avenue, Homestead; burned on neck and back.

WALTER REED, Camden; burned on arms and back.

Four others received spatterings of the metal which inflicted painful injuries. A ladle containing hot steel was near the top of a crane. One side of the supporter gave away and the ponderous vessel, containing 40 tons of the hot metal, slid down its fastenings and fell back into the pit, throwing streams of the fiery liquid to all parts of the mill. A terrific explosion resulted as soon as the mass struck the pit.

No one was near the pit when the ladle fell or the loss of life would have been appalling. The 12 men who were injured were not seriously hurt with the exception of Lavin. After being attended to at the emergency hospital at the plant, the men were all sent to their homes except Lavin, who was sent on a special car to the Mercy hospital.

DOVENER RENOMINATED.

West Virginia Congressman Is Named at Wheeling for Sixth Term.

WHEELING, W. VA., July 10.—(Special.)—Capt. Blackburn B. Dovener, Republican, was renominated today for congress from the First district.

Capt. Dovener is now serving his fifth consecutive term in congress and is among the few remaining members who served in the civil war. He took a prominent part upon his entrance into national legislation in rivers and harbors and was placed upon that committee, where he has been one of the most potent forces in securing legislation favorable to the Ohio river and its tributaries. He has given especial attention to that phase of improvements and has studied carefully the needs of the country, so that he is thoroughly familiar with every river, lake and sea port.

He is third on the rivers and harbors committee, being preceded by Representatives Burton of Ohio and Reeves of Illinois, and it looked for a time as though he would soon be honored with the chairmanship because of the determination of Burton to retire from political life, Reeves waiving his rights for the place.

The Republican majority is normally about 3,000.

CHARLESTON, W. VA., July 10.—Democrats of the Third congressional district at Hinton today nominated James H. Miller of Hinton to oppose Congressman Gaines for re-election.

VISIT PLEASANT AND THE RESULT IS SATISFACTORY

That Is the Extent of Senator Quay's Report on His Trip to Harrisburg.

RUMOR OF UNIQUE DEAL

Report Says Charlemagne Tower Is to Become Mayor of Philadelphia and Gov. Stone to Go to Russia as Ambassador.

By CHESTER D. POTTER,
Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 10.—Senators Quay and Penrose arrived here at noon and went to the Penrose residence in Spruce street. Only those who had appointments were seen by the senators, and one of these, it is stated, was Judge S. W. Pennypacker, Republican candidate for governor. Col. Quay left for Pittsburgh this evening. He will start for Maine next Monday and expects to be away several weeks.

"You may quote Senator Quay as saying," said Senator Penrose tonight, "that his visit with Gov. Stone was very pleasant and entirely satisfactory. Attorney General Elkin and T. Larry Eyre called on Col. Quay and remained in consultation with him and the governor until 1 o'clock this morning. Judge Pennypacker will resign from the bench at the end of this month and place his services at the disposal of the state committee."

Beyond this statement Senator Penrose declined to be quoted. Point blank was his refusal to discuss any of the hypothetical propositions submitted bearing on what "might have been" talked about or agreed upon between Quay and Penrose, parties of the first part, and Stone and Elkin, parties of the second part. It seems to be admitted, however, that a course of action having for its purpose a record-smashing majority for the state ticket this fall was mutually agreed to.

Means Penrose's Re-Election.

While there is no open admission that this includes the support of Stone and Elkin for the re-election of Senator Penrose, no one doubts that such is the case, for had it not been so there would have been no necessity for Penrose to have accompanied Col. Quay to Harrisburg.

In the reticence of those at the meeting is found the excuse for much speculation as to what really happened, and while the theories are necessarily conjectural some are interesting. Some credence is given the story that Quay and Penrose visited Stone for the sole purpose of inducing him to use his influence with the regular Republican organization in Pittsburgh to withdraw its objections to an indorsement of Judge Pennypacker by the Citizens party. Whether this was, or was not, the controlling motive of the mission it is announced that the governor will not object to Judge Pennypacker's receiving the indorsement of the Citizens party or that of any other organization potential in character.

Probably the most sensational explanation of what really occurred at the executive mansion last night, one given on "outside" authority, is that which will be printed in the morning by the Philadelphia Public Ledger. In substance the Ledger will say "the harmony basis of last night's conference is that Stone will succeed Charlemagne Tower as ambassador to Russia; Mr. Tower will be elected mayor of Philadelphia; Penrose will succeed himself; Elkin to continue as attorney general under Pennypacker, and his friends to be given recognition by the next administration."

Would Certainly Please Stone.

The Ledger does not claim to have authority from principals to make the statement, but declares that well-informed persons are convinced as to its correctness. It proceeds with the statement that Gov. Stone is anxious to remain in public life; that he realizes the future holds nothing for him so far as his home state is concerned and that a mission abroad would be much to his liking, particularly the social atmosphere of such an appointment. The influence of Senators Quay and Penrose with President Roosevelt, it is argued, is such that it would be an easy matter to have Stone sent to Russia, especially so if, as rumor has it, Ambassador Tower wants to resign and accept the mayoralty of Philadelphia.

The extremely friendly relations between Mr. Tower and Senator Penrose, and the further interest of the ambassador in the candidacy of Judge Pennypacker, are referred to, and the point made that they are connecting links in the great party harmony chain being forged by Quay in the interest of party unity and party success. This "agreement," it is stated, hinges upon the success of Pennypacker and Penrose, and as the basis has a "community of interest" flavor it is contended that all concerned will earnestly and loyally strive for its accomplishment.

ELKIN TO TAKE STUMP.

Attorney General Announces That He Will Work for the Ticket.

HARRISBURG, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—Attorney General Elkin will go on the stump this fall for the Republican state ticket. Mr. Elkin gave out this information today before he left for his home in Indiana. He declined to tell what occurred at his meeting with Senators Quay and Penrose last night at the executive mansion. Gov. Stone also would say nothing.

Elkin and Public Buildings Superintendent Eyre went to the mansion about 11 o'clock in response to a telephone message and stayed until the conference closed, long after midnight.

INSPECTING STEEL MILLS

Joseph E. Schwab and Party Visit Plants That Are to Be Absorbed by American Foundry Co.

SHARON, PA., July 10.—(Special.)—Joseph E. Schwab of New York, Daniel Eagan of Philadelphia, president of the Ann Steel Castings Company; Mr. Gilbert of the Sergeant Steel Company of Chicago, and Clarence Howard of St. Louis, are on a tour of inspection of the plants to be taken over by the American Steel Foundries Company, the $40,000,000 steel castings combine recently incorporated in New Jersey.

Jailed for Beating Women.

William Calvin of the West End was sent to jail yesterday upon charges of assault and battery made by Ella Meyers and Theresa Fohart. The women claim that their brothers and Calvin had some trouble and when they met Calvin on the Washington pike last Saturday night he blackened both their eyes.

WELCOME COOL WAVE GAVE NEEDED RELIEF

Pittsburghers Do Not Appear Able to Withstand July Torridity as They Used To.

Now that the torrid weather has at least temporarily passed from this section the curious fact can be noted that the residents of Pittsburgh are no longer able to withstand as they used to the waves of heat which visit this section during July.

During the last hot wave the highest temperature recorded at the office of the local weather bureau for any one day was on last Sunday, when the temperature reached a maximum of 93 degrees. The record of deaths was probably never surpassed, yet in the 15 years previous to 1895 the temperatures during hot waves in July on only one occasion fell below the highest temperature recorded during the last hot spell.

The records as compiled at the local weather office show that during the 15 year previous to 1895 there were hot spells in July during which the temperatures ranged from 90 degrees to 105 degrees. In all instances except one the maximum temperatures rose above 93 degrees, but there is no mention of great loss of life or serious illness through the heat.

The sudden fall in the temperature in Pittsburgh yesterday came within five degrees of breaking the record for a low maximum temperature on July 8. Yesterday's maximum was 76 degrees and the only record of the temperature being lower on this date was in 1895, when the mercury only reached a maximum of 71 degrees. There was little change in the temperatures yesterday. At 3 a. m. it was 71 degrees and from 5 to 10 a. m. the mercury remained stationary at 60. At noon it moved up to 75 and from 2 to 5 p. m. it was stationary at 76 degrees.

Norfolk, Va., was the hottest place in the United States yesterday, the maximum temperature being 98 degrees.

Local Stocks Were Again Very Dull in an Irregular Market

WINDOW GLASS DECLINED ON LIGHT TRADING

Crucible Steel Preferred Broke Sharply at the Last Moment.

U. S. STEELS ARE HIGHER

The Bank Shares Passed Without a Trade—Coalers Were Quiet, but Steady to Firm—Electrics and Air-brake Very Dull—Bonds Firm.

The market on the Pittsburgh stock exchange yesterday was again exceedingly dull. In fact, it started out as if it meant to break the year's record for the smallness of the business transacted. Just before the close, however, a selling movement of a few hundred shares brought the sales up to not quite 2,100 shares and so saved the day. But it was dull, thoroughly dull, and when some kind of a parade passed on the street below the brokers had nothing better to do than to line the windows and make jokes at the expense of the paraders. The market was, however, a shade firmer, in some respects and though generally irregular, indicated a somewhat better feeling. The sales were limited to but 17 different securities and of these five closed unchanged, six advanced from ⅛ to 1⅛ and six declined from ⅛ to ⅞. The largest trading was in Crucible Steel preferred, which sold a little over 500 shares, opening at 85⅞. Just before the close a broker appeared with a selling order for something over 300 shares, which he marketed at 85½, a loss of ⅜ for the day. The common stock was very dull, but somewhat firmer, advancing ⅛ to 21⅛ sales and ¼ more to 21½ bid. United States Steel common was considerably firmer in sympathy with the action of the market in the east, where supporting orders were much in evidence. It closed at 39 sales and bid, an advance of ⅞. The preferred was also easier and ⅛ higher at 90½. But 200 shares of each came out. Next to Crucible Steel preferred in point of activity was American Window Glass common, which sold 434 shares. The movement, however, was at the expense of values and the stock closed ⅛ lower at 62¾. The preferred opened at 94 without bids. United States Glass preferred did not sell, but advanced 1½ to 142⅛ bid, with offers at 150. Not a bank stock found a purchaser and the only change of note was a decline to 280 asked for Real Estate Trust. Bids of 288 were made. A small lot of Guarantee Title & Trust Company sold at 136 ex-dividend 1½ per cent, which was a gain of 1½. The coalers were quiet but steady to firm and Pittsburgh Coal preferred rallied ½ to 92, at which price 400 shares offered later. Westinghouse Electric and Air Brake were very dull and only nominally quoted. Bonds were firm and in fair demand. $38,000 Pittsburgh Brewing Company 6s finding a buyer at 110¾.

The following is a complete summary of yesterday's official transactions on the Pittsburgh stock exchange. It shows the change in the closing selling prices, compared with the last preceding sales, the total sales of each security, the opening, high, low and closing prices and final bids and offers.

The move in American sugar in the afternoon had the appearance of an old time movement, but interests which have been very active in the stock heretofore pretend to know nothing about it.

Just five different securities were dealt in during the first half hour; during the second half hour the number was increased to eight, while in the 1½ hours from 12:30 to 2 p. m. only three found buyers. The total sales to 2 p. m. were only 1,325 shares.

Post & Flagg of New York wired: We get the following from one of our Chicago correspondents: "Don't be fooled on the rains; they add $100 of value where they destroy $1. The biggest corn crop in our history will be the result of the much rain."

A Wall street broker wired: I have never known the time yet when a corner did not cause trouble. Last May a year ago the panic was caused by a corner in Northern Pacific. Certainly the price of July corn cannot be of assistance to speculation in the stock exchange.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the old preferred stock of the National Fire Proofing Company, amounting to $3,000,-000, is payable Saturday next. The new stock comes full paid Tuesday next, when the capital will then be $8,000,000 preferred and $4,-500,000 common stock.

Wednesday H. M. Long sold $5,000 Pittsburgh Brewing Company 6s at 110¾, and yesterday he bought $30,000 from E. Fink at the same price. Mr. Fink has succeeded in marketing a good many of these bonds during the last month. He also sold $7,000 to E. D. Gruner & Co. at 110¾.

The failure of the Louisville & Nashville directors to increase the dividend caused some little disappointment, but the floating supply of this stock is so limited that the effect was practically nil and the stock seemed to be in demand by the same class of buyers who have been picking it up for some time past. Much higher prices have been talked for Louisville & Nashville, and the action of the directors in declining to increase the declaration seems to indicate that somebody is willing to buy it in large amounts at these prices.

New York time money seems to be working considerably higher, due to the increased demand from houses anxious to provide themselves with funds over the balance of the year and also to the rather large shipments earlier than usual for crop movement purposes. It would seem that this indicates that the interior expects a large demand from farmers to move their crops and are thus preparing themselves at this early date. It is believed that money will unquestionably work higher, but the cause of it is thought to be the result of the healthful business conditions throughout the country and a large demand for funds to large commercial enterprises.

A prominent southern planter is quoted thus: "I feel that the average planter factor and cotton dealer in the south has gone short of the New York stock exchange firms' favorable markets in anticipation of a bumper crop and they stubbornly refuse to change their position despite the outlook. My chief reason for so believing is that my representative in the south, who is thoroughly reliable, reports a critical situation over important parts of central and western belts and reports that the crop at best is a spotted one. From these same points comes private telegrams of rain in needed in only a few sections only. The official government reports confirms my man's report, but the planter sticks to the bumper crop idea."

The United Realty Trust Company opened its new banking department in its handsome remodeled rooms on Fourth avenue yesterday afternoon. The place was finely decorated with plants and cut flowers and a reception was held from 2 to 5 p. m. The United Realty Company took over the Union Realty Company, which previously had absorbed the business of Reed B. Coyle & Co., John K. Ewing & Co., M. F. Hipple & Co. and Charles F. Rankin & Co. The company now does a general banking, trust and real estate business, being specially equipped therefor. The officers are Robert J. Coyle, Jr., president; George R. All Cereals Lower in Chicago

GOOD WEATHER CAUSE OF FALL AT THE OPENING

Small Movements and Rumors of Bad Crop Report Steady the Market.

LITTLE DOING IN CORN

July Opens One Cent Lower, Makes Upward Jump Then Falls Back to Close Four Cents Down—Oats Easier.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, July 10.—Clear skies, with prospects of fair weather generally during the next 24 hours, caused a drop in prices of all grains on the board of trade today and trading was extremely light. September wheat closed ¼c lower, September corn was ⅜@½c lower, with oats ⅞c lower. Provisions closed from 10c to 20c higher.

There was a decline in wheat at the opening, due to more favorable weather, but the selling was not heavy and was principally on local account. Small movements and rumors of bad crop reports together with evening up for the government report gave steadiness to the market. Offerings which were rather light early in the session became more free toward the latter part of the day and prices again weakened. September opened ⅜c lower, at 73¼@73⅜c, advanced to 74c on restricted offerings, reacting toward the close, which was ¼c lower at 73⅝@73½c. Primary receipts were 423,000 bushels, against 655,000 bushels a year ago. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 303,000 bushels. Local receipts were 58 cars, with 11 of contract grade.

Little Doing in Corn.

Comparatively little trading was done in corn, and the feeling on the whole was dull. Better weather prospects caused some selling, but small receipts and numerous reports of damage by heavy rains had a strengthening effect. July corn was spe

ME RIVALRY EXISTS OVER THE LEADER'S PLACE

Two Prominent Republicans Claim to Be Organization Leaders.

M. S. QUAY MAY DECIDE

At Any Rate the Reorganized Organization Will Not Stand It to Have Recorder Brown at the Helm—Von Bonnhorst Goes East Tonight.

The visit Senator M. S. Quay made last Tuesday to the organization headquarters in Sixth avenue appears to have started a ripple of trouble that in time may assume the proportions of a wave and possibly call for interference from the Beaver county man; in other words, he may yet have to designate, intimate or appoint the man he wants for a leader in Allegheny county.

The dispute seems to be between County Recorder George M. von Bonnhorst and County Chairman Andrew C. Robertson. Both are claiming powers and the rivalry promises to grow.

There was some talk yesterday to the effect that Recorder J. O. Brown would be placed in charge of the reorganized forces, but this report was not given the least credence among organization workers. The fact of the matter is that Senator Quay in the first place would not allow the recorder to be placed at the helm, and even if he should consent to Brown as the head of the organization there is so much dissatisfaction among ring men that they would rebel against his appointment.

Robertson Declares Himself.

"Who is the organization leader of the county?" was asked County Chairman Robertson yesterday afternoon.

"I am," was the quick reply. "I have been for some time and will continue to hold my position."

County Recorder von Bonnhorst claims leadership honors and does not hesitate to say that he is entitled to them. His action in delivering six delegates from Allegheny county to Judge S. W. Pennypacker in the Harrisburg convention is said to have been according to agreement with Senator Quay, and von Bonnhorst is said to have been given the understanding that the county leadership would be turned over to him when the organization was reorganized. Mr. von Bonnhorst also claims the honor of having Senator Quay make his call at organization headquarters.

Mr. von Bonnhorst stated yesterday that he expected to go east tonight. He will possibly stop at Philadelphia for a short political conference with men who are prominent in politics. He denied emphatically yesterday that he was going to the shore on any political mission, but "just merely to take a dip in the surf."

Brennen Is in No Hurry.

Chairman William J. Brennen of the Democratic county convention, who was empowered to appoint a committee of three members for the purpose of selecting candidates for congress, said yesterday that he would be in no hurry about appointing the committee.

It was whispered around in Democratic circles that Charles A. Fagan would be a member of the committee, but Mr. Brennen declined to say who he would appoint.

It is altogether probable that the Citizens candidate for congress will be indorsed by the committee to be selected and that the county executive committee will ratify the action of the subcommittee in making this selection.

The Citizens committee will probably have a meeting before the end of the present week to determine which state candidates are to be supported on their tickets. There does not seem to be the least doubt but what Pennypacker will be indorsed.

James E. O'Donnell, chairman of the Democratic convention in the Eighth legislative district, yesterday appointed the committee to name a nomination for member of the general assembly in that district.

The committee consists of D. M. White of McKeesport, R. J. Dailey of the Thirty-seventh ward, M. L. Thompson of Wilkinsburg, M. W. McDonald of Turtle Creek and W. A. McDevitt of Braddock. The committee will meet at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the parlor of the National hotel, McKeesport.

Purman Is Still Talking.

Dr. John Purman of Homestead, chairman of the committee of three to name a Democratic ticket for the legislature in the Sixth district, is determined to have representation for the Democrats in that district. Dr. Purman has written letters to all of the county committeemen who reside in the Thirty-second congressional district asking them to assist in the arrangements for calling primaries preparatory to holding a convention to nominate a candidate for congress.

Dr. Purman emphatically declares that unless there is a way for representation on the fusion ticket in the Sixth legislative district for a Democrat there will not only be a Democratic candidate for congress, but also two straight Democrats nominated on a straight Democratic legislative ticket, and that in the selection of these candidates the labor unions will be recognized.

DISCUSSING COMBINE.

Window Glass Men Meet, but Independents Object to Increase in Prices.

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—Window glass manufacturers from all sections of the country met today to form a combination and advance prices. The meeting was called by the American Window Glass Company. Several prominent independent manufacturers are at the meeting. It is said the latter are opposed to an advance in price.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Independent Glass Company and other outside manufacturers not present to arrange for co-operation in regard to the time of starting fires, prices, and wages for the coming year. It is suggested that manufacturers begin blast not later than October, for the season of 1902-3 and continue not to exceed eight calendar months. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

It often baffles even the wise physician to detect the cause of failing health and strength. In the great majority of cases, it is due to the presence of worms, and where these exist Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge will always effect a cure.

Over 118,000 Passengers Carried on July 4

SHORTAGE OF CARS FOR BIG EXCURSION

About 25,000 People Expected at Odd Fellows' House Dedication at Grove City.

The expected business from this city and vicinity to the dedication of the Odd Fellows' home, at Grove City July 17, has put both the managers of the dedication and the lines interested in the business up in the air. It is said that from 20,000 to 25,000 people will endeavor to be in Grove City on this occasion and the most strenuous efforts are being made to obtain coaches enough to transport the crowds. The big demand comes right in the midst of the excursion season and the railroads frankly confess their inability to furnish adequate accommodations.

One of the excursion committee went to one of the lines interested yesterday and presented the money for 400 tickets. He was told the line could not carry them; that every bit of available space, in every available car, had already been sold. In desperation he offered to pay the price if the company would put chairs on flat cars and when this was refused he offered double the fare for such accommodations. It was still refused as a matter of safety.

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie has already set aside 30 coaches for the business. The Baltimore & Ohio has secured 70 extra coaches for the day and is in better shape to handle 5,000 passengers than any of the other lines. The Pennsylvania lines are likewise making heavy drafts upon their equipment to care for the business. Grove City is upon the Bessemer alone and all of this business will have to pass over the Bessemer tracks from the junctions with the originating lines here. A rate of $1.50 has been made for the round trip from Pittsburgh.

W. T. Lechlider Celebrates Birthday.

William T. Lechlider, chief clerk in the office of the general superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio at Pittsburgh, celebrated his 34th birthday with a dinner to railroad and personal friends at his home in Hazelwood last evening. The date also marks the end of his 20th year in the service of the Baltimore & Ohio. He began as a messenger boy at the Mt. Clare telegraph office, Baltimore. He became an operator and in 1898 was made dispatcher by Supt. T. Fitzgerald, now general superintendent of the lines east of the Ohio river. In 1897 he left that position to become chief clerk to D. F. Maroney, then general superintendent of transportation. When Mr. Maroney came to Pittsburgh as general superintendent in October, 1900, Mr. Lechlider came here with him as chief clerk. He has remained in the same position during the regimes of General Superintendents Maroney, W. R. Woodford and L. G. Haas. His thorough acquaintance with the whole system and his equally thorough knowledge of railroad operation, combined with his tact and ability to handle men, have made him invaluable. He received many congratulations yesterday.

Bridge at Wheeling Washed Out.

General Supt. L. G. Haas and the division engineers of the Baltimore & Ohio took charge yesterday of repairing the bridge over Wheeling creek at Wheeling, which was washed away. In the meantime traffic is being diverted over the Wheeling Bridge and Terminal road with only a small delay. The road has just completed repairs on eight miles of track which were swept away last week on the Newark division, only a few miles west of Wheeling.

RAILROAD NOTES.

Charles Gross, detention clerk at the Baltimore & Ohio yards, at Glenwood, has resigned to go with the New York Central at Buffalo.

President Joseph Ramsey, Jr., of the Wabash, is expected in Pittsburgh early next week, to confer with Chief Engineer J. W. Patterson in regard to local plans.

The Pennsylvania railroad ran yesterday the largest excursion so far this season to Atlantic City. The party was accompanied by Col. T. E. Wark, assistant passenger agent. J. W. Thompson, assistant general passenger agent of the Rock Island at Chicago, is said to be slated for the position of general passenger agent of the Wabash, to succeed John Sebastian, recently made passenger traffic manager.

BEAN'S PETITION REFUSED

Superior Court Hands Down a Number of Orders and Judgments in Allegheny Co. Cases.

KORNBLUM, OPTICIAN

440 Wood Street, Near Fifth Avenue.

A. P. BURGWIN,
Assistant Counsel Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh.

"North States" and "South States."

C. L. Sprague, traveling passenger agent of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company, was in Pittsburgh yesterday. He says his company has contracted for the building of two more new steamers on the same lines as the two recently completed. The coming boats are to run between Detroit and Cleveland. Those already in service ply between Detroit and Buffalo. They are known as the East States and the West States. They are chartered to carry 3,000 passengers and have sleeping accommodations for 700. The new steamers will be called North States and South States.

REPORTS OF ALL LINES SHOW THESE FIGURES

The Fourth of July Records of the Pennsylvania Lines West Were All Broken.

While the official figures of the several Pittsburgh lines show that the travel to this city on July 4 was below the expected number, the figures also show that all previous records were broken. The figures from all the lines for their business into Pittsburgh on that day total over 118,000.

The busiest lines were the Panhandle and the Ft. Wayne. The official reports show that these two lines brought to Pittsburgh July 3 and 4 43,496 passengers on the special tickets. The increase over last year for the two lines was about 24,000. The total Fourth of July business on the southwest and northwest systems of the Pennsylvania lines approximated 88,000 for the southwest and 102,000 for the northwest. This breaks all the system's records for the Fourth, the highest previous total being about 175,000, while this year it was 188,000.

On the main line, West Penn, Allegheny Valley and Monongahela divisions the Pennsylvania railroad, about 40,000 passengers were brought to Pittsburgh on that day. The Valley alone carried about 10,000.

The lines of the Baltimore & Ohio, east and west, brought approximately 15,000 passengers, while the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie came forward with about 20,000.

As to the revenue from this business it is fair to compute the average value of the tickets sold on that day at $1. This would accordingly mean about $118,000 for the lines.

RESIDENCE IS NOT NECESSARY TO HOLD OFFICE

Claim Made by School Director Hiland in the Suit to Oust Him.

HAD MOVED FROM WARD

In Answer to Quo Warranto Proceedings Defendant Denies Right to Oust Him, but Also Claims a Legal Home at Hotel Carlin.

John F. Hiland, a member of the school board of the Thirty-fourth ward, yesterday in common pleas court filed an answer to the quo warranto proceedings instituted against him. It was alleged in the petition that he is not a resident of the ward and cannot legally hold office.

In the answer Hiland says he has been advised that he is not required to be a resident of the ward to serve as a school director, but that it is only necessary for him to be a qualified citizen of the city of Pittsburgh.

Hiland explains that he lived at No. 29 Jones row, Carson street, Thirty-fourth ward, at the time of his election, but that he was compelled to move by reason of his landlord's intention to tear down the house. He endeavored to obtain another house in the Thirty-fourth ward, but could not. He then made arrangements to stay at the Hotel Carlin, in that ward, from time to time, until he could secure a house in the ward. He says he considers the hotel his home, and expects to vote in the Thirty-fourth ward at the next election.

Belt Line May Win.

Arguments were made before Judge Marshall Brown in the cross-bills filed by the Pittsburgh & Castle Shannon Railroad Company against the West Side Belt Railroad Company. These bills originated from an attempt made by the first-named company to prevent the West Side Belt line from crossing its tracks at two points in Baldwin township. Judge Brown remarked that the West Side Belt line could judiciously make the crossing, but before an order would be made he would consider the testimony.

Chicago Company Sues on Patents.

The Columbia Wire Company of Chicago has filed bills in equity severally against the Sharon Steel Company and the Union Steel Company in the United States circuit court, alleging infringements of a patent for improvements in wire barbing machines. A preliminary injunction and damages are asked; also that the court increase the damages to a sum equal to three times the amount of the assessment under circumstances of willful and unjust infringements.

Bids for County Roads.

The county commissioners and controller yesterday opened bids for the improvement of portions of the Greensburg and Freeport roads. They were referred to the county engineer for tabulation. The bidders were W. E. Howley, M. F. Howley & Co., J. C. McSpadden, Booth & Flinn, Limited, Keeling & Ridge, Sweeney & Houston.

City Appeals Block House Case.

City Solicitor Carnahan yesterday took an appeal to the supreme court from a decision of common pleas court No. 2 in declaring the vacation of Fort street and Point alley illegal. The petitioner was the Daughters of the American Revolution, which organization is endeavoring to keep the block house property from being interfered with. The court decided against the city, and the appeal will be heard at the October term.

LEGAL BRIEFS.

Bell Moncueff of Pittsburgh bequeathed a small estate to her children.

The salaries of the crier and tipstaffs in common pleas court No. 2 were fixed at $1,200 a year.

Suit was entered by William Jeffers against Barney Middendorf for $1,000 damages for assault and battery.

By the will of Catherine Hambach of Pittsburgh, a $1,500 estate is bequeathed to her daughter.

An inventory and appraisement of the estate of W. A. Lemmon shows a valuation of $7,800 14.

Conrad Kalb of Allegheny left an $8,500 estate to his children. Attorney A. E. Weger represents the estate.

Decrees in distribution were made in the following estates: Elizabeth C. Moorhead, $300 86; Margaret T. Lavelle, $283 75.

Attorney Edwin Z. Smith left for Ireland last evening to take additional testimony in the contest over the will of Michael Flannigan.

Lowenstein Bros. & Co. sued W. C. Spence for $260. It is claimed the defendant made false representations to an employe of the plaintiff and obtained possession of bills of lading for eight cars of watermelons.

Louis Zipper entered suit against Walker Stratman & Co. and others for $10,000 damages. The plaintiff alleges that a minor child was struck by a barrel, which was knocked from one of the defendants' wagons by a street car and badly injured.

Executions were issued as follows: L. C. Smith Wooden Ware Company vs. C. J. Erickson, $148; Thomas Herriott vs. John W. Kiker, $4,874. H. Allen Mackensey, ext., vs. Christ. Fossier, $263; McFarbane & Co. vs. I. C. Ewing et al, $142.

In the divorce case of Louisa B. McCarriher against John H. McCarriher, the respondent filed an answer in which he asks that the case be tried by a jury. They were married March 30, 1882, and separated May 28, 1897. Mrs. McCarriher accuses her husband of deserting her, which he says is untrue, and alleges that she left him instead.

Another hearing was held yesterday by Register Edwards in the contest over the estate of Valentine Steigitz, of the Sixth ward. The decedent left the greater part of his estate to his wife, and the children began a contest. The testimony taken showed that the widow was sole manager of the household.

John R. James Secures Big Party.

John R. James, central passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific and other Gould lines, returned yesterday from a trip to Cleveland and announced that the Missouri Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande and Rio Grande Western have been placed on the official route for the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias of Ohio, attending the San Francisco convention.

BONES FOUND IN A CELLAR CAUSED MUCH OF A STIR

All Kinds of Thrills Given to Residents of Meyran Avenue.

GOSSETT'S AWFUL FRIGHT

He Was Down in a Dark Place When He Found Parts of a Skeleton. Then Neighborhood Got Excited and the Police Were Sent For.

When young Earl Gossett, colored, burst forth from the cellar of a house on Meyran avenue yesterday with every hair on his head unkinked and standing on end, his eyes popping from his head and his sable features suffused with a sort of green hue, he created consternation in the family that had just moved into the house.

And when Gossett, stuttering in terror, faltered out that he had just found the remains of a human body hidden away in a far corner of the cellar there was great alarm and before many minutes the entire neighborhood was agog with the news. The negro boy was the cynosure of the population for a while and everybody hung on his lips, which were actually puffed with terror.

Neighborhood Was Stirred Up.

The people who formerly occupied the house moved out of it about a week ago, shortly after the death of the head of the family. The family that leased the house afterward engaged Earl Gossett to clean up the cellar. In digging some rubbish from the corner he suddenly uncovered the greater part of a human skeleton, the clavicle, tibia, vertebrae and the skull. Gossett sought daylight immediately.

The occurrence was the talk of the neighborhood. Families gathered on front porches and discussed the find in awe-stricken tones. When the policeman on the beat sauntered along, swinging his club, there was work for him. He was told of the discovery and going into the cellar he investigated. The cellar is dark and the solitary gas jet in it does not light all corners. The policeman located the bones with the aid of matches and then went away and reported the affair to Police Inspector Robert Denniston.

Dark Deeds Were Talked Of.

While the policeman was gone the neighborhood buzzed. The family that had moved away had an excellent reputation and of course there was no suspicion attached to it. Some of the neighbors thought, however, that perhaps the bones had lain for years in the dark cellar and that perhaps former occupants of years ago might know something about the bones.

When a Gazette reporter called at the house the bones were still there. Gossett swore that he would not touch them and the family that had moved in did not consider it their business to handle them.

There was all kinds of talk about dark deeds and the police were blamed for not sending a squad of officers to investigate more closely and find out if some arrests ought not to be made.

Two doors from the house lives a family that gives an explanation that accounts for the presence of the bones. A musician boarded at the house some years ago. His fad was the collection of all sorts of things. He had a skeleton and spent a good deal of time studying the anatomy of the hands and feet. The musician taught the organ as well as the piano and as the feet of the organist are of importance in playing the anatomy of the pedal extremity interested him as well as that of the hands. The musician moved away and it is supposed that he threw the skeleton into the dark corner of the cellar before departing.

News of the Rivers.

The steamer Virginia is on good time, and will arrive tonight.

G. W. Weigle & Co. have finished building 20 sand flats for the Iron City Sand Company.

Capt. Fleet Wesse of Middleport is in command of the Convoy. Harry Martin and John Rust are her pilots.

The steamers Greenwood and Lorena are due in port this morning and will be found at the Monongahela wharf.

The United States snagboat E. A. Woodruff is in port and will remain here probably for several days owing to high water.

Capt. D. A. Woodward on his present trip up the Ohio river put a deckhand off the boat at Gallipolis who was suffering from delirium tremens.

Capt. Harry McGuire of the Frank Gilmore left late down the river yesterday and came to Pittsburgh by rail to transact some business on shore.

The towboat Clifton arrived light from Ft. Pleasant, where she met with an accident to her towing knee. The boat also lost one coalboat in the accident.

The towboat Charles Brown, which arrived yesterday, came part of the way to Pittsburgh light. She did not waste any time in getting hitched on a tow of coal and starting off for New Orleans.

The Monongahela River Packet Company has steamship agent, to book passengers through to all points on the Monongahela river for the steamers Elizabeth and Gertrude.

The towboat Harvester upon her arrival here may take a small tow of coal to Cincinnati. The A. R. Budd Coal Company, her owners, will have three coalboats loaded in a day or two. The Harvester returns anyhow for empties.

Capt. Edward Williamson is now in command of the Tacoma and Capt. David Scatterday is at the desk. The Tacoma is fighting the Gould in the Portsmouth and Cincinnati trade and keeping her from making any money, so it is said.

W. C. Jutte has left New York for Europe, accompanied by his family physician. He hopes to regain his health, which has been good for almost a year. Mr. Jutte may be away for several months. He has been taking life easy lately.

The towboat Frank Gilmore arrived at 8 o'clock last night, being the first steamer of the returning fleet to arrive at this port. She made a quick run, beating the other boats several hours. She is owned by the A. R. Budd Coal Company.

A new towboat is to be built at the marine ways at Elizabeth to take the place of the towboat Maggie. The new boat will receive the latter's machinery. A big model barge is also being converted into a wharfboat, which will be used at Memphis.

The steamer Jewel, plying in the Henderson and Evansville trade, has passed into the hands of her original owners, J. B. Thompson and D. Ford, of Evansville. For the past three years the boat has been in the hands of the First National bank at Henderson.

G. W. Weigle & Co. of Roscoe, Pa., have received a contract from the Clyde Coal Company for the construction of 25 barges for use in the trade about Pittsburgh. They will be 100 feet long, 24 feet wide and 7 feet deep. Work on them will be commenced in a few days.

The steamer Volunteer made a flying trip from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, having made the run in 65 hours with a tow equal to 21 barges, a very large tow for a boat of her power. Her pilots were Samuel S. Fowler and Edward V. Fowler, with Capt. Jared M. Gwaltney in command.

Commodore Charles F. Foster of the Morgantown Anchor line of steamers says his line is getting its share of the freight business, and that there is no complaint at all on its large number of passengers which the Elizabeth and Gertrude are carrying. The Elizabeth carries an orchestra on Saturdays.

Gov. Van Zant of Minnesota, renominated for another term on Tuesday, was for many years an upper Mississippi boatman, and now he is a statesman of renown. He is not the first ruler of a state, however, who began life on the waters. Ex-governor, now Senator W. E. Bate of Tennessee, was once second clerk with the late Capt. James Lee on the New Orleans and Cumberland river packet Old Hickory.

OFFICERS NAMED BY EDUCATORS

CHARLES W. ELIOT OF HARVARD CHOSEN PRESIDENT.

Grade Teachers from Organization to Circumvent School Boards and Secure a More Permanent Tenure—Many Notable Papers Read.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

MINNEAPOLIS, July 10.—But one day remains of the National Educational association convention of 1902. The size of the crowds has been unprecedented and the number and quality of the literary features never in the history of the association have been equaled. Twenty thousand visitors have spent the week here.

Officers elected are: President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, president; W. N. Davidson of Kansas, treasurer. According to custom the outgoing president, W. M. Beardshear of Iowa, was named for first vice president. Among the other vice presidents is Dr. Charles F. Thwing of Ohio. The list of directors, one from each state, includes J. W. Lansinger, Pennsylvania; J. K. Baxter, Ohio, and M. W. Ross, West Virginia.

There was a large attendance at the general session, which was signalized by notable addresses by James Wilson, secretary of agriculture; Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell university and former member of the Philippine commission, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York.

One of the most important movements today was the meeting this afternoon of representative grade teachers to form a national organization. The movement was begun by the Chicago grade teachers' federation. The idea is to have a national organization which can defend the rights of its members from the encroachments of school boards, secure the adoption of definite and binding contracts, which shall secure employment for fixed periods, or during good behavior, for fixed salaries.

VOLUNTEERS' NEW MOVE.

Sullington Booth's Followers Have Leased Second Avenue Building to Establish Home.

Col. C. C. Herron, of the Central regiment, Volunteers of America, yesterday signed a lease for three floors in the building at No. 343 Second avenue. The first floor is to be fitted up as a mission and reading room, and provision will also be made on this floor for an office or headquarters for the Volunteers of this section.

The second and third floors will be divided into individual rooms for workingmen who have no homes. It is intended to make the rooms the cleanest and best of the kind to be found.

It is expected that the institution will be in complete working order by October when Gen. Ballington Booth and wife will be here for a series of meetings.

The second annual outing arranged by the Allegheny post, Volunteers of America, Capt. Collins commanding, for poor mothers and their children, will take place at Riverview park on July 16. Contributions for this outing have been coming in liberally, but much more is needed. Edibles and gifts of clothing are especially desired.

ALLEGHENY ON A SPREE.

Heavy Rains Again Start That Stream on a Rampage.

The Allegheny river is again behaving badly, having started on another spree. The Ohio river is expected to reach a stage of 15 feet by reason of the Allegheny's performance, and it may pass that mark. The class out of the former stream has of late been most phenomenal and riverman say they never saw anything to equal the conditions when the time of year is considered.

The Ohio river has not been below a coalboat stage of water this month, a most remarkable record.

The pile drivers sunk at the Ft. Wayne railroad bridge last week during the high water were raised yesterday afternoon. Persons who suffered from the last freshet are just beginning to recover from it. The high water coming may flood a portion of the baseball park again. One thing is certain, the heavy rains which have been falling up the Allegheny river almost daily, are making great water for the river interests.

The Charles Brown took out 12 barges of coal yesterday. The total shipments so far this month have approximated 1,350,000 bushels. There was 11 feet of water in the Pittsburgh harbor last night.

Wall Street Interests to Get Together for Protection Against Attacks.

STEEL ASSAULT EXPOSED

Revelation of the Man Back of It Causes Revulsion of Market Feeling in the Stock's Favor—Effect of the Rebuilding of New York.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 10.—There was considerable rejoicing in steel circles today over the exposure of the methods of the party which for months past has been endeavoring to tangle up the United States Steel Corporation in litigation in order to further their interests by depressing the shares of the combine. The withdrawals of Russell Sage and Hopkins Bros. from the most recent suit reveal the flimsy character of the attacks that have been made against the bond conversion plan of the United States Steel Corporation.

Whether or not the carrying out of the conversion plan will work to the benefit of the stockholders, is a problem that time alone will solve; but the methods of the clique endeavoring to enjoin the corporation from converting $200,000,000 of its preferred stock into bonds is sufficient to convince Wall street that the opposition is not working for the general good of those who have placed their money into United States Steel. The arch-conspirator of the attack is not a man who would inspire confidence.

Measure for Future Protection.

It was said on the best of authority today that the revelations in connection with the attack against the United States Steel Corporation would be followed by the coming together of some of the most substantial interests in the street to take concerted action for mutual protection against just such attacks as those that have been made against the steel combine. A steel official is authority for the statement that it will be the object of this organization to expose the gang which has made it a point for years past to harass legitimate business enterprises with no other object in view than depressing stocks. An official of one of the largest corporations in the country, which has suffered from attack by injunction, said that millions of dollars had been lost by business enterprises through the operations of the gang referred to. The result in every case has been a decision in favor of the defendant.

The United States Steel Corporation has been made the target for attack since its organization. What it has lost in consequence is not known; but according to an official the recent suits have caused weeks of delay in carrying out the combine's plans for extensions, additions and improvements. F. W. Hopkins of Hopkins Bros., when asked today regarding the statement of Robert MacCarter, counsel for Curtis Smith and others in the suit against the United States Steel Corporation, that he had not withdrawn his name from the suit, replied:

"Of course our name will be withdrawn. It should never have been dragged in. We gave instructions to our counsel, State Senator Wheelee of New Jersey, to this effect last Tuesday, and out it will come."

A special received from Newark today by a Wall street news agency quoted R. V. Lindabury, New Jersey counsel for the United States Steel Corporation, as saying:

"There is no foundation for the rumor that the court has adjourned for the term without considering the appeal in the Bergen case, and that it will not, therefore, be decided until November. I understand that a conference of the judges will be held in the course of a fortnight and that the Bergen case will be considered at that time."

One Cause of Steel Prosperity.

Said a steel manufacturer: "It is only necessary to take a trip through New York to find an explanation for the wonderful prosperity the iron and steel industry is now enjoying. Every corner you turn you will find a contractor at work on a building. The truth of the matter is that the city of New York is being practically rebuilt, and in almost every instance iron and steel are taking the place of brick and stone. You will find the same state of affairs in other cities. I am convinced that the building boom is assured for two years more. The contracts already placed and about to be placed warrant this statement."

Southern Iron for 1903.

It was authoritatively stated today that the pig iron manufacturers of the south would meet soon to consider prices for 1903. This proposed early action has been made necessary by the sold-up condition of the furnaces, and manufacturers are naturally desirous of opening their books for 1903.

It has been said that one of the large producers of the south has been selling iron for delivery next year, but the report cannot be confirmed. A representative of one company said some of the companies had taken more business for this year's delivery than they will be able to handle, and that, consequently, they would have to carry considerable business over into next year. He added that if any iron had been sold for delivery next year it represented too small a part of the south's production to warrant comment. The combined production of the southern furnaces this year will be in excess of the output of any preceding year.

Steel Plate Prices Unchanged.

Notwithstanding the fact that the eastern mills which buy their steel in the open market have been urging an advance in the price of steel plate, the pool price remains the same, and seems likely to for the next two weeks at least. The official price remains at $1 60 Pittsburgh, although the mills have been charging $1 80 and $1 90 and even more. The likelihood of an early advance is made more remote by the fact that summer slackness in the west is causing the offer for resale of both domestic and imported steel bars, wire and sheet mills. The effect is an easier tone in the market for raw material, and it is not unlikely that there will be a readjustment that will bring the billets down to a figure more in keeping with the price of the finished product.

Pennsylvania Steel Company.

The statement is made that the Pennsylvania Steel Company has been, only slightly affected by the coal strike for the reason that it uses for the great bulk of its purposes bituminous coal. Reports of the constituent companies for the past six months indicate a considerable increase in earnings over the corresponding period of last year.

Steel Foundries' Organization.

It is said that the organization of the Steel Foundries Company is progressing rapidly and that the directorate will be an exceptionally strong one. The company is being organized along conservative lines, the earnings of the constituent companies for a period of years showing that there will remain after paying dividends of 6 per cent on the preferred stock, a substantial amount for the common.

Fight for Susquehanna Control.

A sharp contest for control is expected at the annual meeting of the Susquehanna Iron and Steel Company on August 5. The contest will be between two of the directors who own 34,000 shares of the stock and seven others who own 31,000 shares.

Can Combine Prosperous.

Officials of the American Can Company say the company is in a more prosperous condition than at any time since its organization. The operating expenses, they say, have been greatly reduced as a result of carrying into effect their policy of concentration.

A Boom in Steel Stocks.

A feature of today's stock market was the activity of the steel shares, due largely to the developments as to the identity of the interests that have been working to depress the stock. The preferred closed at 90¾, a net gain of ⅝ of a point. The common closed at 39⅝, a net gain of ½ point. The level reached by the steel shares is the highest attained in weeks past. Transactions in both issues today amounted to something like 60,000 shares.

CROP AVERAGES FAIR.

A Trifle Below the Ten-Year Normal Condition in Corn and Wheat. Higher in Other Products.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10.—Preliminary returns to the statistician of the department of agriculture on the acreage of corn indicate an increase of about 3,520,000 acres, or 3.9 per cent, on the area harvested last year. The average condition of the growing crop on July 1 was 87.5, as compared with 81.8 on July 1, 1901, 89.5 at the corresponding date in 1900, and a 10-year average of 89.2.

The average condition of winter wheat improved during June nine-tenths of one point, standing on July at 77, or 11.3 points below the condition on July 1, 1901, 3.8 points below that at the corresponding date in 1900, and 2.4 points below the 10-year average. The average condition of spring wheat declined three points during June, standing at 92.4 on July 1, as compared with 95.6 on July 1, 1901, 95.2 at the corresponding date in 1900, and a 10-year average of 93.8. The condition of spring and winter wheat combined on July 1 was 82.9, as compared with 91.1 on July 1, 1901, 69.8 on July 1, 1900, and 76.2 at the corresponding date in 1898. The amount of wheat remaining in the hands of farmers on July 1 is estimated at about 52,449,000 bushels, or 7 per cent of the crop of last year.

The average condition of the oat crop July 1 was 92.1, as compared with 90.6 last month, and a 10-year average of 87.5.

The average condition of barley is 93.7, against 93.6 one month ago, and a 10-year average of 87.1.

The average condition of winter rye is 91.2, as compared with 93.6 on July 1, 1901, and a 10-year average of 89.2. The average condition of spring rye is 89.3, as compared with a 10-year average of 87.9.

The acreage of potatoes is 3.5 per cent, or about 100,000 acres greater than that of last year. Reports on sweet potatoes are rather unfavorable.

The acreage reported as under tobacco is considerably smaller than that shown for the crop of 1901.

Reports of the hay crop are very favorable, an improvement in condition being noted during June in nearly every important hay-producing state.

While there has been a general decline in the condition of apples and peaches as compared with last month, reports of those fruits from almost every important state indicate that more than an average crop of each of them will be harvested. The condition of grapes is very good.

Speculators Still Seem to Be in Full Control of the Dealings—Chicago Corner in Corn a Big Factor in Many Lines.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 10.—Today's stock market was highly speculative throughout and speculative influences affected the grain markets as well as the money and exchange markets. In the stock market there was large buying of New York Central, which was the leader of the market, by the same brokers which were heavy sellers of western grain carrying railroad stocks. The conviction was general today that there was a maneuver to facilitate taking profits in western stocks by the present so-called western contingent, which is engrossed at this time with the conduct of the corner in July corn at Chicago. This operation looms big in financial affairs. The realizing in stocks, in spite of the clearing weather in the crop regions today, the continued heavy shipments of currency to Chicago, the rising rates for time money here, the selling of loan bills in the foreign exchange market which has averted gold exports, are all attributed in some degree to the exigences of the corn corner.

Shipments of Currency.

There were no currency transfers to Chicago through the sub-treasury today, but $100,000 went through that institution to New Orleans, and it is estimated that the express companies took another $1,500,000 to Chicago today. A recovery in the New York discount rate there from 50 cents to 35 cents indicated some resulting relief from the pressure upon New York. The higher rates for time loans here encouraged further borrowing of foreign funds through the sterling market. But the stocks which rose in price were sold for London account, thus increasing the demand for exchange in payment. This month's transfers of currency through the sub-treasury to Chicago have now reached $1,000,000, compared with $200,000 for this time last year, and to New Orleans this month's movement is $700,000, compared with $150,000.

Money Needed in Country.

Reports from Chicago indicate that heavy demands are making on that center for currency from western and northwestern points. That the stock market is still well in control by large speculative interests was demonstrated by the early strength of the eastern trunk lines and by the revival of strength in Missouri Pacific. The six-point spurt in Sugar was in the nature of punishment to bear speculators who have sold this stock short very freely of late. The aggressive rally in Colorado Fuel, and the upward rush in United States Steel at the close today were suggestive of like results. The closing generally was steady.

The bond market was irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,300,000. United States bonds were unchanged on the last call.

WALL STREET FEATURES.

Total sales for the day 628,200 shares.

Speculators are still in control of the market.

New York Central leads the dealing in an endeavor of the western contingent to force profits.

Large shipments of currency are made to Chicago.

United States Steel common makes a net gain of ⅜ and preferred ⅝.

Sugar is given a spurt of four points and bears are caught short.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, July 10.—The new camp at Danielsville, Mont., is again furnishing stories of rich finds. Last week, it is said, a washerwoman returned from a day's prospecting tour with pieces of rock full of gold which assayed $280 to the ton. She found the rock on a ledge seven feet wide, which consists almost entirely, it is said, of such ore as that she brought back. There is a scramble to stake claims in the vicinity of the discovery.

A vein of coal 14 feet wide has been uncovered on Trap creek, five miles from that of the Dewey mine, in the Thunder mountain district, Idaho.

During June Tintic, Utah, shipped 219 cars of ore and 17 cars of concentrates with four bars of mammoth bullion. The Gemini led the production with 32 cars, the Yankee sent out 32, Mammoth 28 and the South Swansea 24 cars.

Another good strike is reported in the Northern Spy at Tintic. It occurred west of the shaft on the 700-foot level, in a part of the mine heretofore neglected. The ore extends in a northerly course and has been stoped for a distance of 45 feet, presenting a 16-foot breast of solid ore, the values consisting principally of copper.

Developments in the East Butte district, Montana, are attracting some attention. The company owning the Amazon and Altoona mines have decided to sink the shaft 1,000 feet, and heavier machinery capable of carrying on the work is now being negotiated for. The Emma mine has now reached the depth of 700 feet and sinking is still in progress.

A rich copper find is reported on the Oregon and California line near Grants pass. The ledge ranges in width from 20 to 200 feet and outcrops at a score of points both in Oregon and in California. Tunnels have been run in at eight different points and a number of prospect holes sunk. Some specimens are three-quarters pure copper and none of the rock assayed thus far shows less than 8 per cent copper.

In the Bell, near Stockton, Cal., a body of ore carrying heavy values in sulphurets and free gold has been struck on the 300-foot level. The workings of the Banky, near Idaho Springs, Colo., are showing up in fine shape. The shaft is down 250 feet and over 200 feet of levels has been driven. Scarcely a foot of barren ground can be seen in the mine.

Big chunks of gold ore, high in value, are still being struck in the American mine, Nogales district, N. M. At the bottom of the shaft the pay streak is nearly four feet wide.

The Metal Market.

Local metal markets today were again steady to firm in tone, but quiet and featureless. On a quiet demand and in sympathy advance in the English market tin, locally, improved 25 points, with spot quoted at $28 62½@28 75. The London market gained 15s, closing spot at £127 10s and futures at £125 10s. Both here and abroad the feeling was firm. Copper ruled dull locally. Lake advanced ¼ points on the inside price, but was unchanged on asked price. All other grades remained as last quoted. Standard, spot to August, closed $11 87½@11 75; lake, $12 C@12 12½; electrolytic, $12 75@12 05, and casting, $11 75@11 95. London reported a net advance of 5s, spot closing at £53 2s 6d and futures at £53 7s 6d. Lead remained steady at $4 12½, with little light. The English price was unchanged at £13 5s 3d. Without showing any change spelter in the local market was firm, but dull at $5 12½. London advanced 2s 6d to £18 2s 6d. The New York iron market was steady and unchanged. Warrants were nominal. No. 1 foundry, $22 00@23 00; No. 2 foundry northern, $21 00@22 00; No. 1 foundry southern, $23 50@24 50; No. 2 foundry southern, $21 50@22 50. English markets were steady, with Glasgow finally quoted at 56s 5d and Middlesboro at 51s 1½d.
